PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Construction.—Provision is made for flood protection of the lower Mississippi Valley from Cape Girardeau, Mo., to the Gulf of Mexico, including the main alluvial stream, the basins of the St. Francis and White, Grande Prairie-Bayou Meto, Yazoo, Tensas, Atchafalaya Rivers, and Bayou La Fourche, and the alluvial lands around Lake Pontchartrain. The adopted plan calls for raising and strengthening about 1,600 miles of existing levees along the main river, for enlarging or constructing some 1,700 miles of levees on tributaries and in side basins, for channel improvements and bank stabilization on the main river, for dredging of the main river to provide a navigation channel 12 feet deep and 300 feet wide from Baton Rouge, La., to Cairo, Ill., and for five flood-detention reservoirs on minor tributaries.

The total authorization for flood control and improvement of the lower Mississippi River in its alluvial valley is $1,292.7 million, of which $768.8 million has been appropriated through June 30, 1952.

The total appropriation requested amounts to $47.9 million and provides in part for initiation of new work involving local protection at Lake Pontchartrain, La. This represents an increase of $2.9 million compared with the current fiscal year and an increase of $1.9 million compared with the preceding fiscal year.

With the expenditure of funds requested for fiscal year 1954, the main river levees will be 78 percent complete, main river-bank stabilization will be 67 percent complete, and progress will continue on the side basins and on minor tributaries.

2. Maintenance.—The total appropriation requested amounts to $14.6 million, which is $0.2 million less than the amount appropriated for the current fiscal year and $0.3 million more than appropriated for the preceding fiscal year.

3. Flood control, emergencies.—Provision is made for rescue work or for the repair, restoration, or maintenance of any flood control work on tributaries of the Mississippi River threatened or destroyed by flood.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

A treaty with Canada covering uses of the water of the Niagara River was ratified by the United States Senate on August 9, 1950. This treaty provides for greater power development in the United States and Canada and for works to preserve and enhance the beauty of Niagara Falls under the new conditions. Engineering and economic investigations of the power redevelopment possibilities at Niagara Falls are under way and are being fully integrated with the plans of the Canadian Government for the power redevelopment in Canada, and with the study of the measures for preservation of the beauty of the Falls which the Corps is making at the request of the International Joint Commission.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Department of the Army responsibilities for attainment of objectives in occupied areas include the prevention of disease and unrest among the civilian populations, and the promotion of economic recovery leading to self-support.

The 1952 program provided for economic aid, civil information and education, and administration in the Ryukyu Islands; and for civil information and education, and administration in Japan. The 1953 and 1954 programs provide only for the continuation of these activities in the Ryukyu Islands since sovereignty has been returned to Japan as the result of the peace treaty in 1952.

The estimate for 1954 does not provide for appropriations to cover the use of local revenues incident to the administration of the Ryukyu Islands, including sales of products and services to Government agencies or other purchasers. It has not been determined to what extent appropriations may be required for this purpose.

1. Administration.—This provides for administrative costs in the Ryukyu Islands, and the Office of Civil Affairs and Military Government. The Office of Civil Affairs and Military Government and the Ryukyu Islands Administration also jointly manage the import program financed from local and appropriated funds.

2. Civil information and education.—Provision is made for a program of information and education in the Ryukyu Islands and advanced study for Ryukyuan students and leaders in the United States.

3. Economic aid.—Provision is made for imports of necessary goods and services which the native economy cannot finance. The fact that the islands are becoming increasingly self-supporting, largely through earnings from services furnished to the United States military forces and personnel, is reflected in the progressive reduction in economic aid.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The United States Soldiers' Home was established to provide a home and other authorized benefits for the relief and support of certain old, invalid, or disabled soldiers of the Regular Army of the United States. All privileges and benefits of the Home are available to certain members of the Air Force of the United States. Funds for maintenance and operation of the Home are appropriated from the Soldiers' Home permanent fund and not from the general fund of the Treasury.

1. Medical care.—As part of the Home, there is maintained a hospital which will care for a daily average of 360 patients during fiscal year 1954. In addition, approximately 56 patients will receive specialized care in other Government hospitals.

2. Domiciliary activities.—Approximately 1,300 members of the Home will be cared for in domiciliary barracks. After completion of the new domiciliary building, about 400 members will be transferred from existing unsatisfactory accommodations.

3. Administration and central services.—Responsibility for administration of the Home is vested in a Board of Commissioners composed of the following officers of the Army, ex officio: The Adjutant General, the Judge Advocate General, the Quartermaster General, the Surgeon General, the Chief of Engineers, the Chief of Finance, and the Governor of the Home, the latter selected by the President of the United States. Included in this activity are all service activities of the Home such as heat, light, and power, laundry, repairs, transportation, etc.

4. Permanent improvements.—Construction of the new domiciliary building is expected to be completed by August 1, 1953. Construction has begun on the new nursing unit at the hospital and it is expected to be ready for occupancy on March 1, 1954. Due to cost increases, the $12,750,000 provided for new construction in the Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1951, is not sufficient to complete all projects authorized. To meet the increased costs an additional $570,000 is included in this estimate. To insure adequate heat to the present buildings and buildings under construction, immediate renovation and expansion of the existing boiler plant is required. The sum of $525,000 is included in this estimate for this purpose.

BUSINESS-TYPE STATEMENTS

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The fund will provide for the ownership, operation, and maintenance of plant, equipment, buildings, shops, storehouses, supplies, and materials, and other assets used in connection with the planning, construction, operation, and maintenance of the various projects. The fund will also serve as a means of financing the procurement of commonly required items, initial payment of distributable general and engineering expenses, and financing of reimbursable work for other Government agencies, elements of the Department of the Army, and private persons. The centralization and financing of these transactions makes it possible to handle through a single fund bills for such purchases, services, or payrolls regardless of the appropriation or project finally served. Likewise, it permits the accumulation of deferred charges or unapplied costs for application to the appropriation ultimately receiving the benefit of the services. The expenses of the fund are reimbursed by the appropriations which finance the projects using the services, materials, equipment, or facilities.

On July 1, 1953, the fund will assume the assets, liabilities, and obligations of the Plant accounts as carried on the records of the Corps of Engineers as of June 30, 1953, under the appropriations for "Maintenance and improvement of existing river and harbor works," "Flood control, general" and "Flood control, Mississippi River and tributaries."

BUSINESS-TYPE STATEMENTS

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The act of February 16, 1933, as amended by section 2 of the act of June 13, 1940, appropriates, without limitation as to time or amount, the revenues derived from the operation of the Canal Zone postal service. Moneys derived from such appropriations each year are available for the expenses of operating the Canal Zone postal service (48 U. S. C. 1323a). Because postal revenues were estimated to be insufficient to meet necessary expenses, the appropriation to Canal Zone Government for 1953 included an amount to cover the deficiency. Beginning in 1954, the Canal Zone postal service will be transferred to Canal Zone Government, and its estimated gross cost is included therein. During 1954 and thereafter, all revenues derived from postal services will be deposited into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION

The Panama Canal Company is a corporate agency of the United States created to operate and maintain the Panama Canal (Public Law 808, 80th Cong.; Public Law 841, 81st Cong.; Executive Order 10263). The administration of the Company is integrated with that of the Canal Zone Government, an independent agency financed by appropriations. The Governor of the Canal Zone is ex officio president of the Company.

The Board of Directors of the Company consists of the Governor of the Canal Zone and 8 to 12 other persons appointed by the Secretary of the Army.

The principal source of revenues is from tolls levied on vessels transiting the Canal and from other services furnished shipping. Revenues are also derived from the operation of a steamship line between New York and Cristobal, a trans-isthmian railroad, commissaries, and other activities.

The Company is expected to be self-sustaining, and is required to reimburse the United States Treasury for (a) the net cost of the Canal Zone Government, (b) the cost of interest on the net direct investment, excluding capitalized interest during construction, of the United States in the Company, and (c) for treaty payments made by the United States to the Republic of Panama. Any funds in excess of capital needs must be paid into the Treasury as liquidating dividends on the Government's investment. The Company is authorized to obtain appropriations for its capital needs and to cover losses, and may borrow up to $10,000,000 without interest from the Treasury.

On July 1, 1951, the Company acquired by transfer the Panama Canal and all associated and supporting activities except Canal Zone Government. The investment of the United States in the merged activities as of July 1, 1951, is tentatively evaluated as follows:

	Panama Railroad Company	Panama Canal activities	Panama Canal Company

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAMS

The operations of the Company have been grouped into (1) Canal activities, (2) commercial activities, (3) employees' service activities, (4) other service activities, and (5) general.

Canal activities.—These include transiting of ships, lock-age operations, channel maintenance, ferry service across the Canal at Balboa, and the reimbursement of the United States Treasury for treaty payments to the Republic of Panama made by the Department of State.

Funds applied to acquisition of assets in 1954 amount to $1,299,273 and are to provide mainly for continued replacement of locks, electrical facilities, locomotive cranes needed for overhauling the locks, aids to navigation and suction dredge pipe and accessories.

Operating expenditures estimated for these activities for 1954 amount to $12,165,900 as compared to $13,706,511 in 1953.

Commercial activities.—These include marine bunkering, the steamship line operating between New York and Cristobal, the trans-isthmian railroad, terminals, and the Washington Hotel in Colón, R. P. Funds applied to acquisition of assets in 1954 amount to $131,820 and are chiefly for replacement of electrical facilities in the terminal piers and equipment required by the terminals function. Estimated expenses for this group amount to $10,623,700 in 1954, or practically the same as is expected for 1953.

Employees' service activities.—These consist of the rental of quarters to employees and the operation of commissaries, and certain other necessary employee services.

Funds applied to acquisition of assets in 1954 amount to $7,776,800, consisting primarily of $6,722,200 for continuation of the housing construction program and $890,000 for cold-storage warehouse and other commissary facilities. Expenses are estimated at $28,146,100 in 1954, or practically the same as expected for 1953.

Other service activities.—These include a variety of activities serving the needs of the Company, the Canal Zone Government, the employees, the military agencies, certain services rendered to the Republic of Panama, and others. Principal activities consist of the operation of a drydock, industrial shops, electrical, water, and telephone systems, storehouses, maintenance and construction services, printing plant, garbage operations and transient quarters for those having official business in the Canal Zone.

Funds applied to acquisition of assets in 1954 amount to $1,887,490 consisting mainly of replacements of motor vehicles, $335,800; beginning the replacement of a repair dock at Mount Hope, $450,000; studies in connection with the conversion of the electric power system from 25-cycle to 60-cycle, $70,000; starting installation of a 30-inch water main from Miraflores to Balboa, $600,000; telephone exchange equipment, $80,000; and construction and maintenance equipment, $147,800. Expenses are estimated at $18,941,700 in 1954, or practically the same as expected for 1953.

General.—This includes reimbursement to the Treasury for the net cost of Canal Zone Government and interest; general and administrative expenses; employment costs (relief, retirement, etc.—see Schedule B-2 for detail); and standby maintenance of certain defense facilities.

Funds applied to acquisition of assets amount to $27,000 in 1954 to provide for necessary office equipment. Funds applied to expenses in 1954 are estimated at $24,356,300 as compared with $24,083,600 for 1953, a net increase of $272,700. This is primarily due to estimated increases in the net cost of Canal Zone Government and in employment costs.

FINANCING OPERATIONS

Funds provided by operations in 1952 exceeded funds applied to operations by $19 million. An estimated excess of funds applied to operations over funds provided in fiscal years 1953 and 1954 will result in budgetary expenditures of $1.8 million in 1953 and $3.1 million in 1954. During 1953, a payment of $1.9 million will be made to the Treasury, representing an adjustment of the investment transferred from the Panama Canal.

OPERATING RESULTS AND RETAINED EARNINGS

Incident to the reorganization under Public Law 841, effective July 1, 1951, the Company is in the process of establishing capital values upon which depreciation charges and interest obligations can be computed, and in developing an accounting system which will produce adequate data for toll rate determinations. Pending completion of this work, the assumptions on which depreciation charges and interest obligations are based must be considered tentative. There is presented a special analysis below which gives an estimated distribution of the net cost of the Canal Zone Government so that some indication of the present adequacy of toll and other rates may be revealed. The present toll rates (established in 1938) and other rates are providing adequate funds for operations, but their complete adequacy cannot be determined until completion of capital valuation.

The law requires that tolls shall be fixed at a rate calculated to cover the cost of maintaining and operating the Panama Canal, including interest and depreciation, and an appropriate share of the net cost of the Canal Zone Government which comprises the civil government of the Zone, including schools, fire, police, hospitals, and other activities. In order to arrive at what would be an appropriate share of the net cost of the Canal Zone Government which should be recovered from tolls or other activities such as the railroad, the steamship line, or terminals, two factors are used, one being the net capital invested in the Canal, locks, and other facilities of the waterway compared to the net capital invested in the terminals, steamship line, and other activities. The other factor used is the gross revenues from tolls compared to those of the various activities as explained in section 412 (b) of Public Law 841, Eighty-first Congress.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The program provides for management of power facilities and for marketing and administration in connection with the disposition of surplus power from generating plants constructed and being constructed by the Department of the Army. Revenues from plants now in operation which have accrued through 1952 were $9,067,586 with estimated revenues for 1953 in excess of $9,300,000 and for 1954 in excess of $10,900,000.

1. System operation and maintenance.—In 1954 power will be marketed from seven dams in widely separated areas. Additions to the staff will be required to supplement the small supervisory group provided for in 1953. Additional personnel will be required to dispatch and schedule power supplied by and to the Administration; schedule storage and release of water; administer contractual operations requirements; maintain power system records; and to coordinate the operation of the Administration's system with other interconnected systems.

2. Power marketing.—Major aspects of this work include: (a) Contract negotiations with cooperatives, public bodies and private companies for the marketing of power from existing and potential power projects; (b) planning of transmission facilities; (c) the engineering of potential transmission requirements based on load forecasts; (d) the determination of economic feasibility of these transmission facilities; (e) development of wholesale power rates; (f) investigation of existing and potential power resource benefits through integration; and (g) preparation and collection of power bills. The total installed capacity of Federal dams constructed by the Corps of Engineers in the southeastern area by the end of fiscal year 1955 will total 1,086,000 kilowatts. The Administration will have direct responsibility for marketing power from 602,000 kilowatts of this total capacity and the power available from the remaining 484,000 kilowatts of capacity will be distributed by the Tennessee Valley Authority in accordance with long term power contracts with the Secretary of the Interior.

3. Purchase of power and rental of facilities.—Provision is made for the rental of transmission facilities and for purchase of power to the extent necessary to firm up the Federal system.

4. General administration.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Administration constructs transmission facilities from Federal generating facilities to load centers and to points of interconnection with other systems in six Southwestern States. Completion of the Administration's facilities is planned in relation to completion schedules of power generation of the Corps of Engineers or transmission facilities of rural electric cooperatives. Generation schedules of the Corps of Engineers in the southwestern area through 1955 are shown below:

1. Construction in progress.—Construction will be completed on the transmission program initiated in 1950. The program provided for interconnections with private utilities, the Western Farmers Electric Cooperative in Oklahoma, and the M&A, Central, N. W., Sho-Me, and KAMO electric power cooperatives in Missouri, and for facilities to serve municipalities.

2. New construction and additions.—Provision is made for replacement of equipment and operating materials and completion of the Administration's participation in the Arkansas-White and Red River basins survey. The estimate provides for extension of the Ozark substation and for a transmission line from that station to Russellville, Ark.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Administration markets surplus hydroelectric power generated at multiple-purpose projects constructed by the Corps of Engineers. To perform these functions the Administration (a) operates and maintains a system of high-voltage transmission lines and related facilities, and (b) contracts for the use of transmission facilities and for the sale, purchase, and interchange of power with other power producers in the area.

Revenues in fiscal year 1952 were $2,557,852, and are estimated at $4,743,000 and $9,680,000 for 1953 and 1954, respectively.

1. System operation and maintenance.—In 1954 the Administration will operate and maintain an expanding transmission system as shown in the following table of facilities in service at the end of the three fiscal years:

Substations and switching stations.....	9	82	150

2. Power marketing.—The Administration will have available for marketing 501,000 kilowatts of power by the end of fiscal year 1955. Marketing includes negotiation of new and revised power contracts, design of wholesale power rates, review of resale power rates, development of transmission requirements based on load forecasts and economic feasibility, and preparation of plans for amortization of capital investment.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund, accumulated from power receipts, is available permanently to defray emergency expenses necessary to insure the continuity of service, and is also available in such amounts as may be approved annually in appropriation acts to cover costs in connection with the purchase of electric power and rentals for the use of facilities for the transmission and distribution of power to public bodies, cooperatives, and privately owned companies. Electric power is purchased through contracts with private utility companies and REA cooperatives. Power is transmitted to customers through wheeling arrangements with private utilities and through contracts for lease of transmission facilities of REA cooperatives with an option to purchase provision. Present construction schedules of REA cooperatives indicate completion of their systems by the end of 1954. Contracts have been entered into for the purchase of power and for service charges with Oklahoma utility companies and the M&A Electric Power Cooperative, and for purchase of power and lease of transmission facilities with the following REA cooperatives:

Cooperative	Transmission system		Generating capacity (kilowatts)
	Investment	Miles of line

Sho-Me Power Corporation.....	5,158,698	340
KAMO Electric Power.....	6,375,176	557

Amounts required to carry out contracts under which power will be purchased and facilities leased in fiscal year 1954 are estimated at $5,650,000. Amounts required in later years under these contracts will be higher as facilities involved will have been completed and will be in operation for full 12-month periods.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Department is responsible for the defense production programs with respect to solid fuels, electric power, fish products, petroleum, and gas and for encouraging the exploration of critical minerals. The 1954 requirements for these activities are included in a supplemental appropriation under proposed legislation carried in the chapter "Funds appropriated to the President."

1. Office of the Secretary, Defense Production Staff.—Staff support is provided the Secretary in directing and coordinating the defense activities of the Department and in maintaining close working relationships with other agencies concerned with the defense program.

2. Defense Solid Fuels Administration.—Programs are developed and executed for the production, distribution, and use of all forms of coal and coke made from coal, the production of coal chemicals, and the distribution of petroleum coal, including assistance in obtaining supplies, construction materials, equipment, transportation facilities, and manpower and in increasing production through financial aid. Areas of major current concern are those relating to providing materials for the construction, operation, and maintenance of productive facilities; providing adequate facilities for the transportation of solid fuels to consuming areas; and increases in productive facilities for metallurgical coal and coke-producing facilities to meet the demands of the steel expansion program.

3. Defense Electric Power Administration.—Provision is made for the coordination of the electric power industry's program of expansion so that it will adequately support the defense effort, including assistance in meeting the industry's needs for scarce materials, equipment and financial aid.

4. Defense Minerals Exploration Administration.—On the basis of general policy and program directives from the Defense Materials Procurement Agency, this Administration stimulates the production of critical metals needed for national defense through loans for the exploration of possible domestic sources of ores. Beginning in 1953, the administrative expenses of this Administration are being met from the borrowing authority provided under the Defense Production Act. This provides a consistent pattern for financing the administrative expenses of all agencies carrying on programs under sections 302 and 303 of the Defense Production Act.

5. Defense Fisheries Administration.—Support is given to maintaining or increasing the supply of fishery products to meet military and civilian requirements by (a) aiding in the obtaining of supplies and materials required by the fishery industry; (b) encouraging, and advising in connection with, the expanding of production where appropriate; and (c) advising and making recommendations to other defense agencies in connection with problems of manpower, pricing, financing, and distribution.

6. Petroleum Administration for Defense.—Provision is made for the mobilization of the domestic oil industry and the American oil industry operating abroad, the oil industry of friendly foreign nations, and the domestic gas industry to insure adequate development, distribution, and utilization of resources and facilities to meet civilian and military requirements. Over-all policies on production and distribution of petroleum, petroleum products and gas are developed, established, and administered through limitation orders or other devices as necessary. Representation is given to the needs of the petroleum and gas industries, and allocations of scarce materials and products are made to those industries. Coordination is provided between the oil and gas industries and other Government agencies.

BONNEVILLE POWER ADMINISTRATION

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The Bonneville Power Administration markets power developed at Federal generating plants in the Pacific Northwest. Power demands continue to exceed the available supply because of new defense industrial loads and a normal growth of essential civilian needs. Hungry Horse Dam, under construction by the Bureau of Reclamation, and Detroit Dam, being constructed by the Corps of Engineers, will add to the power supply in fiscal year 1953. McNary and Big Cliff Dams, also being constructed by the Corps, are scheduled to provide new power-generating capacity during 1954. New generators have also been installed at Rock Island Dam by the Chelan Public Utility District, and the Washington Water Power Co. has recently completed Cabinet Gorge Dam. The program for fiscal year 1954 provides for continuation of the construction of transmission facilities needed to transmit power from the four dams in operation, the two dams whose initial generation is scheduled during 1954, and six other dams whose initial generation is scheduled by 1957. Largest of the new generating plants under construction is the Chief Joseph Dam in the State of Washington which will begin generation by 1956.

The Administration is continuing to give special attention to the improvement of its engineering standards and practices. An example is the adoption of transmission-line design for certain circuits to operate at 345,000 volts. The plan is to operate these circuits initially at 230,000 volts, and as the loading increases in future years the transmission voltage will be raised. This improved design and plan of operations will greatly reduce previously planned facilities and operating expenses which would be necessary to transmit power from the Federal generation plants.

Revenues in fiscal year 1952 were $40,180,146. During 1953 and 1954, revenues are estimated at $40,450,000 and $46,300,000, respectively. These estimates assume median water conditions. However, if the critical water conditions that prevailed during the middle of fiscal year 1953 continue through the entire year, the estimated revenues for 1953 will be decreased by $3,900,000.

CONSTRUCTION

Construction, Bonneville Power Administration—

For construction and acquisition of transmission lines, substations, and appurtenant facilities, as authorized by law, to remain available until expended, [$66,523,400, of which $4,096,400 is for liquidation of obligations incurred pursuant to authority previously granted] $55,200,000. NOTE.—$21,000,000 of the 1952 appropriation for this account is excluded from this schedule and set forth below under the title "Construction (liquidation of contract authorization), Bonneville Power Administration."

By the end of fiscal year 1957, 12 hydroelectric generating plants are scheduled to be in operation, providing a maximum capacity of 5,242,050 kilowatts.

In addition to basic main grid requirements, the budget provides facilities to supply power to adjacent areas and to connect customers with the transmission grid system at appropriate delivery voltages. Also, provision has been made for additional system electrical facilities, and necessary plant and equipment to service economically both the construction and maintenance crews.

Plans will continue to be developed in connection with the marketing of power from The Dalles Dam now under construction by the Corps of Engineers, as well as Ice Harbor Dam of the Corps of Engineers for which initiation of construction is contemplated in this Budget.

gress), as amended.] (16 U. S. C. 832-832i; Executive Order 8526; 43 U. S. C. 593-A; 16 U. S. C. 825s; 59 Stat. 10, 21-22; Interior Department Appropriation Act, 1953.)

BUREAU OF LAND MANAGEMENT

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The Bureau of Land Management administers 737 million acres of public lands in the United States and Alaska, conserving forest, range, mineral, and water resources.

The total receipts from revenue producing activities of the Bureau are estimated to be $75 million in fiscal year 1954. Of this amount, $26.5 million will be paid to the States and counties in accordance with law and the remaining $48.5 million will be deposited in the Treasury.

MANAGEMENT OF LANDS AND RESOURCES

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Lease and disposal of mineral resources.—Applications for leasing of mineral resources, the greater number being for oil and gas, are received and acted upon. The Bureau's plan of operation is coordinated with the needs of the Nation for these resources. The increase for 1954 is to handle the increasing workload.

Cases pending, end of year.....	13,378	18,300	24,000	23,500

2. Land use and disposal.—Applications for all types of land use, except for minerals and for acquisition of public lands, are acted upon under this activity. Public lands are examined and classified to provide a basis for management and a sound selective land disposal policy. The increase requested for 1954 is to handle the increasing workload, to conduct river basin studies, and to initiate a revision of the land records system.

Cases pending, end of year.....	17,301	19,474	22,000	19,000

3. Management of grazing lands.—The use of 170 million acres of the Federal range by 30,000 livestock growers is supervised. Proper management of these lands increases the grazing capacity by reducing overuse or unseasonal use, trespass, and protects them against fire and erosion.

4. Forestry.—Over 5 million acres of commercial forest lands in the United States and 40 million acres in Alaska, plus 110 million acres of woodland, are managed. It is estimated that the 1954 program will permit marketing 920 million board feet of timber having a stumpage value of $16,950,000. The 1954 program will also provide for increased costs of fire protection and contemplates increasing the acreage of forest lands to receive fire protection by 400,000 acres.

5. Cadastral surveys.—These surveys are an integral phase of the land-management program and are required to locate and identify legal boundaries of lands under application for lease or disposal, for administering timber sales and the management of forest lands, and to provide legal descriptions necessary to the work of other Government agencies concerned with Federal lands.

6. Soil and moisture conservation.—The 1954 program plans treatment on 800,000 acres of public lands with measures to prevent runoff and erosion and to rehabilitate areas which are in critical condition. This is 200,000 acres more than will be treated in fiscal year 1953. Emphasis will be placed on cooperative programs with other agencies in river basin areas.

7. Squaw Butte Experiment Station.—In cooperation with the Oregon State Agricultural College, studies are made of management problems on the western ranges.

8. Fire suppression.—Provision is made for fighting fire on or threatening public lands under the Bureau's jurisdiction. The request for 1954 is based on the average cost of fighting fires over a 5-year period.

9. Maintenance of physical facilities.—Provision is made for the care and preservation of the Bureau's equipment shelters and storehouses.

10. Weed control.—The poisonous weed halogeton is a serious threat to livestock and has spread over 1 million acres of public lands and 650,000 acres of intermingled and adjacent State and private lands. The control program is conducted cooperatively with other agencies. Two hundred and twenty-five thousand acres have been treated since the inception of the program in fiscal year 1952. The program for 1954 will treat 125,000 acres.

11. General administration.—In addition to normal administrative services, provision is made for the collection and distribution of receipts estimated to total over $75 million in fiscal year 1954.

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The responsibility of the United States toward the Indian people and the natives of Alaska includes protection and development of trust property and the furnishing of services not otherwise available to Indians and which are normally provided other citizens through Government and private agencies. States and counties are participating at an increasing rate in the service programs usually with financing by the United States demanded because of the tax-exempt status of Indian lands. Active programs are being aimed toward increased Indian participation in property management. The ultimate goal of the entire program is to have the Indian people and the natives of Alaska assume responsibility for their own affairs and take their proper place in the social and economic life of the Nation.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Bureau's work under this appropriation is to promote health, education, and welfare among Indians in the continental United States and among the natives of Alaska.

1. Hospitals, disease preventive and curative services.—In addition to the operation of 62 hospitals, sanatoriums, and medical centers with a total of 4,450 beds, preventive and curative health services are provided by medical personnel working among the Indians.

2. Educational assistance, facilities, and services.—Financial assistance is extended to public schools enrolling Indian children under State and district contracts; and where such facilities are inadequate or nonexistent, the Bureau operates boarding and day schools.

3. Welfare and guidance services.—Welfare services, including direct relief and boarding home care, are provided for needy Indians, children and adults.

4. Placement services.—Through the development of job opportunities for Indians, this program stimulates movement of Indians from reservations and other areas which are overpopulated in terms of available resources, thereby promoting the integration of Indians with the general population. Upon evaluation of their skills, Indians are encouraged to leave the reservation for employment elsewhere; they are given financial assistance to reach and to get settled at the new location, and they are assisted through use of community resources in adjusting to life in the new community. The facilities of the State and Federal employment services are used in actual job placement. The program proposed for 1954 also includes adult vocational training.

5. Maintaining law and order.—Police services and tribal court operations are financed on Indian reservations, and special officers direct enforcement of Federal law.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This program promotes the economic advancement of the Indians through the utilization of their resources.

1. Forest and range lands.—This covers management, protection, and utilization of Indian forest, range, and wildlife resources on nearly 50 million acres.

	1952 actual	1953 estimate	1954 estimate
Timber cut:
Million board feet.....	586	590	635

Number of cattle units grazed.....	975,000	975,000	975,000

2. Fire suppression.—This is to fight fires on or threatening Indian reservations.

3. Agricultural and industrial assistance.—Improved methods in farming, homemaking, and the use of credit for agricultural and small-business enterprises are taught Indians to enable them to improve their economic condition through their own efforts.

4. Soil and moisture conservation.—Land-use practices based on land inventories and soil-conservation plans are introduced to control erosion and promote more effective utilization of soil and water resources. Approximately 31 million acres, or 55 percent of Indian-owned lands, are severely or critically eroded. The job of soil and moisture conservation is 10.8 percent completed.

5. Operation, repair, and maintenance of Indian irrigation systems.—Approximately 300 irrigation systems serving about 840,000 acres of Indian and mixed-ownership lands are operated and maintained. About 70 percent of the cost is financed from collections from water users.

6. Repair and maintenance of roads and trails.—Over 20,000 miles of roads serving isolated Indian areas are maintained where local road maintenance usually does not exist.

7. Development of Indian arts and crafts.—Production and marketing of the products of Indian crafts are fostered through formation of production groups; establishing standards; and improving markets, design, and production methods.

8. Management of Indian trust property.—Banking services are provided for Indians; land is purchased, sold, and leased; estates are probated; and Indian property and money rights are safeguarded.

9. Repair and maintenance of buildings and utilities.—Buildings and their related utility and communication systems are maintained.

10. Weed control.—This is a program for the control and eradication of the poisonous weed halogeton.

BUREAU OF RECLAMATION

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The Bureau plans, constructs, and operates facilities to irrigate lands, furnish domestic water supplies, and develop related hydroelectric power and flood control in the 17 Western States. Activities in Alaska include water resources investigations, as well as construction, on the Eklutna power project.

Appropriations to the Bureau are made from the general fund and from three special funds. The special funds are (a) the reclamation fund, largely derived from certain irrigation and power revenues; receipts from the sale, lease, and rental of public lands; and certain oil and mineral revenues; (b) the Colorado River dam fund, derived from the revenues of the Boulder Canyon project; and (c) the Colorado River development fund, derived from transfers of money from the Colorado River dam fund. The estimates of appropriation for the budget year are summarized by source, as follows:

Annual appropriation title	Estimate of appropriation	General fund	Reclamation fund	Colorado River dam fund	Colorado River development fund
General investigations.....	$6,250,000	$430,000	$5,320,000		$500,000
Construction and rehabilitation.....	193,888,000	65,448,497	128,439,503
Operation and maintenance.....	24,800,000	3,205,000	19,415,290	2,179,710
General administrative expenses.....	5,250,000		5,250,000
Emergency fund.....	1,000,000		1,000,000
Total.....	231,188,000	69,083,497	159,424,793	2,179,710	500,000

The total appropriation request amounts to $231,188,000. This represents an increase of $24,740,009, compared with the appropriation for current fiscal year, and a decrease of $3,220,522, compared with the preceding fiscal year.

For carrying out the functions of the Bureau of Reclamation as provided in the Federal reclamation laws (Act of June 17, 1902, 32 Stat. 388, and Acts amendatory thereof or supplementary thereto) and other Acts applicable to that Bureau, as follows:

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Surveys and investigations are made to determine the feasibility of potential reclamation projects, detailed plans are developed for authorized projects prior to appropriation of construction funds, and investigations are made for rehabilitation of existing Federal reclamation projects. Total investigations scheduled, excluding a number of investigations for which stream gaging only is in progress, are as follows:

Status	1952 actual	1953 estimate	1954 estimate
Completed.....	45	48	36

The appropriation request for this activity amounts to $6,250,000, an increase of $2,250,000, which will be used primarily to accelerate advance planning activities on authorized projects.

1. Engineering and economic investigations.—These are made to plan the development of river basins, to make feasibility investigations of potential projects prior to authorization, and to make general engineering and research studies of reclamation problems either independently or in cooperation with local, State, and other Federal agencies. Included in this activity is the continued participation in the cooperative Arkansas-White and Red River basins survey.

2. Advance planning.—Detailed field data are collected, definite plans are prepared, and repayment plans are completed for authorized projects prior to obtaining appropriations for construction.

3. Investigations of existing projects.—These are made to determine the need and make plans for rehabilitation, financial adjustments, or water conservation on existing Federal reclamation projects.

4. Alaskan investigations.—These are engineering and economic investigations relating to projects for the development and utilization of the water resources of Alaska.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The work consists of collection of preconstruction data and preparation of designs and specifications for Missouri River Basin units and for all projects subsequent to initial allocation for construction, award and servicing of construction contracts, construction of authorized projects, operation and maintenance during construction of completed features of projects, and rehabilitation of existing facilities.

The appropriation requested for this program amounts to $193,888,000. This represents an increase of $16,090,009 compared with the current fiscal year and a decrease of $14,164,725 compared with the preceding fiscal year. The increase over the current fiscal year is principally for 3 new construction starts in 1954 and additional requirements for 10 projects started in 1953.

Detailed information schedules are included under this appropriation showing the actual funds by project and activity which were unobligated at the end of fiscal year 1952 and the application of those funds by project and activity in the current fiscal year. While unobligated balances in varying amounts annually are inevitable in the prosecution of a large construction program of this character, they do not represent changes in program goals.

Provision is made in the appropriation language limiting the use of funds for the Eklutna project to amounts now or hereafter authorized to be appropriated.

1-54. Construction.—Sixty-three authorized projects, including 21 Missouri River Basin units, will be in the functionally complete and continuing groups in 1954. Of these groups, three projects and three units will be inactive. The present status of this program is as follows:

Status	Number of projects		Estimated obligations based on fiscal year 1954 program (in millions)

Construction activities will be continued on 29 projects and 14 units of the Missouri River Basin project to substantially complete 7 of these entities. Drainage and minor completion activities will also be carried on for 10 projects and 4 Missouri River Basin units which are functionally complete but which require a relatively minor amount of clean-up work. Work will be commenced on the American Falls power division of the Minidoka project, the Deer Creek power plant of the Provo River project, and the Roza power plant of the Yakima project. Bureau operations during 1954 will provide facilities for 313,300 additional acres of irrigated land and 207,500 kilowatts of new power-generating capacity. This program is to be financed by $191,388,000 of new construction appropriation and $11,323,647 from estimated balances from prior year funds and contributions. Of the new appropriation, 78 percent will be used to finance the work on six major projects and on the units of the Missouri River Basin in the construction stage as shown on the following table:

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Provision is made for operation and maintenance of (a) the power generating and transmission facilities of completed projects (except the Fort Peck transmission system financed under a revolving fund) and the irrigation and water supply facilities on certain projects; (b) the Lower Colorado River front and levee system; and (c) Boulder City, Nev. Provision is also made for soil and moisture conservation operations on public lands under jurisdiction of the Bureau, and for an allocation to the Department of Agriculture to give assistance to farmers in reclamation areas.

The Bureau operates and maintains the power generation and transmission facilities, and generally the storage dams and reservoirs, of completed projects. Where necessary, the irrigation works are also operated and maintained until the water users are able to undertake the responsibilities. The power facilities of 16 projects, and irrigation and municipal and industrial water supply facilities of 33 projects, and 10 units of the Missouri River Basin project will be operated and maintained in fiscal year 1954. Energy sales and revenues from power operations are as follows:

Fiscal year	Kilowatt-hours of energy (millions)	Revenue
1952	25,271	$41,768,774
1953	24,557	46,792,000
1954	25,412	50,710,000

Surplus power is sold to wholesale customers such as municipalities, Rural Electrification Administration co-operatives, private utilities, and other Government agencies.

During fiscal year 1954, work on the lower Colorado River front and levee system will include continued surveys and investigations, dredging, maintenance of installations, and replacements and improvements of facilities.

The 1954 estimate includes $800,000 to inaugurate a program of agricultural services to farmers in reclamation areas to be performed by the Department of Agriculture under plans cooperatively developed with the Department of the Interior.

SPECIAL FUNDS

Sums herein referred to as being derived from the reclamation fund, the Colorado River dam fund, or the Colorado River development fund, are appropriated from the special funds in the Treasury created by the Act of June 17, 1902 (43 U. Such sums shall be transferred, upon request of the Secretary, to be merged with and expended under the heads herein specified; and the unexpended balances of sums transferred for expenditure under the heads "Operation and Maintenance" and "General Administrative Expenses" shall revert and be credited to the special fund from which derived.

ADMINISTRATIVE PROVISIONS

Appropriations to the Bureau of Reclamation shall be available for purchase of not to exceed [one] two hundred and fifty passenger motor vehicles for replacement only; purchase of one aircraft; not to exceed [$50,000] $100,000 for services as authorized by section 15 of the Act of August 2, 1946 (5 U. S. C. 55a), [including such services] at rates for individuals not to exceed $100 per day [ when authorized by the Secretary ]; payment of claims for damage to or loss of property, personal injury, or death arising out of activities of the Bureau of Reclamation; payment, except as otherwise provided for, of compensation and expense of persons on the rolls of the Bureau of Reclamation appointed as authorized by law to

S. C. 461-467): Provided, That no part of any appropriation made herein shall be available pursuant to the Act of April 19, 1945 (43 U. S. Allotments to the Missouri River Basin project from the appropriation under the head "Construction and Rehabilitation" shall be available additionally for said project for those functions of the Bureau of Reclamation provided for under the head "General Investigations" (but this authorization shall not preclude use of the appropriation under said head within that area), and for the continuation of investigations by agencies of the Department on a general plan for the development of the Missouri River Basin. Such allotments may be expended through or in cooperation with State and other Federal agencies, and advances to such agencies are hereby authorized.

Sums appropriated herein which are expended in the performance of reimbursable functions of the Bureau of Reclamation shall be returnable to the extent and in the manner provided by law.

[Any agency of the United States Government having title thereto is authorized to transfer to the Bureau of Reclamation, without reimbursement, parts, equipment and supplies for aircraft excess to its needs.]

No part of any appropriation for the Bureau of Reclamation, contained in this Act or in any prior Act, which represents amounts earned under the terms of a contract but remaining unpaid, shall be obligated for any other purpose, regardless of when such amounts are to be paid: Provided, That the incurring of any obligation prohibited by this paragraph shall be deemed a violation of section 665 of title 31 of the United States Code.

No funds appropriated to the Bureau of Reclamation for operation and maintenance, except those derived from advances by water users, shall be used for the particular benefit of lands (a) within the boundaries of an irrigation district, (b) of any member of a water users' organization, or (c) of any individual, when such district, organization, or individual is in arrears for more than twelve months in the payment of charges due under a contract entered into with the United States pursuant to laws administered by the Bureau of Reclamation.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Geological Survey performs topographic and geologic surveys and mapping, minerals and mineral-fuels studies, water-resources determinations, and classification of the public lands for mineral and water-power potential. In addition, drilling and mining operations on Federal and Indian lands are supervised.

1. Topographic surveys and mapping.—Topographic maps provide basic information on the natural and man-made features of the earth's surface that is essential to (a) the national defense, (b) engineering development programs, (c) geologic investigations, and (d) the effective utilization of public works. Such maps are extensively used by Government agencies, industry, and the public. For 1954, engineering and general-purpose maps for an estimated 106,000 square miles of the United States and Alaska will be compiled, compared with 95,000 in 1952 and 88,000 in 1953. More than two-thirds of the total area of the United States and Alaska remains to be adequately mapped. The program proposed for 1954 will provide for the mapping of about one twenty-fifth of the 2½ million square miles that still remain to be mapped.

2. Geologic and mineral-resource surveys and mapping.—Investigations are directed toward (a) providing an accurate appraisal of the Nation's mineral resources, (b) scientific exploration for additional sources of essential minerals, and (c) developing basic data on terrain and foundation conditions. The program is accomplished by systematic geologic mapping aided by special investigations in supporting sciences, such as geophysics, geochemistry, petrology, and paleontology. Significant contributions to the discovery of mineral resources have been made through development of geophysical and geochemical techniques of exploration. Increases in 1954 provide for acceleration of all major aspects of the program, as follows: (1) Strengthening some current studies and initiating several new studies of mineral districts which hold high promise of adding to our known resources of the most critical and strategic minerals; (2) increasing the investigations of mineral fuels, with emphasis continuing on potential petroleum-bearing regions; (3) considerable expansion of general-service geologic mapping in support of industrial and other land-use activities.

3. Water-resources investigations.—Surface and underground water supplies are investigated to provide information essential in planning (a) water-supply projects for military, industrial, and domestic expansion, irrigation, hydroelectric power, and navigation; and (b) flood control, highway and bridge design, and land-use projects. The program includes determinations of the flow, stage, and sediment discharge of rivers; reservoir contents; locations and safe yields of underground waters; the chemical quality and temperature of waters; and the availability of water supplies within special areas as related to present and future demands. Techniques developed in the science of ground-water hydrology also furnish valuable aids in locating petroleum and mineral deposits. The 1954 program will provide increased coverage in (a) areas of actual or potential water shortage, such as in the Southwest, the Columbia River Basin, and industrial and military areas; and (b) the interpretation and recompilation of older water records to provide a better working knowledge of water resources.

4. Soil and moisture conservation.—Hydrologic and geologic information is furnished the land-management bureaus in connection with the planning, surveys, and investigations preliminary to taking measures for soil and moisture conservation on land under the jurisdiction of the Department of the Interior. Increased funds in 1954 will finance additional investigations on urgent problems of water supply, soil, and erosion.

5. Classification of lands.—Federal and Indian lands are classified according to their mineral and water-power resources. Such classification provides the foundation of the system of public-land administration prescribed by the various mineral leasing laws. Owing to the unprecedented rate of development of this Nation's oil and gas resources, there has been a remarkable annual increase in the workload borne by this activity. Increased funds included for 1954 will provide an operating staff only 35 percent larger than it was during 1951 to handle a workload that has increased 130 percent since that time.

6. Supervision of mining and oil and gas leases.—Prospecting, development, and production of minerals on leased Federal and Indian lands are supervised. Since 1946, the number of leased properties and producing mines and wells has increased fourfold, the value of minerals produced has increased from $178 million to $475 million, and royalties earned have risen from $15.1 million to $44 million. Thirty-seven percent of the royalties go to the States where the minerals are produced, 52½ percent goes to the Reclamation Fund, and 10 percent is retained in the Treasury. Increased funds for 1954 will provide an operating staff about 45 percent greater than in 1951 to handle a workload that is estimated at 100 percent greater.

7. General administration.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Provision is made for conserving, evaluating, and developing mineral resources.

1. Fuels—(a) Coal.—Scientific research and engineering investigations and tests are carried out on the chemical and physical properties of coal and its mining, preparation, combustion, carbonization, and gasification. Coal samples are analyzed; a fuel economy service is performed for Government agencies; coking coal reserves are estimated; efficiency of coal-mining methods is evaluated; methods for the removal of underground water in anthracite mines and for improving the mechanized mining of anthracite are studied; economic and statistical studies are performed.

(b) Petroleum and natural gas.—Seven projects are carried on: (1) Engineering research on problems connected with the development and production of petroleum and natural gas; (2) scientific and technologic research on secondary recovery methods in producing petroleum; (3) studies of transportation and storage problems; (4) studies involving the chemistry and refining of petroleum and natural gas; (5) fundamental research to determine the thermodynamic properties of hydrocarbons; (6) statistical and economic studies of petroleum and natural gas; and (7) maintenance of buildings and research facilities.

(c) Synthetic liquid fuels.—Laboratory research is conducted and demonstration plants are operated for the production of synthetic liquid fuels from coal, oil shale, and agricultural and forest products. The primary objective is to conserve and increase the liquid fuel resources of the Nation by the direct hydrogenation of coal, by the production and hydrogenation of synthesis gas from coal, by mining and retorting oil shale and refining shale oil, and by the underground gasification of coal.

(d) Helium.—Scientific and technologic research is carried on in resources, production, storage, and utilization of helium.

2. Minerals and metals.—Investigations and research are conducted to improve mining technology, examine ore deposits, discover metallurgical processes to make better use of low-grade ores, develop substitutes for scarce commodities, and statistical and economic information are analyzed and disseminated.

3. Control of fires in inactive coal deposits.—Fires in inactive or abandoned deposits on public lands or private property are controlled or extinguished.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Provision is made for (1) investigations of accidents and rescue work in disasters affecting the mineral industries, (2) coal-mine inspections and investigations, and (3) testing and research of explosives and explosions.

1. Investigation of accidents and rescue work.—The Bureau encourages accident prevention through education and safety organizations, exhibits, and demonstrations; gives instruction in accident prevention and first-aid and mine-rescue methods; investigates explosions, fires, and other serious accidents in mines and mineral industry plants; investigates and develops safety devices for the mineral industries; conducts research on the support of mine roofs, tests equipment for use in mines and plants where explosive atmospheres may be encountered; and performs field and laboratory studies of ventilation of mines, methods of allaying mineral dusts, prevention of dust accumulations, effective use of rock dust to prevent widespread coal-dust explosions, and blasting practices.

2. Mine inspections and investigations.—Public Law 552, 82d Congress, increased the inspection load of this Bureau by requiring inspection of all underground coal mines employing more than 14 men at least once annually, and to take action to correct hazards observed. The increase for 1954 will provide the necessary inspectors and supporting personnel to carry out the provisions of this act. A supplemental of $525,000 is anticipated for 1953 for this same purpose.

3. Explosives and explosions testing and research.—Research is conducted to discover causes of explosions in coal mines and to improve methods of preventing explosions. Tests are conducted on explosives and blasting devices to determine their permissibility for use in coal mines or their suitability for use in other mining operations and the conditions under which they can be used safely.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The proposed increase for 1954 results mainly from the need to meet increased visitor load in the national parks.

1. Management of park and other areas.—The 178 park and other areas comprise about 24 million acres located in 38 States, the District of Columbia, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands. Actual and estimated visitors and revenue receipts are as follows:

	1951 actual	1952 actual	1953 estimate	1954 estimate
Visitors	36,708,494	41,516,664	45,000,000	50,000,000
Receipts	$3,554,817	$3,568,094	$3,860,000	$4,210,000

2. Forestry and fire control.—Forests, brushland, or grassland on over 10 million acres are protected from fire, destructive insects, diseases, and other preventable damage.

3. Soil and moisture conservation.—The 1954 program is directed toward corrective measures on 22 of 70 selected problem areas.

4. Park and recreation programs.—Studies are made of the park, parkway, and recreational potentialities of the United States and its Territories, frequently in cooperation with Federal, State, and local agencies; historic remains and archaeological sites threatened with destruction are surveyed and important remains salvaged; and investigations are made to determine whether agencies receiving surplus Federal real property with a recreational potential are utilizing those properties in conformity with terms of the transfer agreements.

5. Concessions management.—There are 162 major concessionaires operating in parks and other areas. Contracts are negotiated, or permits issued; rates are established; services to be rendered are determined; and records are audited.

4. Acquisition of lands and water rights.— Approximately 458,000 acres of privately owned lands standing in the way of logical developments and public use are located within the areas administered. Rights to water must be obtained, frequently by purchase, in many of the areas for use of visitors and employees, and for fire protection.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Administration of fish and game laws.—These laws apply to the fisheries and game of Alaska, the protection of migratory birds and certain game mammals, the interstate transportation of fish in violation of law, and the enforcement of international agreements. During 1954 more extensive regulation of the interstate shipment of fish will be undertaken in conformance with Public Law 569, approved July 16, 1952.

2. Propagation and distribution of food fishes.—Ninety-seven stations are operated to produce fish and eggs for the propagation of commercial food and game fishes. Fish screens and other protective devices are maintained on Federal areas in the West. The increase proposed for 1954 is mainly for the operation of new and expanded facilities, general maintenance of stations, and replacement of equipment.

3. Mammal and bird reservations.—Two hundred and seventy-two refuges, consisting of more than 17,000,000 acres, are operated for the conservation of migratory waterfowl and for the preservation and propagation of rare birds and mammals. The increase proposed for 1954 is principally for the replacement of worn-out equipment.

4. River basin studies.—To insure that adequate measures are taken for the conservation and development of fish and wildlife, studies are made of proposed Federal power, navigation, irrigation, and drainage projects. The increase proposed for 1954 is to expand these studies in the Rogue River Basin, and in the New England-New York area, and for surveys of proposed drainage projects.

5. Control of predatory animals and injurious rodents.—Such control is exercised on public lands. Technical information and correlation and supervision of cooperative programs are provided to protect livestock, game, poultry, forage, crops, forests, structures, foods, and feeds from destruction by harmful animals.

6. Soil and moisture conservation.—Nearly 5.5 million acres in 63 refuges within the continental United States are critically eroded or severely depleted. A long-range program for developing a conservation plan for each of these refuges has been initiated. Work is now being done on 25 refuges, and it is proposed to start operations on a limited scale on 13 additional refuges in fiscal year 1954.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Research on fish and fisheries.—Research is conducted (a) to learn more about variations in abundance of important food fishes and other aquatic animals; (b) to discover declining species and better measures for conserving, developing, and managing the fishery resources; and (c) to improve the cultivation of aquatic animals, including shellfish. Studies on methods of controlling sea lampreys in the Great Lakes are estimated to reach completion in 1953, resulting in a decrease offset in part by increases for studies of fish diseases, improvements in fishery-management methods, and for the full-time operation of the Willard, Wash., laboratory.

2. Exploration, development, and utilization of fishery resources.—Services of benefit to the commercial fishing industry include: (a) Exploring for fish and improving fishing gear and methods; (b) developing and demonstrating more efficient means of handling, processing, storing, and marketing fishery products; (c) compiling and publishing commercial fishery statistics, including operation of seven market news offices; and (d) collecting and disseminating economic data on the industry, including business trends and foreign trade. The increase requested for 1954 will be used principally to meet increased costs of operations.

3. Research on birds and mammals.—Research is carried on in migratory wildlife and wildlife management and conservation practices. In addition, wildlife research units are maintained in cooperation with States and universities to give technical training in wildlife management, carry on research, and demonstrate improved management practices. The increase requested for 1954 will be used principally to study causes of wildlife depletion and to cover increased costs of operation of cooperative wildlife research units.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands is administered under Executive Order 10265 in accordance with a trusteeship agreement between the United States and the United Nations approved by the President under authority granted by Congress (Public Law 204, approved July 18, 1947). The Department of the Interior has proposed organic legislation to the Congress. Under the agreement the United States exercises full administrative, judicial, and legislative authority over the territory and has undertaken obligations to promote the educational, economic, and political advancement of the people. The territory extends over 3,000,000 square miles of ocean, and consists of 91 island units with a land area of 526 square miles. The population of about 50,000 is distributed among the following five districts: Yap, 3,500; Koror, 8,700; Truk, 15,800; Ponape, 11,200; Majuro, 11,100. The Saipan district was transferred to the Navy pursuant to Executive Order 10408 as of January 1, 1953. The estimates for 1954 have been reduced accordingly.

1. High Commissioner's office.—Provision is made for the immediate office of the High Commissioner and his deputy.

2. Judiciary.—Provision is made for the Court of Appeals and the high courts of the Trust Territory.

3. Grants.—Grants are required in addition to local revenues for health, education, and other services as well as for the cost of maintaining and providing the necessary facilities of the government of the territory. The costs of government are distributed as follows:

(a) Health, education, and other services.—The government of the territory operates 5 hospitals with a total of 304 beds. There are 131 public elementary and 5 intermediate schools as well as a small central high school on Truk. Total public-school enrollment for 1952 was 5,611. The government is assisting in the development of island resources and encourages the people in their efforts in the direction of self-government and also provides for the public safety and other customary services.

(b) Operation and maintenance.—The physical plant of the government, such as power plants, docks, warehouses, quarters, trucks, and other equipment, requires abnormally costly maintenance because of their dilapidated condition and the tropical climate.

(c) Transportation services.—At present, one 4,800-ton and six 250-ton transport vessels, two small sailing schooners, and four PBY-type airplanes are operated under contract to provide for the transportation of supplies, copra exports, trade goods, and passengers throughout the territory. By 1954 it is planned, as an economy measure, to acquire another 4,800-ton vessel from surplus, thus permitting direct shipment between districts and outside markets, and eliminating transshipment costs at Guam, and to substitute schooners for the 250-ton transports.

(d) Construction.—It is essential that the temporary plant installed by the Navy during World War II be replaced immediately. The 1954 estimate is the first step in a 5-year program, and includes $112,500 for schools and hospitals, $306,000 for power plants, $216,000 for refrigeration plants, $576,000 for family quarters, $614,500 for other utilities and fixed equipment, and $2,000,000 for the construction of a headquarters on Dublon Island in Truk district.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The highway system of Alaska is being extended and improved to meet the increasing military and civilian needs.

1. Preparation of plans.—Surveys are made and plans prepared for the construction of new roads and the improvement of existing roads in advance of congressional authorizations.

2. Construction in progress.—The 1954 program projects (a) the improvement of approximately 20 miles of the Taylor Highway; (b) preparation for paving of approximately 42 miles and the paving of approximately 58 miles of the Richardson Highway; (c) preparation for paving of approximately 47 miles and the paving of approximately 56.4 miles of the Alaska Highway; (d) extension of the Richardson Highway-McKinley Park Road approximately 25 miles; (e) preparation for paving of approximately 11 miles and surfacing of approximately 70 miles of the Glenn Highway; and (f) an extension of approximately 27 miles of the Cordova-Richardson Highway.

3. Reconstruction.—Improvements will be continued on existing roads and bridges to bring them to accepted standards, to meet conditions imposed by increasing traffic, and to eliminate hazardous conditions.

4. New construction.—It is proposed to begin work on the construction of an alternate through route of the Seward-Anchorage Highway approximately 6 miles in length to bypass Anchorage on the route to Elmendorf Air Base and Fort Richardson, and to construct a road of approximately 20 miles in length between Kasilof, Kenai, and the Sterling Highway.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund, established in 1936, is used to assist Indians in acquiring livestock, farm, and other equipment and in establishing tribal enterprises (25 U. S. C. 470, 471; 64 Stat. 44). This fund and miscellaneous tribal funds provide the only source of loans for the great majority of Indians who cannot borrow from banks on personal notes or chattel mortgages and cannot obtain loans from other credit sources because of the restricted nature of their property. The principal of the fund consists of appropriations from the United States Treasury and cattle settlements. Cattle settlements are payments by the Indians for breeding stock furnished by the Government prior to establishment of this fund. As of June 30, 1953, the principal will consist of $13,799,600 in appropriations and an estimated $652,142 in cattle settlements for a total of $14,451,742.

Loans made in fiscal year 1952 totaled $2,463,754. It is expected that $3,445,065 will be loaned in 1953 and $3,740,000 in 1954. Funds provided by operations totaled $1,555,382 in 1952 and are estimated at $1,940,000 in 1954. Operations in 1954 will thus result in budgetary expenditures of $1,800,000. An appropriation of $1,000,000 is proposed for 1954 to provide additional working capital for the increasing volume of loans.

The fund accumulated a deficit in the early years of operation when interest income was small. This deficit was $740,005 as of June 30, 1952, and is expected to be reduced to $580,005 by June 30, 1954.

BUREAU OF RECLAMATION

Continuing Fund for Emergency Expenses, Fort Peck Project, Montana—

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund is used to defray the operating expenses of generation and transmission of power from Fort Peck project, Corps of Engineers, and to defray emergency expenses to insure continuous operation (16 U. S. C. 833). It receives revenues from the sale of electric energy. Receipts in excess of current operating needs may be retained so as to maintain a continuing emergency fund of $500,000. The balance is paid into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts to cover amortization and interest on the cost of the dam, reservoir, and power plant allocated to power and of transmission. Such payments totaled $1,859,543 in 1952 and are estimated at $1,295,013 in 1953 and $1,214,300 in 1954.

The operations of the Fort Peck project power and transmission facilities are financed by this fund and capital outlays for transmission by the appropriation "Construction and rehabilitation, Bureau of Reclamation." Capital outlays for the dam, reservoir, and power plant are financed by Corps of Engineers appropriations. The following statements consolidate the financing from the "Continuing fund for emergency expenses, Fort Peck project, Montana" and "Construction and rehabilitation, Bureau of Reclamation."

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund is used for the production of helium, primarily for the Army, Navy, Air Force, and the Atomic Energy Commission, who reimburse the fund for products received. Sales are also made to authorized non-Federal consumers for medical, scientific, and commercial use (50 U. S. C. 164). As of June 30, 1952, the net capital consisted of net appropriations of $11,565,880 ($17,971,969 appropriated less $6,406,089 in write-offs and disposals), plus $40,142 in donated capital. An accumulated deficit of $670,344 as of June 30, 1952, is expected to be reduced to $411,144 by June 30, 1954.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAMS

The operations of the railroad are set out in four groups:

1. Rail line operation.—This consists of operation of the railroad in handling of freight and passenger traffic. Funds applied to expenses for both 1953 and 1954 are estimated to be $20,400,000. Based on present estimates, some construction traffic will decrease while coal shipments will increase.

Funds applied to acquisition of assets during 1954 are mainly for the reconstruction of the Seward-Portage Line and additional rolling stock, estimated at $17,011,000.

Appropriations are requested in 1954 for additional rolling stock principally to meet increased military demand for coal in the amount of $2,719,000 and for reconstruction of the Seward-Portage Line as follows:

Roadway and track.....	$6,240,000
Bridges, trestles, culverts, and tunnels.....	1,828,000
Roadway buildings.....	156,000
Shop and engine-house facilities.....	712,000
Seward dock.....	4,498,000
Seward yard facilities.....	48,000
Communications.....	110,000
	13,592,000

2. River boat operations.—This consists of handling freight traffic on the Tanana and Yukon Rivers by river boats and barge service. Funds applied to expenses for 1954 are estimated to be $185,000 compared with $251,000 for 1953. The decrease is due to replacement of old floating equipment with attendant reduction in maintenance costs.

Funds applied to acquisition of assets during 1954 are estimated at $500,000 consisting of improvements in the dock and marine ways.

3. Hotels and mess operations.—These include the hotels, messhouses, and work crews' messes. Funds applied to expenses for 1954 are estimated to be $520,000 compared with $1,000,000 for 1953. The decrease results primarily from reduced operations due to leasing of facilities to private operators.

No funds will be applied to acquisition of assets during 1954.

FINANCING OPERATIONS

An appropriation of $16,311,000 is requested for 1954 for capital programs as indicated above under "Rail line operations."

OPERATING RESULTS AND RETAINED EARNINGS

A net loss of $792,708 occurred in 1952. A net loss of $300,000 is estimated for 1953 and $40,000 for 1954. All operations except the hotel and mess operations are expected to break even in 1954, and the loss on that operation is expected to be reduced to $140,000 as compared with $598,951 in 1952 and $321,000 in 1953. The total deficit of $13,331,383 as of June 30, 1952, will increase to $13,671,383 as of June 30, 1954.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Puerto Rico Reconstruction Administration, established in 1935 to increase employment by useful projects, is financed from the Puerto Rico revolving fund, established by Congress in 1936, and derives its income largely from rentals, collections on loans and mortgages, and lease and purchase contracts (49 Stat. 1135).

1. Housing management.—This covers four urban developments with a total of 833 family units, 6,752 rural houses, and 3,342 small rural parcels without houses.

2. Operation and maintenance, Castaner farm.—This project was established to promote a reconstruction program of the coffee industry by demonstrating that a large coffee plantation can be made self-sustaining by proper land utilization, soil conservation, and crop diversification.

3. Servicing of cooperatives.—The cooperative program is in the process of liquidation. Out of eight cooperatives financed by Puerto Rico Reconstruction Administration four have already been liquidated and the liquidation of another will be commenced in fiscal 1954.

4. Repairs and replacements to buildings.—Houses built on parcels of Puerto Rico Reconstruction Administration land are restored to a liveable and healthful condition before they are offered for sale.

5. Seeds and fertilizers.

6. Dismantling and removal of office buildings.

7. Administration.

BUSINESS-TYPE STATEMENTS

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION

The Corporation was created by the act of June 30, 1949 (63 Stat. 350), to promote the economic development of the Virgin Islands. Appropriations not to exceed $9,000,000 were authorized to be made to a revolving fund in the Treasury, based upon annual budgets submitted by the Corporation. The appropriation of additional funds as grants to finance specific programs not primarily of a revenue-producing character and to reimburse the Corporation for operating losses is also authorized.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAMS

1. Loan program.--Loans are made (a) to aid farmers in agricultural diversification and to improve livestock production; (b) to aid business enterprises with any commercial or industrial undertaking or activity in the Virgin Islands when such loans are not available from other Federal or private sources.

2. Sales and rentals program.--The main activity of the Corporation is the growing of sugarcane and the production and sale of sugar, including assistance to farmers in the form of rental of agricultural equipment and sale of seed, fertilizer, and other materials used in the cultivation of sugarcane.

3. Power program.--It is proposed in 1954 to provide additional generating facilities required to relieve the present overloaded system on St. Croix and also for expansion and rehabilitation of the distribution lines of St. Croix and St. Thomas to service approximately 290 new consumers.

4. Nonrevenue producing activities.--These include continuation of water and soil conservation practices, promotion and development of tourism, and clearing land of underbrush for planting with mahogany and other tropical hardwoods.

5. Administrative expenses.--It is proposed that for 1954 the Corporation operate under a limitation for administrative expenses of $130,000.

FINANCING OPERATIONS

In 1952 repayment of $364,357 was made to the Rural Electrification Administration representing liquidation of all outstanding loans with that agency.

No appropriation was requested in 1952 to cover estimated losses as it was anticipated that the excess of the amount appropriated in 1951 over actual losses was considered adequate for this purpose. This proved contrary therefore, an appropriation of $987,925 to cover 1952 and estimated 1954 losses is requested. An appropriation of $111,000 was received in 1953 for operating losses.

An appropriation of $130,000 was received in 1953 to finance nonrevenue producing activities, and $182,075 is requested in 1954.

The revenue-producing operations of the Corporation are financed from the revolving fund, which is authorized at not to exceed $9,000,000. Through 1953 there has been appropriated to the revolving fund $5,360,000 of which

$2,595,000 was for 1952 and $1,515,000 for 1953. The appropriation requested in 1954 is $1,375,000, of which $1,050,000 is for the power program and $325,000 for the sales and rentals program, which mainly consists of the production and sale of sugar and assistance to farmers.

OPERATING RESULTS AND RETAINED EARNINGS

The Corporation operated at a net loss of $592,679 for 1952, and the losses for 1953 and 1954 are estimated at $491,700 and $400,000, respectively. The loss for 1952 was attributable mainly to (1) excessive costs of growing sugarcane; (2) a too low United States sugar quota which forced the Corporation to sell nearly half of its sugar in the world market at prices substantially below United States prices; (3) a drop in sugar yield due to unusually heavy rainfall during the grinding season; and (4) lack of adequate storage space which forced the Corporation to make early sales at low market prices. No appropriation was previously requested to cover 1952 losses. The estimated total deficit of $465,244 will not be covered by an appropriation request at this time.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Government is represented in each of the 94 judicial districts by a United States attorney and a United States marshal. The United States attorney is responsible for the Government's legal interests in his district. The marshal has custody of all Federal offenders until released by the courts or confined in prison. He also acts as agent of the court in the service of process.

Workload in both these offices has shown a steady increase over the past few years and there is no indication that this trend will be reversed. The increase provides for additional staff and related costs to meet the current situation.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Federal Bureau of Investigation, as the investigative arm of the Department of Justice, obtains evidence for use in civil litigation and prosecution of violations of Federal law. By statute and Executive order it is also charged with primary responsibility in matters related to the Nation's internal security.

The $77,000,000 appropriation estimate for the fiscal year 1954 represents an increase of $6,746,000 compared with 1953. Of the total increase, $550,000 is due to the proposed relocation of Quantico Firearms Range facilities. The remainder of the increase is due almost exclusively to augmented investigative commitments in the internal security field.

1. Security and criminal investigations.—In addition to conducting investigations and maintaining appropriate records and communications systems, the Bureau coordinates and supervises broad investigative programs. Interchange of information is maintained with other agencies, particularly in operations affecting internal security. During the fiscal year 1952, 835,000 investigative matters were referred to the Bureau.

2. Identification by fingerprints.—The Identification Division provides a national repository of identification data based on fingerprint records. Criminal records, including fingerprints, are acquired, classified, preserved, and exchanged with other duly authorized law-enforcement agencies. At the close of the fiscal year 1952, fingerprint records on file numbered 124,464,172.

3. Operation of criminal and scientific laboratory.—The services of the Laboratory are made available without charge to all regularly established police departments. Examinations conducted during the fiscal year 1952 totaled 109,733, of which approximately 18 percent were performed for other law-enforcement agencies. In 1954, an increase of 6 percent over 1952 is anticipated.

4. Training schools and inspectional services.—The Bureau conducts instructional courses for its personnel and that of other law-enforcement agencies. The instruction embodies a comprehensive program designed to improve all aspects of law-enforcement activities, including management, administration, efficiency, and investigative techniques.

5. Emergencies in connection with kidnaping and bank robbery.—A fund of $100,000 is regularly included in this appropriation, to be held in reserve until released by the Attorney General in emergencies relating to kidnaping, extortion, or bank robbery.

6. Executive direction.

7. Administrative services.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Custody, care, and treatment of prisoners in Federal institutions.—The program for 1954 contemplates an average inmate population of 17,800, an increase of 300 over the number appropriated for in 1953. The increase in funds required is due to the larger workload and to bring the appropriated funds up to the level of actual costs in 1952. Funds required under this activity, exclusive of salaries, are in direct relation to the average inmate population and are based on a cost per inmate per day of 72.5 cents in 1954 as compared with actual costs of 72.4 cents in 1952.

2. Maintenance and operation of institutions.—There are 25 regular institutions operated throughout the United States (6 penitentiaries, 3 reformatories, 1 institution for women, 1 medical center, 3 juvenile institutions, 7 correctional institutions, 1 jail and 3 camps). In addition, 6 standby camps have been activated under the provisions of the Internal Security Act. The present normal inmate capacity for the 25 institutions is 18,160. Deferred maintenance needs and increased costs are reflected in the estimates.

3. Support of United States prisoners in Alaska.—This covers maintenance and operation of Federal jails and support of prisoners in non-Federal jails in Alaska.

4. Central supervision of field operations.—Supervision of institutional program activities and inspection of non-Federal jails for suitability for Federal use are provided centrally.

5. Medical services (allocation to Public Health Service).—Personnel detailed from the Public Health Service furnish medical care to prisoners.

6. Executive direction.

7. Departmental administrative service.

PURPOSE AND ORGANIZATION

The Corporation is authorized to establish and operate industries in the penal and correctional institutions of the United States to give inmates employment and opportunities to learn a trade or occupation. The products of such industries are sold exclusively to agencies of the Federal Government. The net capital of the corporation is $19.9 million. In 1948 legislation was enacted to extend the scope of operations to military disciplinary barracks (18 U. S. C. 4122 (d)).

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAM

Twenty-five lines of industry are operated in forty-six shops in nineteen locations. Full-time inmate employment is estimated at 3,900 in fiscal year 1954 as compared with 3,750 in 1953 and actual employment of 3,770 in 1952. During fiscal year 1954, a plastics shop and an auto engine rebuilding shop will be established in the U. S. Disciplinary Barracks at Camp Cooke, Calif. Vocational training is conducted in conjunction with industrial operations. During fiscal year 1952 training was given to 12,002 inmates, and slightly larger numbers will receive training in 1953 and 1954.

The 1954 budget program proposes capital expenditures of $825,000 for buildings and improvements and $418,000 for machinery and equipment (see schedule A-1). Total expenses are estimated at $19,505,000 for fiscal year 1954 as compared with $21,036,225 in 1953 and actual expenses of $22,313,824 in 1952.

There are at present legislative limitations of $432,000 on vocational training expense and $368,000 on administrative expenses. It is proposed that these be raised to $448,000, and $377,000 respectively. Both increases are principally for carrying out the obligations created by 18 U. S. C. 4122 (d) with respect to prisoners in United States disciplinary barracks. The increase for training is primarily to provide three new employees for the shops to be opened at Camp Cooke, and the increase in administrative expense is primarily for employees to plan and supervise industrial operations to employ and train military prisoners.

FINANCING OPERATIONS

The profitable operations for 1952 resulted in a minus budgetary expenditure of $6,681,815. It is also expected that receipts will exceed expenditures by $1,961,775 during 1953 and $1,966,000 for 1954.

OPERATING RESULTS AND RETAINED EARNINGS

Income.—Sales during 1952 amounted to $29,378,393 on which a net profit of $5,206,529 was realized. Sales of $24,201,000 with net profit of $3,000,000 are estimated for 1953 and sales of $22,701,000 with a net profit of $2,816,000 are estimated for 1954. The reduction in operations results from a reduction in the requirements of the Armed Forces due to the fulfillment of their initial requirements. Operations have been reduced to a single shift on a five-day week basis.

Expenses.—Cost of sales, excluding depreciation, in 1952 amounted to $22,625,737, which is an increase of $5,466,476 over the prior year, however the percentage of cost of sales to sales was only 77.6 percent as compared with 79.8 percent in 1951. Cost of sales, excluding depreciation, for the current and budget years are estimated at $19,568,700 and $18,200,000.

Retained earnings.—Earnings of $35,337,954, since January 1, 1935, have permitted dividends of $20,400,000 to be paid into the United States Treasury and a net balance of $14,937,954 to be retained as of June 30, 1952. Retained earnings are expected to be increased to $15,353,954 by the end of fiscal year 1954. The earnings kept in the business are being used for improvement and expansion of plant.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Bureau develops and encourages the adoption of sound labor standards by designing and promoting programs aimed at the reduction of industrial accidents, serves as a clearinghouse of information, and administers the union registration functions of the Labor-Management Relations Act of 1947. An increase of $160,000 is mainly to initiate a program and develop standards for improving the condition of migratory labor.

1. Development and promotion of sound labor laws and labor practices—(a) Legislative standards and State services.—Cooperative agreements are negotiated with States, and information and advice are given on labor laws and problems.

(b) Safe working conditions.—In cooperation with State labor departments, labor organizations, and other groups, training courses are conducted for State factory safety inspectors; State agencies are assisted in planning industry-wide safety programs in especially hazardous industries; service is provided for the President's Conference on Industrial Safety; and similar work is carried on under the Federal Employees' Compensation Act and the Longshoremen's and Harbor Workers' Compensation Act.

(c) Youth employment.—Child labor and youth employment research aims to meet the needs of young workers and child labor regulations are developed under the Fair Labor Standards Act.

(d) International labor.—Work is done in preparation of reports by the Government to the International Labor Organization, and information is furnished to the States.

(e) Employment of physically handicapped.—Staff assistance is provided to the President's Committee on National-Employ-the-Physically-Handicapped Week, which stimulates cooperative public and private action to promote the employment of the physically handicapped.

2. Registration of labor union data.—These are financial and organizational data required to be filed as a condition of union use of the facilities of the National Labor Relations Board.

3. Executive direction and management services.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Bureau of Employment Security carries out the Federal responsibilities of the public employment and unemployment insurance programs. Obligations for 1954 are estimated to be $5,867,000, an increase of $268,000 over 1953 primarily due to the enactment of title IV of the Veterans' Readjustment Assistance Act of 1952. An additional $206,000 for 1953 is proposed for later transmission to provide for additional costs resulting from title IV.

1. Veterans' placement service.—This includes helping State local employment offices in rendering suitable counseling and placement services to veterans and promoting the interest of employers in employing veterans.

2. Farm placement service.—This service guides the interstate movement of migratory workers in cooperation with the farm placement activities of the States.

3. Collection and interpretation of labor market information.—Facts and figures are reported and analyzed on (a) the administrative operations of the unemployment insurance and employment service programs; (b) supply, demand, and utilization of labor by areas, industries, and occupations.

4. Assistance in maintaining public employment services.—Effective employment service is promoted by assistance to the States on (a) organization and management; (b) counseling and testing of veterans, handicapped workers, and others in the field of occupational adjustment; and (c) employer contact programs.

5. Unemployment insurance service.—State laws and interpretation are reviewed to assure conformity with the requirements of the Federal law. Proposals are developed and surveys made to improve the existing programs. The unemployment compensation program provided for veterans under title IV of the Veterans' Readjustment Act of 1952 is administered through the States.

6. Field guidance, financing, and auditing of State operations.—Technical assistance is provided to State agencies, and the administrative needs of the States are evaluated as a basis for making grants. Annual audits are made.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Grants are made to the States for administration of the unemployment compensation and employment service programs.

The increase of $27,640,000 in the appropriation requested is primarily due to increases in workloads expected to accompany the economic developments assumed for 1954, increases in average annual State salary rates, and in the contingency fund. The average annual State salary rate was $3,390 in 1952, is estimated at $3,500 in 1953, and is expected to rise to $3,600 in 1954. Additional costs are included for State administration of title IV of the Veterans' Readjustment Assistance Act of 1952 authorizing the payment of unemployment compensation to veterans. An additional $6,750,000 for 1953 is proposed for later transmission to provide for increased workloads and for administrative costs under title IV.

1. Unemployment compensation activities.—These consist of determining the tax liability of each employer, collecting the taxes, and auditing the employer's records; maintaining a record of each employee's wages; accepting initial claims for benefits; processing claims to determine eligibility and the amount and duration of benefits; taking continued claims and verifying the claimant's continuing eligibility; making benefit payments; and conducting hearings and making decisions on appeals. The 1953 workloads shown are those which can be accomplished under existing funds. However, current experience indicates that the workloads will be higher, therefore an additional $5,000,000 is proposed for later transmission.

2. Employment service activities.—These consist of registering persons seeking jobs; testing and counseling; making placements; and providing services to employers in staffing and job analysis.

3. State administration.—Provides leadership and planning for the unemployment compensation and employment service activities in the central and local offices, as well as legal, fiscal, personnel, training, and research activities.

4. Veterans' unemployment compensation activities.—These consist of accepting veterans' initial claims for unemployment benefits; processing such claims to determine veteran status; taking continued claims and verifying claimant's continuing eligibility; paying benefits; conducting hearings and making decisions on appeals; and maintaining special accounts for Federal reimbursement of payments made to veterans. The 1953 workloads shown are those which will be performed under the $1,750,000 proposed for later transmission.

5. Contingency fund.—This fund is used to meet unforeseen increases in the number of claims filed, in State salary rates, and changes in State unemployment compensation laws. All these increase the administrative costs. During 1953, such increases have already required a supplemental appropriation of $6,800,000, and an additional $5,000,000 is anticipated. Therefore, the 1954 amount is estimated as $10,000,000.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Mexican agricultural labor is imported for use in areas having a shortage of domestic agricultural workers. Obligations for 1954 are estimated to be $1,740,000. This is a decrease of $910,000 compared with 1953 when operations were carried on for 12 months. Amounts shown for 1954 are for operation to December 31, 1953, when Public Law 78 expires and includes requirements for staff to return all workers to Mexico, terminal leave pay, and costs for liquidating the program. If the program is extended for the full year, $100,000 of the amount requested for the first 6 months will be used as an offset to the $1,100,000 needed for operations from January 1 through June 30, 1954. A net additional amount of $1,000,000 would be required for full-year operation.

1. Determining foreign labor requirements.—The agricultural areas needing foreign workers and the number of workers required are determined.

2. Supplying foreign labor requirements.—Workers are recruited in Mexico and transported to centers in the United States where the employer contracts for their use.

3. Determining compliance with contract provisions.—Complaints of contract violations are investigated, and housing and other perquisites required by the contract are inspected.

4. Establishing prevailing wage rates.—Wage data in areas using Mexican workers are analyzed, and prevailing wages are established.

5. Legal services.—Legal services for all activities of the program are provided.

6. Executive direction and management.

REVOLVING AND MANAGEMENT FUNDS

Farm Labor Supply Revolving Fund, Bureau of Employment Security—

AMOUNTS AVAILABLE FOR OBLIGATION

Appropriation or estimate (obligations incurred)—1952, $1,000,000.

ANALYSIS OF EXPENDITURES

Obligations incurred during the year (total expenditures out of current authorizations (invested in revolving fund))—1952, $1,000,000.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Fees not to exceed $15 per worker are paid by agricultural employers and are used to meet transportation and subsistence costs involved in importing Mexican farm workers (65 Stat. 741). Authority for bringing in these workers expires on December 31, 1953, and the estimates are based on operations ceasing on that date.

The net effect on budgetary expenditures through December 31, 1953, is estimated at —$706,468 and will increase, under present fee schedules, by —$288,915 if the program is extended for the full fiscal year 1954. However, because of the amount of retained earnings, it is anticipated that the fee schedule and expenses chargeable to this fund will be reexamined before the legislation expires.

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The Department delivers the mails and performs other related services to the public, including the sale of money orders and provision for postal savings. Because postal business reflects general economic conditions, the upward trend in the national economy has brought with it a large increase in mail volume.

The operation of the postal service is financed from postal revenue. Any deficit is met by the Treasury. The following statements under "Postal service fund" show the financial condition of the Post Office Department and the relation of the postal operating deficit to the contribution from the Treasury. Specific authority to incur obligations for operation is contained in four appropriations: General Administration, Postal Operations, Transportation of Mails, and Claims.

The total appropriation requested amounts to $2,906,800,000. This is an increase of $113,000,000 compared with the current fiscal year and is due primarily to the estimated 3.87 percent increase in volume of mail. The estimates will provide for 2.82 percent additional employment, and additional space, equipment, and transportation to handle the increased volume. The estimates also provide for later window service, new stations and branches, later collections, and extensions of delivery service.

About 99 percent of the total appropriation given is for direct costs of postal operations, transportation of mails, and payment of claims, and less than 1 percent for the costs of general administration of the Department.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This appropriation provides for the central administrative offices in Washington, D. C., the inspection service, and the regional accounting offices.

The total appropriation request of $24 million, an increase of $2 million over the current fiscal year, will permit the Department to strengthen its management staff and expand its program of developing better and more economical methods.

1. Coordination and control—(a) Executive direction and staff service.—Staff services necessary to the over-all direction of the postal service are furnished by the Advisory Board, the Office of the Administrative Assistant to the Postmaster General, the Office of the Solicitor, and the departmental personnel office. Included in the 1954 estimate is provision for six additional positions to initiate a department-wide employee and supervisor training program.

(b) Direction of fiscal and accounting services.—Provision is made for: Supervision of all financial transactions of the postal service such as result from the distribution and sale of stamps, the postal savings and money-order systems, and other various special financial services; the administration of the cost ascertainment system, and the second-class mailing privilege; the classification of mail matter; and the examination, auditing, and settlement of postmasters' accounts at the 12 regional accounting offices. About $20 billion in financial transactions flow through the postal service annually.

(c) Inspection service.—Periodic and special inspections of post offices and postal facilities are made to determine the state of efficiency and adequacy of the postal service and to assure that postal funds are properly protected. Due to the growth of the postal service and to provide more extensive management surveys of first-class offices and other facilities, the estimate for 1954 proposes 200 additional inspectors together with necessary supporting personnel and funds for related expenses.

2. Direction of post office operations.—General direction of 41,000 post offices, includes the authorization of changes in the collection, dispatch, delivery, and local transportation of mails. The increase in 1954 will provide 15 additional employees to participate in studies to improve efficiency and economy.

3. Direction of transportation services.—The general administration of the railway and highway post offices and terminals include the negotiation of postal conventions and agreements with foreign countries and the administration of international postal services; approval of contracts for mail transportation; and the determination of dispatch schedules and direction of movement of mail for the entire postal service. The estimate for 1954 provides for 11 additional positions necessitated by the continued expansion of the short-haul truck service and contract highway post offices, and the increased workload caused by readjustments and renegotiations of star route contracts.

4. Direction of general services.—This covers general supervision of: (a) Maintenance of post office buildings, leased, and rented space; (b) procurement and maintenance of motor vehicles; (c) manufacture and repair of mail bags and locks; and (d) procurement, inspection, and distribution of supplies and equipment. The 1954 estimate provides seven additional positions in the division of engineering due to the necessity for providing and operating additional space to care for increased mail volume.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This covers the costs of the supervision and operation of local post offices including the collection, dispatch, and local transportation of mail; the distribution of mail in transit; the operation and care of buildings and grounds used by the postal field service; and postal supplies and equipment.

The total appropriation requested is $2,240,700,000, an increase of $90,700,000, which is principally for additional clerk and carrier personnel to handle the increase in mail volume.

1. Administration of post office operations.—Administration of local post offices is the responsibility of postmasters and assistant postmasters, whose salaries are determined in relation to the receipts of their offices during the preceding calendar year. The increase for 1954 reflects changes in the salaries of such officials on the basis of increased receipts in calendar year 1952.

Administrative responsibilities of local postmasters vary with the size of offices, which range from fourth-class offices where no clerical assistance is provided except during short periods of unusually heavy mail volume or periods of official absences, to the larger first-class offices where the number of employees total in the thousands.

2. Mail handling and window services.—Provision is made for the handling of incoming and outgoing mail; window services to the public; and the performance of administrative services in first- and second-class post offices.

The volume of mail is expected to increase approximately 3.87 percent in 1954 over 1953.

<sup>1</sup> Workload consists of mail and special service transactions.

3. Collection, delivery, and local transportation.—(a) Collection and delivery.—This covers the work of city-delivery carriers, village-delivery carriers, and special-delivery messengers. With respect to special-delivery messengers, about 91 percent of all special-delivery mail is delivered at first-class offices by salaried messengers, the remainder at second-, third-, and fourth-class offices being handled by messengers on a fee basis. The estimate for 1954 includes 260 additional carrier positions for the purpose of providing late collections at the larger post offices.

(b) Local transportation.—This provides for the operation of the vehicle service, including hire and purchase of vehicles, the pneumatic tube service, all mail messenger service, and carfare used in city delivery service. The estimate for 1954 is based on the increased volume of mail and includes provision for purchase of very light delivery vehicles for use in about 100 of the largest post offices. The estimate also provides for the purchase of 2,000 new trucks to permit continued retirement of over-age trucks.

(c) Rural delivery service.—The proposal for increase will provide for the normal expansion of the rural delivery service to meet the needs of the public.

4. Mail handling in transit.—Postal transportation service processes and distributes mail in terminal post offices and post offices on railroads and in highway post office busses. The estimate for 1954 provides additional manpower to handle the increased volume of mail, and additional personnel in new truck terminals to serve the 200 proposed new short-haul truck routes to be established in 1954.

COMPARISON OF AVERAGE PAID EMPLOYMENT, PRODUCTIVE MAN-HOURS, AND PIECES OF MAIL

	Average paid employment	Total productive man-hours (thousands)	Pieces of mail (millions)	Average employment per million pieces	Average salary per productive man-hour
1950.....	34,546	64,346	45,064	0.7666	$2.0795

1954 estimate.....	40,581	73,223	53,700	.7557	2.3984

The provision of Public Law 199, 82d Congress, limiting the size of parcels exchanged between first-class post offices has increased the pieces of mail handled in the postal transportation service with a corresponding increase in average employment per million pieces. Large parcels were formerly handled by railroad employees and never entered the terminals. Mailers now split their parcels in order to get them into the mail, requiring extra handling by the terminals.

5. Operation and care of buildings.—Provision is made for the operation and care of all quarters in which post offices are located and Federal buildings under the jurisdiction of the postal service. The 1954 estimate provides for the lease of 100 new stations and branches, five additional garages, and for an increase of approximately 3,500,000 square feet of leased space to relieve congestion in Federal post-office buildings, including major projects with space of from 100,000 to 563,000 square feet each, for relief in the larger cities.

6. General postal supply services.—This covers cost of stamps and stamped paper; supplies and equipment; printing; and the operation of the equipment shops where mail bags and locks are manufactured and repaired. The increase is principally for purchase of conveyor equipment and other labor-saving devices. Funds are also included for the modernization of the mail-equipment shops in Washington, D. C., to permit expansion and reduction of operating costs.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This covers all costs incident to the transportation of mail by air, land, or water. The estimate provides for the increased volume of mail estimated for 1954, increased carrier rates, and the expansion of short-haul truck service and contract highway post office service. Subsidy payments to airlines are also included in this appropriation based on estimates furnished by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

The total appropriation request amounts to $634,820,000, an increase of $18,820,000 compared with the current fiscal year.

1. Water transportation.—Provision is made for the transportation of mail by ocean vessels and the handling and stevedoring of mails at ports. The increase is due primarily to greater volume of parcel post dispatched to foreign countries.

<sup>1</sup> The lower average cost per pound reflects the reimbursement to the Post Office Department by the Mutual Security Agency of a portion of the transportation cost of gift parcels.

Also included under this activity is the transportation of mail by power boat on the inland and coastal waterways of the continental United States and its Territories, and by steamship between the mainland and the Territories of Hawaii and Alaska. Most of this service is paid for under pound-rate contracts.

2. Truck transportation.—This provides transportation of mail between post offices by star route in the United States and Alaska, by Government-operated and contract highway post offices, and by short-haul truck contractors.

Star route service is maintained for post offices lacking adequate railroad service and it supplements highway post-office service with contracts generally awarded on 4-year terms. The major increase requested is due to increased mail volume resulting in the need by the contractor of larger and more expensive equipment.

Also includes increased rates to railroads effective Jan. 1, 1951, ordered by Interstate Commerce Commission on Nov. 16, 1951.

4. Air transportation.—Payments for the transportation of mail by air between points within the United States and Alaska, and to United States Territories and possessions and foreign countries are based on rates prescribed by the Civil Aeronautics Board. Since payments to carriers also include subsidy payments prescribed by the Civil Aeronautics Board based on the general economic condition of the air industry, it is possible for an increase in volume of mail to reflect a decrease in the cost of transportation per piece.

5. Terminal and transportation charges by foreign countries.—Payments are made to foreign countries in accordance with international postal conventions or agreements for the transportation and handling by their domestic postal services of mails of United States origin. During and since World War II accounts have usually not been settled until approximately 1 year from the time the actual service was performed. This backlog has gradually been overcome and the estimate for 1954 is on a more current basis.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The International Information Administration has five basic objectives: (1) to multiply and intensify psychological deterrents to Communist aggression; (2) to stimulate confidence in the Government and people of the United States among peoples of the free world, particularly in Western Europe; (3) to combat neutralism, particularly in Asia and the Middle East; (4) to maintain hope of ultimate liberation and identification with the free world among peoples behind the iron curtain; (5) to encourage recognition of mutuality of interest on the part of peoples traditionally linked with the United States, particularly in South America.

The increase of $27,190,800 over 1953 is due primarily to (a) costs of operating new radio facilities; (b) increases in other program activities to meet current psychological objectives in critical world areas; (c) to increase the Exchange of Persons program under the Fulbright Act (Public Law 584) as amended by Public Law 400, Eighty-second Congress, and (d) purchase foreign currencies for the Fulbright program in the amount of $8,859,791, pursuant to section 1415 of Public Law 587, Eighty-second Congress.

1. Field programs—(a) USIS missions.—The program agency abroad is known as the United States Information Service (USIS) operating under the Chief of Mission in each country, and is an integral part of the mission staff. The USIS staff is headed by a Public Affairs Officer (PAO) who is the focal point for IIA program development within each country.

(b) The office of Deputy Administrator for field programs (Washington) provides guidance and control to the missions, and coordinates the development of the IIA programs for each country.

2. Media support services—(a) Press service.—This service produces pamphlets, leaflets, posters, magazines, and newspapers. It also provides specialized daily news bulletins, feature articles, press photographs, display photos, and film strips for use of the missions overseas.

(b) Motion picture service.—Documentary films explaining the United States and its policies are produced, other films are purchased and adapted, text and sound tracts are translated into many languages, and prints are distributed to overseas missions.

(c) Information centers service.—Collections of American books, documents, periodicals, and Government pamphlets, both in English and in translation, are made available to the missions overseas for distribution to the public; foreign publishers are assisted in the translation and distribution of American books; American publishers are assisted in distributing their products overseas; books or special collections are made available to USIS missions for presentation to key individuals and groups; and the teaching of the English language is promoted.

(d) Educational exchange service.—Students, teachers, professors, research specialists, and leaders, chosen because of their value in forming public opinion, are exchanged between the United States and other countries. In addition, services are provided for a large number of exchangees carried out under other than governmental auspices.

(e) Radio broadcasting service.—Radio programs are developed, produced, and transmitted throughout the world from transmitters in the United States and from overseas relay stations; and transcriptions of radio and television programs are shipped to overseas missions for use on local transmitting stations.

(f) Private enterprise cooperation.—Private agencies are encouraged and assisted in carrying out programs contributing to attainment of United States objectives.

3. Program direction and appraisal.—Provision is made for the Office of the Administrator and his supporting staff; staff assistance to the United States Advisory Commission on Educational Exchange and the United States Advisory Commission on Information; and liaison between the regional bureaus of the Department.

4. Administrative and management services.—Provision is made for management and administrative services, including reimbursement to the Department for world-wide administrative and staff services, and reimbursement to the Civil Service Commission for security investigation.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Provision is made for carrying out the United States occupation and diplomatic functions in Germany and Austria. Total obligations for 1954, estimated at $46,000,000, represent a decrease of $11,073,886 from fiscal year 1953.

1. Conduct of relations, Germany.—The estimate is based on the assumption that the Contractual Agreements giving the Federal Republic of Germany wide sovereignty over its affairs will be ratified during the latter half of fiscal year 1953 and that the ratification of the European Defense Community Treaty will similarly occur in this period.

2. Statutory and technical consular, Germany.—Passport, visa, and protective services are provided.

3. Public affairs, Germany.—In the period following the ratification of the contractual agreements and the European Defense Community Treaty, the public affairs program will be devoted to winning support for specific measures to implement these agreements, of presenting the United States position on issues that arise, and of creating German understanding and support for the new relationships established. The estimate provides for the operation of information centers, publication of a newspaper and a monthly magazine, operation of a major radio station, furnishing materials for German press and radio, production of films, and exchange of persons.

4. Administration, Germany.—Management, budget, personnel, and administrative services are provided for the mission headquarters, the Berlin element, the six American consulates, the public affairs programs, and the domestic offices.

5. Conduct of relations, Austria.—The United States High Commissioner, who is also the Ambassador to Austria, is working toward the adoption of a treaty to foster the reemergence of a free, independent, and democratic Austria.

6. Public affairs, Austria.—The public affairs program aims to strengthen Austria's will to resist totalitarianism and foster the democratic point of view in both world and local affairs. It presents to the Austrians information regarding the United States through publication of a daily newspaper, one magazine, and two newsletters; operation of a radio network; production and distribution of films; operation of eleven information centers and subcenters; and student and national-leader exchanges.

7. Administration, Austria.—This includes administrative and security functions.

Adjudication of claims—1952, $197,936; 1953, $161, 419.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This provides for the administrative expenses of the International Claims Commission. The Commission examines, adjudicates, and pays those claims of United States nationals which come under claims agreements between the United States and foreign governments with which the United States was not at war during World War II. The claims cover damages arising out of the nationalization or other taking of property by a foreign government, which pays a lump-sum settlement to the United States. A percentage deduction is made from each claim paid and deposited in the Treasury to cover administrative expenses incurred by the United States Government. Pursuant to claims agreements, the Government of Yugoslavia has deposited with the United States $17,000,000 to cover claims of this nature; and the Government of the Republic of Panama has similarly deposited $174,678. Recommendations pertaining to fiscal 1954 will be submitted later.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Processing deposits of withheld tax payments.—Employers deposit withheld income and social-security taxes to the credit of the Treasurer of the United States, monthly, with designated banks. They receive from the Federal Reserve banks, acting as fiscal agents of the Treasury, depository receipts which the employers attach to their returns as evidence of payment of taxes. The proportionate share of the expense relating to the issuance and verification of these receipts is charged against the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund. The work volume is estimated at 5,750,000 depository receipts in 1954, as compared with 5,700,000 in 1953, and 4,906,586 in 1952.

2. Financial reporting and maintenance of the Government's central accounts.—The central accounts include control accounts on appropriations, receipts, and expenditures and provide data for the Daily Treasury Statement. This activity also includes the preparation and publication of financial reports on the Government's fiscal operations, such as the annual Combined Statement of Receipts, Expenditures, and Balances; the Monthly Report of Appropriations, Expenditures, and Balances; and the Digest of Appropriations.

3. Development and installation of accounting and reporting systems.—Technical advice and assistance in accounting is furnished all bureaus and offices of the Treasury. In addition, staff is assigned to participate in the Government-wide accounting improvement program.

4. Processing investments, loans, claims, collections, and surety bonds.—Investments in interest-bearing securities are processed for certain funds, such as the Federal old-age and survivors trust fund, the unemployment trust fund, the veterans insurance trust fund, and various Government retirement funds. The work includes purchase and disposal of securities, processing capital stock subscriptions of Government corporations, payment of international and other claims; and examination of the financial condition of companies issuing surety bonds in favor of the United States. The work volume expressed in number of transactions is estimated at 404,350 for 1953 and 1954 as compared with 387,171 for 1952.

5. Supervision of the Federal depository system.—Banking facilities are provided for all agencies of the Government through the designation of selected institutions to act as official depositories of the Government's funds. Workload is expected to increase in 1954 as follows:

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Division of Disbursement, through its Washington and regional offices, makes payments; receives and deposits collections for civilian Federal agencies, except the Post Office Department and certain Government corporations; and issues savings bonds for Federal employees under the payroll-savings plan.

A proposed increase of $68,000 results from increased work volume, especially for the Social Security Administration and Veterans Administration.

The funds required are determined by multiplying the volume of work or the number of units to be processed by the unit cost per item as shown in the following tables.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This office (a) receives, keeps, and disburses the moneys of the United States; (b) receives, stores, issues, transfers and retires currency and coin; (c) redeems Government securities; (d) maintains essential fiscal accounts; and (e) prepares related financial statements and reports.

1. Processing checks, deposits, and claims.—This consists of maintaining checking accounts of Government disbursing officers and Government-owned corporations; processing documents crediting Government accounts; directing the activities of Federal Reserve banks when they act as agents of the Treasurer in paying Government checks; and performing certain functions in connection with claims relating to lost, stolen, destroyed, and fraudulently negotiated checks. Rapidly increasing Federal expenditures have resulted in a constant increase in workload. The number of checks processed for the Department of Defense increased an estimated 71 percent in 1952 over 1950, however, the 1954 estimate contemplates an increase of less than 18 percent over the 1952 volume.

This covers expenses in collecting, safekeeping, transferring, or disbursing public moneys; the cost of transportation of currency and coin, and securities of the United States; and the purchase of supplies such as coin bags and webbing straps. No part of this appropriation is for personal services. Past experience has shown that accelerated defense and the expansion of related industrial programs will definitely increase these requirements.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Bureau of Customs collects the duties and taxes on imported merchandise, inspects all international traffic, regulates certain marine and aircraft activities, combats smuggling, undervaluation, and frauds on the customs revenue, and performs related functions in connection with the importation and exportation of merchandise.

An increase of $1,000,000 is proposed for 1954. The increase is principally the result of reclassification of positions for inspectors and appraisers.

1. Assessment and collection of duties, taxes, and fees.—The collectors of customs assess and collect the duties and taxes on imported merchandise, inspect international traffic, combat smuggling, perform certain marine activities relating to ownership and documentation of vessels of the United States and the movement of vessels in the foreign trade, and enforce the laws of other Government agencies affecting imports and exports.

tions of the Tariff Act of 1930, the Narcotics Drug Act of 1934, the Gold Reserve Act of 1934, the Export Control Act, and other laws affecting the movement of merchandise into and out of the United States. Market value information is secured for customs appraisers. In fiscal year 1952, a total of 17,586 investigations were made. The estimates for 1953 and 1954 are 18,500 and 19,500, respectively.

4. Audit of collection and merchandise accounts.—The comptrollers of customs examine and certify collectors' accounts of receipts and disbursements of money and receipts and disposition of merchandise, and verify collectors' final assessments of duties and taxes, as well as allowances of drawback.

An increase of $475,000 is for modernizing coinage equipment at the Philadelphia Mint.

1. Manufacture of coins (domestic).—Production of coins is the major activity of the Bureau of the Mint. It is estimated that 1.5 billion coins will be required for the country's business transactions in fiscal 1954, which is the same level of production planned for fiscal 1953. This estimate is based on the assumption that business activity will continue at about the same tempo in both years.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Coast Guard enforces maritime law, provides for limited security of ports and waterfront facilities, saves life and property, provides navigational aids to maritime commerce in navigable waters and to air commerce over the ocean, promotes the efficiency and safety of the American merchant marine, and contributes to military readiness as a part of the Navy in time of war or national emergency.

The proposed increase of $800,000 is principally for military personnel cost increases resulting from (1) costs in 1954 of mustering-out payments authorized by Public Law 550 and (2) accelerated discharge program due to expiration of enlistments. These increases have been partially offset by reductions in average number of military personnel, reduction in average ration cost, increase in civilian lapse, and decrease in maintenance and equipment purchases.

1. Search, rescue, and law enforcement.—The Coast Guard maintains vessels, lifesaving stations, and aircraft at strategic points along the coast and inland waterways; operates an international ice patrol and ice observation service in the North Atlantic Ocean, performs ice breaking on inland lakes, rivers, and canals and in harbors on the Atlantic Coast; administers laws and issues regulations on inspection and safety equipment of merchant vessels, and licensing and certification of Merchant Marine officers and crews; reviews plans for construction or alteration of merchant vessels; investigates marine accidents; holds hearings on disciplinary cases; provides instruction in the principles and practices of safe navigation; and sponsors the Coast Guard Auxiliary, a voluntary organization of boat owners who assist in time of distress.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Coast Guard maintains a trained reserve of officers and enlisted personnel which will enable it to assume additional and expanded duties in time of war or national emergency.

The program for fiscal year 1954 will provide training for 3,383 Reservists compared to an average of 4,084 in fiscal year 1953. It is planned to provide a more complete course of training for a smaller number of men in fiscal year 1954 in order to provide the most effective Reserve force within the funds authorized.

The duties for which Reserve training is required, together with the number of trainees and periods of training for 1953 and 1954 are shown in the following table:

BUREAU OF ACCOUNTS

Fund for Payment of Government Losses in Shipment—

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Under the act of July 8, 1937 (5 U. S. C. 134), as amended, a revolving fund was established to pay claims resulting from losses in shipment of Government property, such as coin, currency, and securities. The deficit in this fund results from the fact that recoveries can only partially offset losses.

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION

The Bureau of Engraving and Printing designs, engraves, and prints currency, bonds, stamps, commissions, certificates, and various other forms of engraved documents.

The Bureau operates under a working capital fund of $3,250,000 established in accordance with the provisions of Public Law 656, approved August 4, 1950. All work is performed on a reimbursable basis, and business-type accounting and budget procedures are employed.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAM

The anticipated work volume is based on estimates of requirements submitted by the agencies served. The program comprises the following activities:

1. Engraving and printing—(a) Currency.—It is expected that demand will require approximately the same high level of production for 1954 as in 1952 and 1953.

(b) Stamps.—The total workload for 1954 is substantially the same as that for 1953.

(c) Paper checks, commissions, certificates, etc.—A slight decrease is anticipated for 1954 due to a reduction in the requirement of the requisitioning agencies for Government requests for transportation.

(d) Securities.—The anticipated increase in production in 1954 over 1953 is due principally to a request for 6,160,000 more United States savings bonds and approximately 720,000 additional Treasury bonds, bills, notes, etc.

2. Operation and maintenance of incinerator and space utilized by other agencies.—Charges are made to other agencies, on an actual cost basis, for use of the incinerator and for the cost of maintenance services provided for the space which they occupy in the Bureau's buildings.

3. Purchase of card checks.—Because the Bureau is not equipped to manufacture punch-card check forms, purchases are made from a commercial source. Estimated procurement is based on estimates of requirements submitted by agencies served.

FINANCIAL RESULTS

The Bureau sustained a loss of $154,003 in the first year of operations under the working capital fund. Appropriate adjustments have been made in the unit cost rates to restore the impairment during the fiscal year 1953.

COAST GUARD

Coast Guard Supply Fund—

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

General stores material, uniform clothing, and commissary supplies are procured under this revolving fund which is reimbursed as issues are made (14 U. S. C. 650). During fiscal year 1952, a decrease of $345,972 resulted in the fund, due principally to loss from revaluation of inventories of uniform clothing. During 1953, it is estimated that receipts from sales will be $200,000 less than cost of goods sold due principally to loss from revaluation of inventories of uniform clothing. During 1954, it is estimated that receipts from sales will be entirely offset by cost of goods sold.

EXPLANATORY STATEMENT

GENERAL STATEMENT

The District of Columbia constitutes a political entity in which are exercised not only municipal but also county and State functions, such as public education, administration of justice, promotion of family welfare, care of the indigent, custody of mental defectives and delinquents, protection of the interests of labor, metropolitan area planning, etc.

Congress is empowered "to exercise exclusive legislation in all cases whatsoever" on behalf of the District of Columbia as the seat of government of the United States. Congress acts in municipal matters as a city council and, in dealing with the broader aspects of the local government, as a county board and a State legislature. In this connection, Congress enacts the District's revenue measures and appropriates the money thus raised to carry on the Government of the District of Columbia. District revenues from all sources are covered into the United States Treasury and credited either to the general fund, the highway fund, the water fund, the motor vehicle parking fund, or a trust fund, and no expenditure can be made from any of these funds, other than trust funds, without specific appropriation by Congress.

Under the law, the District estimates of appropriation are submitted to the Bureau of the Budget for incorporation in the Budget of the United States. The Bureau, however, does not examine the estimates of the District in minute detail but confines its attention more to matters of policy which concern the Federal Government and present and proposed revenue measures required to balance the District budget.

The District of Columbia is in the process of being reorganized in accordance with the Reorganization Plan No. 5 of 1952. In view of this transitory condition, these estimates of appropriation reflect approximately the same pattern as approved for the current year. However, since the basic reorganization plan will be completed by June 30, 1953, it is anticipated that the estimates for the fiscal year 1955 will detail the revised appropriation structure.

The estimates of revenues for the general, highway, water, motor vehicle parking, and trust funds are found in supporting statement No. 1. Estimates of appropriations for the same funds are shown in supporting statement No. 2. Attention is also directed to the summary of operations table at the beginning of this chapter.

GENERAL FUND

Revenues accruing to the general fund of the District of Columbia are used to finance the administrative offices, retirement funds, schools, libraries, police, fire, health, recreation, sanitation, welfare, corrections, certain public works, and other operating activities. These revenues are realized from real, personal, and other property taxes; sales and gross receipts taxes on alcoholic beverages, cigarettes, insurance, motor vehicles, public utilities, gross sales, and other sources; licenses and permits; individual, unincorporated business, and corporation income taxes; inheritance and estate taxes; certain earnings and miscellaneous revenues; and the Federal payment. The largest item of revenue in the general fund comes from realty and personal property taxes and amounts to approximately 41 percent of the total. The levy is based on an estimated assessed valuation of $2,258,000,000 taxed at the rate of $2.15 per $100 for realty and $2 per $100 for personal property. The estimated valuation is $50 million higher in 1954 than for the current year. The Federal payment is estimated at $12 million, which is in accordance with existing law, and represents an increase of $1,000,000 over the fiscal year 1953. Of this amount, $11 million will be credited to the general fund and $1 million to the water fund.

The estimate of general-fund revenue availability on the present tax base for the fiscal year 1954, including the Federal payment of $11 million and a surplus of $9,530,968 from 1953, totals $122,595,968, which amount is $1,100,488 greater than the estimated funds required for 1954.

General-fund estimates of appropriation for 1954 show an over-all increase of $7,094,635, or approximately 6 percent over 1953 estimates. Of this increase, $2,037,200 is for capital outlay, leaving $5,057,438 for operating expenses. The increase in operating expenses, amounting to approximately 5 percent, is reflected largely in schools, health, and welfare. The largest increase in capital outlay is for school construction.

HIGHWAY FUND

Highway-fund revenues are realized from a gasoline tax, automotive registration and weight tax, motor-vehicle fees of various types, and paving assessments. The estimated revenues from these sources for the fiscal year 1954, plus available surpluses, total $14,407,650, which will be $344,930 in excess of the estimated obligations.

Estimates of appropriation chargeable to the highway fund for 1954 show an over-all increase of 31 percent over 1953 estimates. This increase is reflected largely in capital outlay for the Street and Bridge Divisions.

WATER FUND

Water-fund revenues are derived from the sale of water to residents of the District of Columbia and to Arlington County, Va.; from the Federal payment of $1 million provided for under the District of Columbia Revenue Act of 1947; from water-main assessments; and from miscellaneous receipts. Total revenues for the fiscal year 1954, including surplus funds and Federal loans, are estimated at $11,652,671, which will be $2,015,671 in excess of the estimated obligations for 1954.

The estimates of appropriation for fiscal year 1954 from the water fund amount to $10,487,000, which are $2,194,000 under the estimates for the fiscal year 1953, or a decrease of approximately 17 percent.

Capital outlays amounting to $5,908,000 account for approximately 56 percent of the fiscal year 1954 estimates, as compared with 65 percent of the 1953 estimates. These capital outlay projects will continue important improvements in the District water distribution system and the Washington Aqueduct.

MOTOR-VEHICLE PARKING FUND

This fund is derived from parking meter receipts, and it will be used to pay the administrative expenses of that agency and to provide for the acquisition, creation, and operation of public off-street parking facilities as a necessary incident to insuring in the public interest the free circulation of traffic in and through the District. It is estimated that surplus at the end of 1954 will amount to $965,580.

Detailed Estimates, Narratives, and Schedules on Trust Funds, and Working Funds

INTRODUCTION TO PART III

Part III of the Budget contains summary tables on trust and deposit funds, detailed budget schedules and explanatory statements on the various trust funds, and memorandum information on "working funds."

TRUST AND DEPOSIT FUNDS DISTINGUISHED

The funds which are covered in the summary tables in this part of the Budget are of two types, as follows:

Trust funds are those funds which are established to account for receipts which are held in trust for expenditure in carrying out specific purposes and programs in accordance with an agreement or a statute. Within the category of trust funds, there is a small subcategory of trust revolving funds, which are trust funds used to carry on a cycle of business-type operations.

Deposit funds are those funds which are established to account for collections that are either (a) held in suspense temporarily and later refunded or paid into some other fund of the Government, or (b) held by the Government as banker or agent for others, being paid out in lump sums at the direction of the owner. Such funds are not available for paying salaries, expenses, grants, or other expenditures of the Government.

While the transactions in these groups of funds are a part of the financial program of the Government, the trust and deposit funds are not owned by the Government, and hence these transactions are excluded from the conventional budget totals.

TRUST FUND RECEIPTS, AUTHORIZATIONS, AND EXPENDITURES

Basis of stating trust receipts.—Table 8 summarizes trust fund receipts, and table 9 shows the detail by individual trust fund account. Such receipts include all money paid into the Treasury to the credit of the trust funds, including contributions to the trust funds from the general fund. Sales and redemptions of investments are excluded (at par value) from receipts, and are listed in Special Analysis H of part IV.

Trust authorizations.—Trust fund receipts must be appropriated before they can be spent. These appropriations are summarized in table 8 and listed in table 10.

Most trust funds are appropriated by permanent law, not requiring further action by Congress. Usually the appropriations equal the receipts of the year. In a few cases receipts of trust funds can be spent only in accordance with appropriations enacted by Congress from year to year. Examples are the Soldiers' Home Fund and the municipal revenues of the District of Columbia. In a few other cases trust fund receipts are permanently appropriated for benefit payments, but limitations on administrative expenses payable out of the trust funds are imposed by annual action of the Congress.

Basis of stating trust expenditures.—Table 8 summarizes the trust fund expenditures, and table 10 gives the detail by individual fund. These expenditures are stated on a checks-issued basis, less refunds collected. Net investments in United States Government securities are excluded (at par value) from the figures, and are listed in Special Analysis H of part IV.

Trust revolving funds.—The small group of funds which constitute trust revolving funds constitute an exception to the bases stated immediately above. The collections of trust revolving funds, instead of being taken into the tables as receipts and authorizations, are deducted from expenditures; thus the expenditures for such funds are stated on a net basis. This is comparable to the treatment given to federally owned revolving funds in part II.

DEPOSIT FUND EXPENDITURES

Table 8 includes a figure on total deposit fund expenditures, and table 11 gives details by agency. The expenditures of such funds are on a net basis; that is, the collections are deducted from checks issued, and the resulting figure is shown as an expenditure. Checks issued include those written to move money into other funds, as well as those written for refunds and the return of money to depositors. When the collections are larger than the checks issued, the amount shown as an expenditure is a negative item.

NET ACCUMULATION IN TRUST AND DEPOSIT FUNDS

Table 8 reflects the net accumulation in trust and deposit funds. This represents the result obtained when the trust and deposit fund expenditures are subtracted from the trust receipts of the year. Since trust and deposit funds, as well as Federal funds, affect the total cash balance of the Treasury and the total public debt, the final figures on table 8 are carried forward into table 3 of part I.

DETAIL OF TRUST FUND ESTIMATES

The detailed material following table 11 covers the trust funds which do not require annual action by Congress (those requiring annual authorizations or limitations are in pt. II). The material here follows the general format of the similar material in part II. However, no appropriation language appears here, and the narrative statement of "Program and performance" usually consists of an explanation of the source of money for the fund, the purposes for which it is authorized to be spent, and the legal citations.

DETAIL OF WORKING FUND ESTIMATES

"Working funds" are not true funds in the usual sense, but are merely a means of accounting for money advanced from one agency to another for interagency services. In all tables of the Budget, the expenditures of working funds are included (without separate identification) in the expenditures of the funds and appropriation accounts from which the advances are made. Obligations incurred in working funds are treated in part II as a lump-sum obligation of the appropriation or fund which makes the advance.

For informational purposes, obligation schedules for the working funds appear at the end of this part of the Budget. These schedules are presented in order to indicate that the Budget will be complete regarding the personal services, other obligations, and work of the performing agency. The breakdown of the obligations of the performing agency is shown here according to the actual object involved—personal services, travel, supplies, etc. In the schedules of the agencies purchasing the interagency services (in pt. II) the total obligation therefor is shown in the single object class which shows the nature of the transaction to that agency, usually "07 Other contractual services."

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Under the railroad retirement system, workers and their employers make contributions in the form of taxes on wages toward the benefits which will be payable when the worker reaches 65, becomes disabled, or when he dies. These contributions are appropriated to this trust fund and invested in special Government securities carrying an interest rate of 3 percent. Annuity and benefit payments are paid from this account and annual administrative expenses are derived therefrom. The excess of income over outgo together with annual interest on invested funds are accumulated to provide for the future annuities and benefits being currently earned by workers. When the system reaches maturity, some years hence, the interest on the accumulated investments in the trust fund, together with contributions, should be sufficient to pay the annual cost of earned benefits and the annual administrative cost of operating the system.

The present status of the fund is as follows:

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Premiums paid for insurance issued under provisions of the War Risk Insurance Act, as amended, and earned interest are deposited to the credit of this fund and are available for payment of losses, dividends, refunds, and other benefits provided by the act.

The fund is operated on a commercial basis to the greatest extent possible consistent with special provisions of law. No administrative expenses are charged to the fund. Forest Service, State Rural Rehabilitation Corporation Funds—

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The El Pueblo and the Abiquiu (Lobato Grant) rural rehabilitation projects in New Mexico have been handled by the Forest Service under cooperative agreements with the Farmers' Home Administration because these lands are intermingled with and adjacent to national forest properties. On September 22, 1952, the Secretary transferred these lands to the United States Government for administration under laws and regulations applicable to national forest lands acquired under act of March 1, 1911 (16 U. S. C. 515, 516, 521). This transfer was made pursuant to the act of June 28, 1952, Public Law 419, Eighty-second Congress.

SOIL CONSERVATION SERVICE

Operation and Maintenance, Water Distribution Systems, Water Conservation and Utilization Projects—

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Revenue received from operation of the Wyoming Rural Rehabilitation Corporation's water distribution system on the Eden Valley, Wyo., project, which is being administered under a transfer agreement between the Secretary and the corporation, is used to pay for operation and maintenance of the system.

The residue in this trust account after payment of these operating and maintenance expenses will be transferred to a trust fund receipt account (Wyoming Rural Rehabilitation Corporation), which is administered by the Farmers' Home Administration. This will be done at such time as it appears there will be no further need for specific sums accumulated in the trust fund appropriation account (40 U. S. C. 431-434).

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Under authority of the Bankhead-Black Act, receipts from leasing of project lands owned by the United States are used for payments in lieu of taxes to local government taxing units and for some operation and maintenance costs of the resettlement features of the projects, until land development for irrigation is completed and farm units are returned to private ownership (40 U. S. C. 431-434).

After paying the usual operation and maintenance expenses and the annual payments in lieu of taxes, the residue of the receipts from leasing of the project lands is transferred to miscellaneous receipts. On some projects there has existed a joint investment relationship with various State rural rehabilitation corporations. Dissolution of all such joint investments, and the return of receipts held in this account which are due the respective corporations, will be completed during 1953.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

From funds which would otherwise be paid by the Production and Marketing Administration for carrying out conservation practices, amounts are allotted to the Soil Conservation Service on the basis of specific agreements with individual Production and Marketing Administration State and county committees to provide farmers and ranchers in participating counties with technical and other assistance. The assistance is over and above that which would be furnished normally under the regular Soil Conservation Service program to soil-conservation districts (Department of Agriculture Appropriation Act, 1953).

or other agreements with individual States for use in carrying out the purposes of titles I and II of the Bankhead-Jones Farm Tenant Act, as amended. State rural rehabilitation corporations were originally established in 43 States through grants by the Federal Emergency Relief Administration. Subsequently, trust agreements were entered into between the individual State corporations and the Secretary for administration by the Secretary. Under Public Law 499, approved May 3, 1950 (40 U. S. C. 440-444), States must apply for their assets within a 3-year period ending May 3, 1953. After the return of the assets, new agreements may be entered into with the Secretary for administration. As of June 30, 1952, agreements for administration had been completed in 33 States.

In States where new agreements have been executed, production and subsistence type loans are made at 5 percent interest. Also, farm ownership type loans are made from these funds, and insured under the regular Farmers' Home Administration insured loan program at 3-percent interest, plus a 1-percent insurance charge. Such loans are held only until they can be sold in blocks to private lenders. The entire assets of the 33 States which have signed new agreements are being administered with the exception of $726,000 which was returned to several States for use in rural rehabilitation. In those 10 States where agreements have not been entered into, the funds are used only for administrative expenses in servicing loans outstanding.

INTRODUCTION TO PART IV

Part IV of the Budget contains special analyses of Budget data and Federal programs. These analyses supplement the material appearing in other parts of the Budget. Most of these analyses include explanatory material which expands and elaborates these introductory notes.

RECEIPTS FROM AND PAYMENTS TO THE PUBLIC

Special Analysis A presents information on the flow of money between the public and the Government as a whole, including both Federal funds and trust (and deposit) funds. The Government is defined to include also certain quasi-governmental corporations for the purposes of the analysis. The public is defined to include individuals, partnerships, banks, private corporations, the Federal Reserve System, the Postal Savings System, State and local governments, foreign governments, and international organizations. Excluded from the table are interfund transactions, such as contributions from Federal funds to trust funds. The few items of Government expenditures which are made in the form of additions to the public debt (such as interest accruing on savings bonds) are reported here only when the cash payments are subsequently made, in contrast to the rest of the Budget document, where such items are reported as a budget expenditure at the time the increase in the public debt occurs. Noncash receipts from the exercise of the Government's monetary authority (such as seigniorage on silver) are also eliminated.

ANALYSIS OF THE BUDGET BY FUNCTION AND AGENCY

Special Analysis B gives the details for the functional breakdown of authorizations and expenditures which appears in the Budget Message and in the first two tables of part I. It has been compiled by regrouping the figures found in the chapter summaries of part II. The code numbers used in the chapter summaries are the key to the grouping found in this analysis.

EXPLANATION OF BUDGET RECEIPTS

Special Analysis C presents details on the budget receipts summarized in table 1. It includes a narrative statement explaining the receipt estimates, together with a table giving a classification of receipts by source. The figures include receipts of both the general fund and the special funds. The text pertaining to taxes, customs, and refunds has been prepared by the Treasury Department.

CHARACTER ANALYSES OF EXPENDITURES

Special Analysis D analyzes budget expenditures in terms of the duration and nature of the benefits derived. Expenditures of an investment type are shown in two major categories—one for acquisition or improvement of Federal assets, and the other for other broad developmental purposes such as additions to State, local, and private assets and expenditures for research, education, and health. Expenditures yielding current benefits are also grouped in two major categories—one for aids and services to special groups and the second for other current expenditures. The analysis is based solely on budget expenditure figures of each fiscal year. No adjustments are made for depreciation, obsolescence, potential losses or recoveries on loans, and other items not reflected in current expenditure data.

Special Analysis E gives detailed information on the major Federal programs involving direct loans, loan insurance, and loan guarantees. It provides data on commitment authority, commitments, expenditures, repayments, and outstanding loans.

Special Analysis F provides an analysis of the construction activities of the Federal Government. It presents detailed information on direct Federal public works and Federal grants and loans for public works. It gives summary information on Federal financial assistance for certain international public works, semipublic works, and construction by private business and individuals.

Special Analysis G brings together information on those items in the budget which are for Federal aid to States and local governments. It includes grants-in-aid, shared revenues, loans, and repayable advances.

SELECTED INVESTMENT AND INTERFUND TRANSACTIONS

Special Analysis H sets forth certain investment and interfund transactions. The first two groups of these are the investments by revolving and trust funds in United States Government securities and the net borrowing or repayment of debt to the public by wholly owned corporations. The totals of these transactions affect the financing requirements of the Government as a whole and, therefore, are carried forward from this analysis to table 3 in part I. The other group of transactions included in this table constitutes the payments by the revolving funds to the general fund, representing the return of capital or the distribution of earnings; such payments are excluded from budget expenditures and budget receipts in parts I and II of the Budget in order to avoid inflating both sides of the Budget. They are set forth here to make the record complete.

HISTORICAL COMPARISON OF BUDGET FIGURES

Special Analysis I presents a 10-year comparison of budget receipts and expenditures. The receipts are classified by source and the expenditures by function. Technical notes set forth the changes in classification since the 1953 Budget. As in Special Analysis B, the code numbers appearing in the chapter summaries of part II are the key to the grouping of items in the expenditure section of this analysis.

As described on page 1076, this analysis presents information on the flow of money between the public and the Federal Government as a whole. The above statement of Receipts From and Payments to the Public has also been called the "consolidated cash budget" and "cash income and outgo of the United States Treasury."

A detailed explanation of the concepts used in the above table and their relation to the Budget totals has been published in preceding Budget documents, most recently in the 1953 Budget, page 1142. Supporting tables, showing the complete detail of the individual adjustments made to derive the figures in this Analysis, can be obtained upon request from the Bureau of the Budget.

In effect, the table of Receipts From and Payments to the Public is a consolidated cash statement of Federal nonborrowing transactions with the public. This is illustrated in the following table which summarizes the adjustments made in deriving the figures for the fiscal year 1952.

SPECIAL ANALYSIS B
NEW OBLIGATIONAL AUTHORITY AND EXPENDITURES
BY FUNCTION AND AGENCY

This special analysis supplies supporting detail for the Budget Message tables, the expenditures section of table 1, and the functional totals of new obligational authority in table 2. It serves as a bridge between those tables and part II of this Budget. By identifying all the agencies which have programs in each subfunction, the special analysis serves as a special index to the chapter summary tables in part II, which list the underlying detail in the form of individual appropriation accounts. Functional code numbers included in the chapter summaries indicate where each account is classified in this analysis.

The functional classification used in this Budget summarizes authorizations and expenditures according to the major purposes of the Government. Each function brings together programs which are related to a broad purpose, regardless of the agency responsible. Each major function is divided into several subfunctions which are groups of programs directed to a selected field within the broader category. Changes made in the classification this year are specified in a note in Special Analysis I.

For Government programs other than those financed by business-enterprise funds and revolving funds, the classification is built up on the basis of individual appropriation accounts or other authorization accounts. In the case of business-enterprise or revolving funds, the entire fund is classified as a unit excepting that transactions of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation are distributed among subfunctions on the basis of accounting reports classifying transactions according to purposes served.

Each appropriation account is assigned to a single subfunction in accordance with the predominant purpose of the activities financed. This necessarily involves some close decisions in borderline cases, and it means that programs with secondary significance for some major functions will be included in another category because another purpose predominates in the particular appropriation. Thus, to secure a comprehensive total of all Government programs related to education, or to finance, commerce, and industry, for example, it would be necessary to provide a special tabulation, counting in this category some appropriations which might also be relevant to other categories.

Whereas this special analysis presents both authorizations and expenditures for major functions, subfunctions, and programs over a 3-year period, Special Analysis I shows expenditures for the major functions and subfunctions over a 10-year period. Special Analysis A shows payments to the public, classified by major function. In several other special analyses, the functional categories are used in summarizing specific aspects of Federal fiscal operations, i. e., credit programs, public works, and aid to State and local governments.

SPECIAL ANALYSIS C

EXPLANATION OF THE ESTIMATES OF RECEIPTS

The estimates of receipts from taxes and customs for the current and ensuing fiscal years under existing legislation are prepared in December of each year by the Treasury Department. The estimates of miscellaneous receipts in general are prepared by the agency depositing the receipts in the Treasury.

TOTAL RECEIPTS

Total receipts (daily Treasury statement basis) before deductions for refunds of receipts and appropriations to the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund are estimated to be $75,207.7 million in the fiscal year 1953 and $75,521.6 million in the fiscal year 1954. Actual receipts of $67,999.4 million in the fiscal year 1952, although larger than in any preceding year, were substantially smaller than estimated receipts in the fiscal years 1953 and 1954. Fiscal year 1954 shows a slight increase over fiscal year 1953 despite the scheduled tax reductions which become effective in the fiscal year 1954.

The details of the estimated and actual receipts are shown on pages 1094-1097. Throughout the tables shown in this exposition the figures are rounded and will not necessarily add to totals. This material utilizes the Budget classification of receipts.

<sup>1</sup> The figures shown in the Budget document are amounts as reported in the daily statement of the U. S. Treasury where possible. Total receipts, Budget receipts, receipts from the Railroad Retirement Tax Act, the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act, the Federal Unemployment Tax Act, customs, and refunds of receipts are as shown in the daily Treasury statement. Certain of the detail as to specific tax and nontax sources is not available in the daily Treasury statement and is taken from other reports of the Treasury Department. The detail as to income and excess profits taxes other than amounts withheld is taken from collection reports as compiled by the Bureau of Internal Revenue. The detail of miscellaneous internal revenue is also compiled from such reports. Detail concerning miscellaneous receipts is taken from the Combined Statement of the United States Government.

Where documents other than the daily Treasury statement are used to show detailed revenue sources, adjustment is made by group totals to the daily Treasury statement. Withheld taxes under the individual income tax and the Federal Insurance Contributions Act were combined in 1 total in the daily Treasury statement and in collection reports beginning in January 1951, and amounts collected under the self-employed category of the Social Security Act were combined with income tax other than withheld beginning in January 1952. The amount transferred to the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund shown on the daily Treasury statement is assumed to be the amount collected under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act.

All major sources of receipts are estimated to remain relatively constant during most of the period 1951-54 when expressed as percentages of total receipts. Direct taxes on individuals vary through an exceedingly narrow range while direct taxes on corporations, after a substantial rise in fiscal year 1952, are estimated to remain relatively constant at the higher level. Excise taxes, after a decline in the fiscal year 1952, are estimated to remain at practically the same lower figure through fiscal year 1954. Employment taxes, after a decline in the fiscal year 1952, are estimated to remain the same in the fiscal year 1953 and increase in the fiscal year 1954. The pattern of miscellaneous receipts differs from the trends of other major sources since it is relatively independent of changes in income levels and tax revisions.

FISCAL YEAR 1953

Actual receipts in the fiscal year 1952 and estimated receipts in the fiscal year 1953 are compared by major sources in the following table:

Budget receipts (by source)

[In millions of dollars]

Source	1952 actual	1953 estimate	Increase (+) or decrease (-), 1953 over 1952

(b) Refunds of receipts.....	2,302.2	2,510.8	+208.6
Budget receipts.....	62,128.6	68,696.9	+6,568.3

Budget receipts in the fiscal year 1953 are estimated to be $68,696.9 million, an increase of $6,568.3 million or 10.6 percent over the previous all-time high of $62,128.6 million in the fiscal year 1952. All major sources of tax receipts contribute to the increase. Only miscellaneous receipts, a nontax source, shows a decrease.

Direct taxes on individuals.—The yield of direct taxes on individuals is shown in the following table:

Source	1952 actual	1953 estimate	Increase (+) or decrease (-), 1953 over 1952
Individual income tax:
Withheld.....	18,520.6	20,948.0	+2,427.4
Not withheld.....	11,359.0	12,603.0	+1,244.0

Gift tax.....	82.6	85.0	+2.4
Total direct taxes on individuals.....	30,712.8	34,446.0	+3,733.2

Receipts from income tax withheld are estimated to increase principally as a result of higher levels of salaries and wages and the full-year effect of the higher withholding rates under the Revenue Act of 1951, effective for only about two-thirds of the fiscal year 1952. Similarly, income taxes not withheld are estimated to increase as a result of the full-year effect of the Revenue Act of 1951 and higher levels of income.

Direct taxes on corporations.—Corporation tax receipts in the fiscal year 1952 reflect incomes of the calendar years 1950 and 1951, while receipts in the fiscal year 1953 reflect incomes in the calendar years 1951 and 1952. Because of acceleration of corporation tax payments the second calendar year is the more important in determining fiscal year receipts.

Estimated receipts of $23,700.0 million in the fiscal year 1953 are $2,233.1 million more than the $21,466.9 million collected from this source during the fiscal year 1952. A portion of this increase is due to the slightly higher profits estimated in the calendar year 1952 as compared to the level existing in 1950.

Other factors contributing to the increase were provisions of the Revenue Act of 1951, which reduced the excess profits credit under the income method from 85 percent of base period earnings in the calendar year 1950 to 83 percent in 1952, raised the maximum effective rate limitation on the excess profits tax, and increased the total income tax rate from 42 percent for calendar year 1950 to 52 percent for 1952. Another provision of this act resulted in a temporary shifting of the due dates of the quarterly payments of many corporations with a tax year other than the calendar year, with the result that payments normally due in the fiscal year 1952 were not payable until the following fiscal year.

Excise taxes.—Receipts from this source by groups are listed in the table below:

[In millions of dollars]
Source	1952 actual	1953 estimate	Increase (+) or decrease (-), 1953 over 1952
Liquor taxes.....	2,549.1	2,745.0	+195.9
Tobacco taxes.....	1,565.2	1,704.0	+138.8
Stamp taxes.....	85.0	93.0	+8.0
Manufacturers' excise taxes.....	2,335.4	2,718.0	+382.6
Retailers' excise taxes.....	475.5	494.0	+18.5
Miscellaneous excise taxes.....	1,947.3	2,041.0	+93.7
Adjustment to daily Treasury statement basis.....	-64.7		+64.7
Total excise taxes.....	8,892.7	9,795.0	+902.3

The large inventory accumulation by business and advance buying by consumers in the fiscal year 1951, following the attack on Korea, depressed receipts in the fiscal year 1952. Because the fiscal year 1952 receipts were thus adversely affected, total excise-tax receipts are estimated to increase in the fiscal year 1953 by more than would normally be attributed to higher levels of income and the higher tax rates. Also, the materials allocation program reduced the production of taxable commodities in 1952 somewhat more than is expected in the fiscal year 1953.

All major sources of excise-tax revenue contribute to the increase in the fiscal year 1953.

Employment taxes.—The yields of the various employment taxes are shown in the table below:

[In millions of dollars]
Source	1952 actual	1953 estimate	Increase (+) or decrease (-), 1953 over 1952
Federal Insurance Contributions Act.....	3,568.6	4,000.0	+431.4
Federal Unemployment Tax Act.....	258.9	271.0	+12.1
Railroad Retirement Tax Act.....	735.0	650.0	-85.0
Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act.....	10.3	11.0	+7
Total employment taxes.....	4,572.8	4,932.0	+359.2
Deduct appropriation to Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust.....	3,568.6	4,000.0	+431.4
Net employment taxes.....	1,004.2	932.0	-72.2

Total employment tax receipts in the fiscal year 1953 are estimated to increase over the fiscal year 1952 as a result of higher levels of taxable salaries and wages. The increase occurs in all employment taxes except those collected under the Railroad Retirement Tax Act. This source declines in the fiscal year 1953 despite increasing wages, because the receipts in the fiscal year 1952 reflected liabilities of approximately 14 months as a result of changed collection procedure effective July 1, 1951.

Customs.—Customs receipts are estimated to be $590.0 million in the fiscal year 1953, an increase of $39.3 million over actual receipts of $550.7 million in the fiscal year 1952.

Miscellaneous receipts.—Miscellaneous receipts are estimated to amount to $1,744.7 million in the fiscal year 1953, a decrease of $58.8 million from the fiscal year 1952.

Refunds of receipts.—Refunds of receipts are estimated to increase to $2,510.8 million in the fiscal year 1953.

FISCAL YEAR 1954

Estimated receipts in the fiscal years 1953 and 1954 are compared by major sources in the following table:

Budget receipts (by source)

[In millions of dollars]

(b) Refunds of receipts.....	2,510.8	2,558.9	+48.1
Budget receipts.....	68,696.9	68,664.7	-32.2

Budget receipts in the fiscal year 1954 are estimated to amount to $68,664.7 million, a decrease of $32.2 million below fiscal year 1953. As a result of the tax reductions scheduled to take effect in the fiscal year 1954 under present law, both direct taxes on corporations and direct taxes on individuals show decreases below fiscal year 1953. Excise taxes show a gain despite the effect of the tax reductions effective April 1, 1954.

Direct taxes on individuals.—The yield from direct taxes on individuals is shown in the following table:

[In million of dollars]

Source	1953 estimate	1954 estimate	Increase (+) or decrease (-), 1954 over 1953
Individual income tax:
Withheld.....	20,948.0	20,681.0	-267.0

Gift tax.....	85.0	90.0	+5.0
Total direct taxes on individuals.....	34,446.0	34,334.0	-112.0

Receipts from income tax withheld are estimated to decline in the fiscal year 1954 as a result of the decrease in withholding rates scheduled for January 1, 1954. Income taxes not withheld are estimated to increase slightly in the fiscal year 1954 reflecting higher levels of income. The decrease in income tax rates will reduce the first declaration payments on 1954 incomes but not the final payments on 1953 incomes.

Direct taxes on corporations.—Corporation income and excess profits taxes are estimated to amount to $23,300.0 million in the fiscal year 1954, a decrease of $400.0 million from 1953. Under existing law, the excess profits tax will expire June 30, 1953. Corporations will prorate their excess profits tax liability for a full year on the basis of the number of days in their taxable years which precede June 30, 1953. This will cut total excess profits tax liability in the calendar year 1953 to roughly half what it otherwise would have been. As a result, excess profits tax collections in the fiscal year 1954 will decline. Part of this decline, however, will be offset by increased collections of corporation income tax since corporation income tax liabilities in the calendar year 1953 are estimated higher than in the calendar year 1951 because of higher effective tax rates.

Excise taxes.—Receipts from this source by major groups are listed in the table below:

[In millions of dollars]

Source	1953 estimate	1954 estimate	Increase (+) or decrease (-), 1954 over 1953
Liquor taxes.....	2,745.0	2,700.0	-45.0
Tobacco taxes.....	1,704.0	1,689.0	-15.0
Stamp taxes.....	93.0	93.0	-----
Manufacturers' excise taxes.....	2,718.0	2,826.0	+108.0
Retailers' excise taxes.....	494.0	504.0	+10.0
Miscellaneous excise taxes.....	2,041.0	2,057.0	+16.0
Total excise taxes.....	9,795.0	9,869.0	+74.0

Although the rates of certain excise taxes are scheduled to be reduced as of April 1, 1954, total excise tax receipts are estimated to increase in 1954, reflecting higher income levels and greater durable goods production than in the fiscal year 1953.

Collections from the liquor and tobacco excise taxes are expected to decline because of the scheduled termination of the tax increases made by the Revenue Act of 1951. The liquor and tobacco taxes affected by the scheduled rate decreases are paid by stamp, and collections in 1954 will immediately reflect the April 1, 1954, reduction. Collections from the manufacturers' excise taxes and miscellaneous excise taxes are estimated to increase, although certain of the tax rates in these categories will also be reduced. Because of the timing of payment of the tax liabilities, the effect on collections will lag behind the April 1 effective date of the tax reduction.

Employment taxes.—The yields of the various employment taxes are shown in the table below:

[In millions of dollars]

Source	1953 estimate	1954 estimate	Increase (+) or decrease (-), 1954 over 1953
Federal Insurance Contributions Act.....	4,000.0	4,298.0	+298.0
Federal Unemployment Tax Act.....	271.0	280.0	+9.0
Railroad Retirement Tax Act.....	650.0	660.0	+10.0
Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act.....	11.0	11.0	-----
Total employment taxes.....	4,932.0	5,249.0	+317.0
Deduct appropriation to Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund.....	4,000.0	4,298.0	+298.0
Net employment taxes.....	932.0	951.0	+19.0

The combined receipts from the employment taxes are estimated to increase in the fiscal year 1954 as a consequence of higher levels of taxable salaries and wages and the part-year effect of a tax rate increase on wages and salaries under the Federal Insurance Contributions Act, effective January 1, 1954.

All the major sources of receipts included in employment taxes contribute to the increase except those collected under the Railroad Unemployment Insurance Act.

Customs.—Customs receipts are estimated to be $590.0 million in the fiscal year 1954, the same as the preceding year.

Miscellaneous receipts.—Miscellaneous receipts are estimated to be $2,179.6 million, an increase of $434.8 million over the fiscal year 1953.

The estimate for the fiscal year 1954 includes collections of foreign currencies in amounts equal to the estimated expenditure of such funds by the various agencies. In prior years, foreign credits and currencies were used largely by certain agencies operating abroad, without being deposited into Treasury receipts and without being appropriated. This Budget assumes that an appropriation for the dollar equivalent of the 1954 foreign currency obligations be required. The appropriations will be used to purchase foreign credits as they are required for expenditure. Budget expenditures and budget receipts will therefore be increased by the same amount, with no effect on the budget deficit.

Refunds of receipts.—Refunds of receipts are estimated to amount to $2,558.9 million in the fiscal year 1954, a slight increase over the fiscal year 1953.

SPECIAL ANALYSIS D

INVESTMENT, OPERATING, AND OTHER BUDGET EXPENDITURES

This special analysis classifies Budget expenditures in terms of the duration of the benefits arising from the expenditures. It segregates expenditures for assets and other developmental purposes, which yield benefits beyond the current fiscal year, from expenditures which, in the main, yield benefits within the current year. Like the functional classification of Federal programs (special analysis B) employed in the Budget Message, it is designed to facilitate review of the general composition and trends in the Federal Budget rather than to serve directly as a basis for specific congressional action on individual appropriation requests.

Expenditures of an investment type are shown in two major categories—one for acquisition or improvement of assets by the Federal Government and another for other broad developmental purposes, such as additions to State, local, and private assets and expenditures for research, education, and health, which contribute to the physical productivity of the economy or increase the technical skills and knowledge of individuals. Expenditures which yield benefits currently are also grouped in two major categories—one for aids and services to special groups and the other for current operating expenses.

Private enterprises and many State and local governments customarily segregate capital expenditures from current expenditures, often using a separate capital budget. This analysis recognizes the fact that any over-all appraisal of Government fiscal plans should likewise include information on the extent to which the projected expenditures in a given fiscal year will yield their major benefits and services over a period of years. Moreover, the obligation schedules of individual appropriation accounts in part II, wherever feasible, distinguish capital from current obligations.

The analysis, however, is not a capital budget. Such a budget as commonly prepared usually requires separate accounting and often separate financing for capital outlays. In the Federal Budget, investment items are sometimes merged in the same appropriation account with current items, and they are financed in the same way as the rest of the Budget.

A capital budget would also require allowance for depreciation and obsolescence on existing physical assets or anticipated losses on loan programs in order to determine the net addition (or reduction) in Federal assets. This analysis makes no provision for depreciation in physical assets or for anticipated, but unrealized, losses on loans. Hence, it does not indicate the extent to which increases in investment are offset by decreases during the fiscal year.

On the basis of private accounting practices, investment expenditures would be confined to increases in claims or assets owned by the Federal Government. This analysis classifies expenditures in terms of their effect on the economy as a whole; hence, it includes also, as investment-type expenditures, additions to State, local, or private assets or other Federal expenditures whose major objective is to improve the productivity of the Nation.

Finally, unlike the budgets of some private enterprises, the major classification of items has not been determined by the expected financial recoverability of the expenditures. The great bulk of Federal expenditures for loans, for investment in commodity inventories, and for construction of power plants are ultimately returned to the Treasury. Many additional collections arise from licenses and fees charged for various special services, and part of the operating expenditures of certain programs is financed by the appropriation of special receipts from these programs. In the main, however, Federal expenditures for investment-type or other programs are not expected to be recovered by specific types of future Treasury revenues. Indirectly, developmental expenditures are expected, by increasing the wealth and income of the Nation, to expand Federal tax revenues over a long period of years.

In addition to the classification of expenditures by major investment types and otherwise, the analysis distinguishes, where appropriate, between expenditures for military services (as defined in special analysis B) and civil expenditures. This distinction has been made for three major reasons. First, while some military expenditures increase physical assets or improve productivity, they are not usually developmental in the same economic sense in which civil expenditures for assets are developmental. Second, in the absence of such a distinction, the fact that military services represent such a large proportion of total Budget outlays makes it difficult to appraise the relative significance of investment-type and other expenditures for nonmilitary functions of the Government. And third, Budget data do not permit as refined subclassifications of military expenditures as of other types of expenditures.

Separate breakdowns are also shown, where appropriate, for expenditures for direct Federal programs, grants-in-aid or loans to State and local governments, and payments to trust funds. Special analysis G gives details on Federal aid to State and local governments and contains a table summarizing these aids according to the major categories of this analysis.

SUMMARY

Expenditures for the major categories in the analysis are summarized in table 1 with a breakdown for military services and civil expenditures. Nearly half of the $46.3 billion expenditures for military services in the fiscal year 1954 represents additions to Federal assets and other developmental military expenditures. All of the net increase in military expenditures, in fact, may be said to represent build-up in our military capital. These expenditures are expected to decline when international conditions permit return to a replacement level.

Of the $32.3 billion in expenditures for civil programs, expenditures for investment and other developmental purposes account for $7.6 billion. Current expenses for aids and special services for civil programs—chiefly veterans and international aid programs—total $15.1 billion. The remaining $9.5 billion represent current operating expenses for civil programs (mainly interest on the public debt) and noncost transfer payments.

The estimated increase of $11.5 billion from 1952 to 1954 in Budget expenditures classified in this analysis is entirely attributable to the following:

1. A net increase of $7.8 billion in investment-type expenditures for military services.
2. A net increase of $1.6 billion in investment-type expenditures for civil programs—predominantly for atomic energy development and for acquisition of farm commodities.
3. A net increase of $2.9 billion in current expenses for aids—roughly equal to the recommended increase in international aids.

4. A net increase of $0.5 billion in other current expenses for civil programs and noncost payments—equal to the estimated increase in interest payments.

5. A net decrease of $1.3 billion in current operating expenditures for military services—reflecting estimated reductions in maintenance and operation of military assets.

The major categories of the special analysis are explained and discussed in the following sections:

ADDITIONS TO FEDERAL ASSETS

Expenditures in this category represent direct investment by the Federal Government in loans and federally owned physical assets. In other words, they are additions to the type of assets which under private accounting practice would normally appear on a Federal balance sheet—with the exception, as previously stated, that no allowance is made for depreciation or obsolescence on physical assets or for anticipated losses on loans.

The bulk of the expenditures in this category, as well as most of the net increase, represents additions to military assets. Estimated expenditures for loans are much lower for 1954 than for 1953. Direct Federal public works construction for civil programs—excluding atomic energy plant construction—will remain at the same level. Other additions to assets of civil programs—with the exception of Commodity Credit Corporation inventories of farm commodities—will decline.

In the aggregate, investment of Federal civil programs in physical assets—including Atomic Energy Commission and other defense-supporting programs—currently amounts to less than 10 percent of gross private capital formation. Net expenditures for Federal loans (predominantly to private borrowers) in recent years have amounted to an even smaller percentage of the total increase in private debt.

Loans.—Direct loans of Federal agencies consist mainly of loans to farmers and home owners, public and private institutions serving these two groups, and loans to business enterprises and foreign governments. The Congress has provided that most loan programs operate on a revolving basis, and in such cases expenditures are shown in the Budget on a net basis, i. e., expenditures reflect new loans less collections on old loans. However, the loans of the Rural Electrification Administration and the Farmers Home Administration and a few inactive or smaller loan programs are by law on a nonrevolving basis; such loans are therefore included in the Budget on a gross basis, with collections on outstanding loans going directly to miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury. In this analysis, loans are shown on the same basis as they appear in Budget expenditures.

Only a fraction of the total Federal expenditures for loans are reflected as Budget expenditures, since in most programs collections on old loans offset a substantial part of the new loans; in several programs, receipts are expected to exceed expenditures in the fiscal year 1954.

In the fiscal year 1954, net expenditures for loans are expected to be $658 million lower than in 1953. The decrease reflects chiefly increased repayments on farm price support loans—as commodities serving as collateral are sold or turned over to the Commodity Credit Corporation—and reduced mortgage purchases and direct housing loans.

Detailed information on loans is contained in special analysis E on Federal credit programs. In that analysis, loan expenditures are shown net of all receipts, including collections going directly to miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury.

Public works—sites and direct construction.—This category includes all Federal expenditures for sites and federally constructed civil public works projects, military installations, and military-related facilities which are owned by the United States, including those outside the continental United States. A detailed summary of these and related programs is given in special analysis F.

Total estimated expenditures for public works of $5.8 billion in 1954 represent an increase of $854 million over the 1953 total. Expansion of atomic energy facilities for production of fissionable material and atomic weapons accounts for most of the increase in direct civil public works and makes up more than one-half of the total expenditures in 1954. Other major expenditures are for water resources and related developments, veterans' hospitals, and defense housing. Most of the $310 million increase in military public works in 1954 represents Air Force construction, which exceeds the combined total for the Army and the Navy.

Major commodity inventories—net change.—Federal expenditures will add roughly $1.4 billion to existing major inventories of commodities held for resale or in stockpiles. These totals include transportation, administrative expenses, and storage costs where these are normally included in costs of goods sold.

Expenditures for stockpiling strategic and critical materials account for almost all of the military purchases. By June 30, 1954, the military stockpile inventory will reach an estimated $5.5 billion in June 1952 prices. Increased acquisition of farm commodities by the Commodity Credit Corporation under its farm price-support program causes a sharp rise in the inventories of civil agencies.

Major equipment.—Expenditures for major equipment are expected to rise from $11.1 billion in the fiscal year 1952 to $16.7 billion in 1953 and $17.5 billion in 1954. They represent predominantly purchases of aircraft, naval vessels, tanks, and other major equipment needs of the military services, as well as construction of merchant ships. Routine purchases of office equipment, automobiles, furniture and fixtures, etc., are classified as current operating expenses.

Other physical assets—acquisition and improvement.—Expenditures for other physical assets will continue to rise in 1954, because of the expansion in other assets of the Atomic Energy Commission. This category also includes reforestation and range improvements and real property purchased or acquired as collateral on defaulted loans. In 1954, increased net receipts are anticipated from disposition of war housing built during World War II and other public housing.

EXPENDITURES FOR OTHER DEVELOPMENTAL PURPOSES

This category includes all Federal expenditures the major purpose of which is to add to the physical productivity of the economy over a period of years but which do not directly add to Federal assets. Programs which yield the bulk of their benefits immediately are excluded, even though they may incidentally contribute to the economic development of the Nation. With the exception of research and development by the military services, the programs included here are civil programs.

Expenditures for military research and development account for almost half of the total expenditures in 1954 and for an even larger share of the increase from 1952 and 1953. Higher grants for State and local construction of highways and schools and continued expansion in atomic energy research are responsible for most of the remaining increase.

State and local physical assets.—Federal expenditures totaling $765 million in the fiscal year 1954 will help to pay for physical assets to be owned by State and local governments. Most of these expenditures will be in the form of grants-in-aid, such as the Federal-aid highway and airport programs and the school construction program for defense-affected areas. Indirectly, the Federal Government gives further substantial encouragement to State and local public works by provisions in the tax laws which reduce both the cost of borrowing and the effective burden of taxes for State and local government purposes. These include exemption under the Federal income tax law of the interest on obligations issued by these units of government, an indirect Federal guarantee of bonds issued to finance public low-rent housing and slum clearance, and the deduction of various State and local taxes from income taxable under the Federal income tax.

Private physical assets.—Federal expenditures which directly add to privately owned physical assets are relatively few. They consist predominantly of payments for conservation and improvement of private farms, ship construction subsidies, and grants to States for private hospitals. Expenditures for each of these major items will be somewhat lower in 1954, than in 1952 and 1953. In addition, the Federal Government in many ways indirectly encourages expansion in private assets, especially assets required for defense production, for example, through long-term procurement contracts, and through accelerated amortization of defense-related facilities for income tax purposes—in contrast with the policies followed in World War II when large direct Federal investments were made in defense plants.

Education, training, and health.—An estimated $322 million of Federal expenditures in the fiscal year 1954 will be for developmental purposes in the fields of education, training, and health—for those programs which directly promote the knowledge, skills, longevity, or physical vigor of the population, thereby adding to economic productivity over a period of years. Most of the expenditures are for grants to State and local governments, including school-operating aid to school districts especially affected by the defense effort, and grants to States for programs of vocational education, vocational rehabilitation, maternal and child welfare, public health, and agricultural extension work. Closely related are several major items classified in other categories—principally the veterans' education program, estimated at $809 million for tuition and subsistence in 1954, which is classified among aids and special services for veterans; the operating expenses of hospital services and medical care programs; and the training of military personnel or other persons in Government service. Deductions under the Federal income tax for donations to institutions promoting these objectives also provide material assistance.

Research and development.—Much of the contribution of the Federal Government to technological and economic progress is made through its varied programs of research and development. Expenditures for such work in the fiscal year 1954 are estimated at $2.1 billion. Four-fifths of this is for military research and development, including the work of the military establishment and the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics. In the nonmilitary category, the Atomic Energy Commission's program of research and development bulks about as large as the combined programs of all other Federal agencies. The totals exclude the construction of research facilities; these are classified as additions to Federal, State, local, or private assets, depending on the type of recipient.

Definitions of research and development, in this analysis, agree generally with those adopted by the National Science Foundation for its summaries of Federal Government activities in this general area. "Research" is defined as systematic, intensive study directed toward a greater knowledge of the subject studied, and "development" as the use of knowledge directed toward the production of useful materials, devices, systems, methods, or processes, exclusive of design and production engineering. The category includes the social sciences as well as the biological, medical, and agricultural sciences, and the physical, mathematical, and engineering sciences. It excludes mapping, surveys, experimental production, routine testing, and activities concerned primarily with disseminating scientific information or training scientific personnel.

Engineering and natural resource surveys.—Several Federal agencies make relatively small expenditures for investigations and surveys for public works programs, topographic mapping, land classification, forest investigations, and other basic surveys. The largest programs of this type are administered by the Geological Survey, the Bureau of Reclamation, the Navy (petroleum reserve), and the Coast and Geodetic Survey.

CURRENT EXPENSES FOR AIDS AND SPECIAL SERVICES

This category covers current expenditures for programs which primarily provide aids or special services to one or more specific groups. It also includes administrative expenses and other net expenses (or net receipts) of loan programs and investments in physical assets which benefit specific groups, as well as maintenance and operation of any physical assets providing aids and special services. It excludes investment-type expenditures (included in the preceding categories) which provide substantial benefits to various economic groups, e. g., loans, public works, and research programs.

Civil expenditures for these purposes in the fiscal year 1954 will amount to an estimated $15.1 billion, nearly half of all expenditures for civil programs. While these are current expenditures, they differ materially from the operating expenses of a private business or the general overhead outlays of the Government. Half of the 1954 expenditures and all of the increase from 1952 consists of international aids.

Total, current expenses for aids and special services.....	12,246	13,205	15,194

Agriculture.—Current expenses predominantly for the benefit of farmers consist chiefly of losses realized on the price support program, expenses of the International Wheat Agreement, Sugar Act payments, payments for removal of surplus commodities, and administrative expenses of loan programs and other aids to farmers. Other major expenditures for aids to farmers classified elsewhere in this analysis are provided through loans at favorable interest rates, soil conservation payments, reclamation aids, and other developmental aids. Farmers benefit indirectly from the school-lunch program, international aids, and other expenditures which are intended primarily to benefit other groups. Farm income in kind also is usually not subject to Federal income taxation.

Business.—The major types of current Federal expenditures primarily benefiting business enterprises are the portions of the postal deficits arising from airmail and second-, third-, and fourth-class mail; maritime operating subsidies and navigation and other aids to the shipping industry; various aids to air navigation; and the net losses accruing on defense production aids. Many businesses also benefit by expenditures classified elsewhere such as those to stimulate housing construction, to provide more economical sources of electric power, and to control floods. Numerous tax advantages also accrue, e. g., from depletion allowances given for extractive industries, accelerated amortization of emergency defense facilities, and protective tariffs.

Labor.—The largest Federal expenditure in the field of aids to labor is for the Federal-State program of unemployment insurance and public employment offices, in which the Federal Department of Labor makes grants to the States to cover the full cost of administering these services. Also, in this category is the mine safety work of the Bureau of Mines. Classified elsewhere are several other programs in the Department of Labor as well as the labor relations work of the Federal Mediation and Conciliation Service and the National Labor Relations Board.

Home owners and tenants.—Since Federal assistance to home owners and tenants consists primarily of loans and other financing aids, current expenditures are chiefly grants to local authorities for low-rent public housing and for slum clearance and redevelopment. These are increasing, as the local agencies complete the projects and become eligible for the grants. However, net receipts from insurance of mortgages and savings and loan share accounts, as well as from mortgage purchases and other housing loan programs, exceed all current Budget expenditures for housing by over $100 million in all 3 years. Other major aids by the Federal Government include administration of rent control for 6,000,000 units and income tax deductions for interest paid on mortgages by home owners.

Veterans.—In 1954, more than half of the current expenditures for aids to veterans are for compensation and pensions. The compensation allowances are monthly payments to veterans with service-connected disabilities and to the families of deceased veterans. The pension allowances are paid in non-service-connected cases. Hospital and medical care is provided for veterans in a Government-operated system of hospitals, through contracts with other institutions, and through out-patient services. About two-thirds of the hospital patients are non-service-connected cases.

Readjustment benefits for veterans of World War II are declining, but similar outlays for benefits to veterans of the Korean conflict are rising. These include unemployment allowances for new veterans who do not find work after release from the Armed Forces; education and training benefits for veterans who enroll in schools and colleges, or for vocational training on the job or farm; and loan guarantee benefits.

Most of the readjustment outlays are for educational purposes. Under the 1952 amendments, each enrolled veteran receives a flat allowance to cover tuition and other expenses as well as subsistence. Hence, while in prior years it was possible to classify as developmental expenditures the portion paid directly for tuition, supplies, and equipment, the whole amount in this analysis is now classified as a current aid to veterans, even though developmental purposes are still served.

The veterans' aid category includes payments to the railroad retirement account to cover the cost of granting railroad workers credit for time spent in military service. Similar credit is allowed under the old-age and survivors insurance system and the civil service retirement system, but these benefits are not currently reflected in Budget expenditures. Other veterans' aids which either do not affect the Budget, or are only indirectly reflected, relate to the enforcement of reemployment rights in industry, preferences in recruitment for and retention in Government service, and the maintenance of low-cost Government insurance policies for veterans who acquired them during military service.

International aids.—All except $181 million of the $7,544 million in current expenditures for international aids in the fiscal year 1954 will be for the mutual security program. The great bulk of the mutual security expenditures as well as of the sharp increase from 1953 to 1954 is to purchase military equipment for our allies. The remainder is for economic and technical assistance. While most of these expenditures, viewed from the standpoint of the free world as a whole, could be classified as investment or developmental in type, for the purposes of this classification in the Budget of the United States, they are treated as current aids. Aside from the mutual security program, the chief current aids are construction of facilities for NATO (under military services) and civilian relief in Korea. Net current receipts of $48 million are anticipated from the lending activities of the Export-Import Bank.

Other aids and special services.—Many other Federal programs involve current expenditures for aids and special services providing major benefits for more than one of the above groups or for other groups. The most important of such expenditures are grants to help provide public assistance to those in need, including the aged, the blind, the permanently and totally disabled, and dependent children. Other major programs include grants to help finance low-priced school lunches, hospital operation and medical care by the Public Health Service, and increasing expenditures for various aids to Indians.

OTHER SERVICES AND CURRENT OPERATING EXPENSES

All other expenditures for Government services or for current operations are included in this major category. In the main, the activities are the traditional Government operations of protecting against foreign aggression, maintaining international relations, making and enforcing laws, collecting taxes, managing and paying interest on the public debt, providing for recruitment and retirement of civilian employees, and various items of general overhead.

Current expenditures for military services dominate this category. The largest component of the civil expenditures is for interest. All other current civil expenses in 1954 will total about $2.4 billion, or about 3 percent of the estimated 1954 Budget expenditures.

Repair, maintenance, and operation of physical assets excluding special services.—Expenditures to repair, maintain, and operate physical assets (except assets primarily benefiting special groups) include chiefly maintenance and operation of atomic energy facilities and military structures, equipment, and facilities; general-purpose public buildings; as well as operation of certain public assets such as flood control reservoirs, irrigation works, power facilities, public lands, and national forests. The benefits obtained from most of these assets are either Government-wide or are available to many different groups in the population. In some cases, such as power revenues of the Tennessee Valley Authority and the vessel operations of the Department of Commerce, collections from operations exceed current operating expenses, thus producing a negative expenditure item.

TABLE 5.—Other services and current operating expenses

Expenditures for operation and maintenance of military structures, equipment, and facilities will increase by nearly $727 million in 1954 from 1953. Increased operations of synthetic rubber plants will also cause higher current receipts by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation. The largest increase in civilian expenditures estimated is in outlays for building maintenance by the General Services Administration.

Regulation and control.—Most of the major departments and agencies have important regulatory or law-enforcement responsibilities. These include not only the normal law-enforcement responsibilities of the Department of Justice, the Treasury, and the Judiciary but also the operations of the regulatory agencies and the administration of economic control programs. The estimated decline in expenditures from $488 million in 1953 to $447 million in 1954 results primarily from the sharp curtailment in production and stabilization controls anticipated in this Budget.

Operation and administration of other civil activities.—All other Government-wide or multiple-purpose expenditures for civil programs will increase from $1,458 million in 1953 to $1,640 million in 1954. These consist of expenditures (other than international aids) for the conduct of foreign affairs; expenditures for tax collection, borrowing, and other financing activities; expenditures for consideration and enactment of legislation, central procurement, record-keeping, Government mail, payment of claims, and various other miscellaneous direct Federal programs not elsewhere classified. In addition, Government contributions to civilian employees' retirement funds and miscellaneous shared revenues and grants-in-aid are included in this category. The largest increase is in the payment for Federal civilian employees' retirement, proposed to avoid a further increase in the Government's deficiency liability to the retirement trust fund. This item includes for 1954 an estimated $192 million for interest for the year on the present unfunded obligation of the Government.

Other military operation and administration.—Expenditures in this category are expected to drop only slightly from the 1953 level of $13.3 billion. They represent predominantly pay and subsistence for military personnel together with smaller but substantial expenditures for civilian components, industrial mobilization, and various Department-wide activities.

Interest.—Expenditures for interest include interest on the public debt as well as interest on refunds of receipts and interest on uninvested trust accounts. The major reasons for changes in the level are explained in the President's Budget Message.

NONCOST PAYMENTS

This category comprises transfers of proceeds of special payroll taxes from the general fund to the railroad retirement trust fund and to the railroad portion of the unemployment trust fund. These items do not represent costs to the Government, nor do the receipts represent revenues available to the Government. Not included here, however, are various other intragovernmental transfers such as payments to the civil-service retirement trust fund and to the veterans' insurance trust funds. These latter transfers represent true Budget costs and have, therefore, been included either as current expenses for aids and special services or as other operating expenses of the Government.

SPECIAL ANALYSIS E

FEDERAL CREDIT PROGRAMS

INTRODUCTION

Federal credit programs are an important method for the achievement of public policy objectives. For example, as part of the Federal programs for improvement of housing, Federal agencies currently insure or guarantee about 40 percent of all outstanding home-mortgage loans. Similarly, financial assistance in the form of credit is an important part of the Federal program of encouraging efficient family-size farm units. Loans to help restore international economic stability and promote the economic development of underdeveloped areas have been a major part of the Government's international aid program in recent years. On the other hand, Federal loans to business—except for loans and loan guarantees to help meet defense needs—have accounted for only a negligible fraction of business credit.

The impact of Federal credit programs on the Federal budget is relatively small when compared with the large amount of credit extended or guaranteed. The most important reason for this is the predominance of Federal insurance and guarantees of private loans in recent years, discussed more fully later in this analysis. Such programs normally involve little or no Budget expenditures except in cases when defaults require the guaranteeing or insuring agencies to take over the private loan. Secondly, a substantial share of the new commitments, both for insurance and guarantees and for direct loans, are canceled or expire without being used by the lending institution or the borrower. Finally, collections on loans in most cases directly offset disbursements on new loans, with the result that net expenditures are much less than gross expenditures; often net receipts occur.

Federal credit programs have expanded greatly in the postwar period. Direct loans have more than tripled since the end of 1945, but the $15 billion outstanding on June 30, 1952, was only 5 percent of the private debt of about $290 billion outstanding on that date. Federal guarantees and insurance have increased fivefold since 1945 and cover about 10 percent of total private debt. The expansion since 1950 has reflected initiation of new programs to aid the defense effort as well as continued growth in some existing programs.

Since the attack on Korea, the policies of all major Federal credit programs have been regularly reviewed, at the President's request, to assure their full contribution to the defense effort and their consistency with the overall anti-inflation program. Several programs have been reoriented to help meet defense requirements. Nondefense programs have been held to levels well below the statutory authorizations.

COVERAGE OF SPECIAL ANALYSIS

This special analysis presents a broad picture both of direct Federal loans and investments, and of Federal loan insurance and loan guarantee programs. It summarizes new commitments, expenditures, loans outstanding and guarantees in force, new obligational authority, and status of credit authority of 17 major Federal credit programs. It omits numerous relatively minor ones which were included in this special analysis in the 1953 Budget document. The programs included are expected to account for about 99 percent of net expenditures for loans in the fiscal year 1954.

The analysis covers major credit programs of wholly owned Government enterprises, whether corporate or noncorporate. Included also are major credit operations of other departments and agencies, not primarily engaged in lending activities, such as the Treasury Department loan to the United Kingdom in 1947. Loan programs of important quasi-public agencies are excluded from the tables but are discussed separately.

The analysis excludes interagency credit, such as borrowing from the Treasury by other Government agencies, whether for loan or other programs. Credit extended in connection with sales by the Federal Government, such as credit to finance sales of war surplus goods, is also in general excluded.

SUMMARY

Total new commitments for major Federal credit programs for the fiscal year 1954 are estimated at $17.3 billion (table 1). Of this total, credit aids for housing and related programs, including housing loans and guarantees by the Veterans Administration, account for over $10 billion, or 60 percent; those for agricultural programs account for $4.9 billion, or nearly 30 percent. Total commitments in the fiscal years 1953 and 1954 are considerably above the 1952 level, partly because of new credit aids for defense housing and assistance by the Commodity Credit Corporation for increased agricultural output.

Net budget expenditures for all Federal credit programs in the fiscal year 1954 are estimated at $1.2 billion—a substantial decrease from both 1952 and 1953. Increased liquidation of Commodity Credit Corporation loans and reduced reliance on loans by the Mutual Security Agency are the largest factors in the 1954 decline.

NEW COMMITMENTS

New commitments provide the best single measure of the trends in most Federal credit programs. They also provide the best indication of trends in the economic impact of these programs, since changes in the magnitude of new commitments usually lead to corresponding changes in the volume of loans disbursed either by public agencies or private lenders.

In this study, commitments are defined as approvals by Federal agencies of direct loans or of insurance or guarantees of private loans. They are shown on a gross basis, without deductions for commitments which do not result in an actual credit extension. The amounts included are the principal amounts of the loans themselves, even though in the case of most guarantee and insurance programs these exceed the Government's contingent liability.

As table 2 indicates, commitments for Federal guarantees and insurance of private loans account for roughly two-thirds of total new commitments. This high proportion arises from the policy of relying on private credit wherever it can be made available on reasonable terms. Many of the direct loans and investments also add to private lending; for example, purchases of mortgages from private financial institutions and discounts of short-term farm credit extended by private lenders. Many of the remaining direct loans are made where private credit is not available even with Federal insurance or guarantees, e. g., direct loans for defense production, or where risks are regarded as unusually great, as in the international area.

Direct loans and investments.—New commitments for direct loans and investments are estimated at $5.1 billion in the fiscal year 1954, compared to $6.1 billion in 1953 and $5.2 billion in 1952. The high 1953 level is accounted for primarily by substantial increases in defense-related programs, especially new commitments by the Federal National Mortgage Association to finance housing construction in critical defense areas. Curtailments in 1954 reflect in large part the fact that expansion goals for defense production and for related defense housing are being achieved.

Guarantees and insurance.—New commitments for Federal guarantees and insurance of private loans are estimated at $12.2 billion in the fiscal year 1954 and $11.5 billion in 1953, substantially above the $9.7 billion committed in 1952.

The major part of the increase since 1952 is accounted for by increased mortgage insurance commitments by the Federal Housing Administration as credit controls are relaxed, and by much heavier reliance upon Commodity Credit Corporation guarantees of commodity loans as the supply of farm commodities becomes more ample.

Overlap in commitments.—Total commitments overstate by as much as $2 billion the net amount of credit assistance by the Federal Government, especially for housing credit. This is because two or more types of Federal assistance are sometimes provided for the same borrower or the same property at different stages in the financing process. No adjustment is made for this overlap, since the amount in any single year is difficult to estimate.

A substantial share of the housing initially constructed with the aid of mortgage insurance commitments by the Federal Housing Administration is ultimately sold to veterans who finance their purchases with mortgages guaranteed by the Veterans Administration. The Federal National Mortgage Association is authorized to purchase mortgages previously insured by the Federal Housing Administration or guaranteed by the Veterans Administration.

Similarly, local housing authorities normally finance most or all of the construction of low-rent units with temporary loans made or directly guaranteed by the Public Housing Administration. These temporary obligations, however, are refinanced by sale of long-term obligations to private investors on the security of annual contribution contracts. This refinancing accounts for the great bulk of the increase in commitments by the Public Housing Administration.

DISBURSEMENTS AND REPAYMENTS

Direct loans and investments have a significant impact on the Federal Budget, since the difference between their disbursement and repayment represents Federal expenditures or receipts. Federal guarantees and insurance of private loans, on the other hand, do not significantly affect Federal expenditures, since they result primarily in expenditures by private financial institutions. Only if they have been taken over by Federal agencies as a result of defaults or otherwise are they reflected in Budget expenditures. Net expenditures for Federal credit assistance give, therefore, only a partial picture of the economic impact of these programs.

Net expenditures of all Government lending programs—with the exception of loans from trust funds or by quasi-public agencies—are included in the Budget totals. In most cases, collections are offset directly against expenditures; in a few major programs, however, they go directly to miscellaneous receipts and, therefore, do not affect Budget expenditures.

Expenditures of most loan programs are shown in most Budget tables on a net basis, i. e., they reflect new loans less repayments of old loans. In table 1 of this analysis, expenditures for loans are shown on a net basis. However, to indicate more clearly the total volume of loans, table 3 shows both gross loan disbursements and repayments (including those going directly to miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury). The difference between these two columns represents the net addition to or reduction in Federal loan assets (excluding charge-offs and recoveries) for the major credit programs during the fiscal year. To bring total expenditures for loans into line with budget expenditures, net expenditures of minor Federal programs and an adjustment for repayments going directly to miscellaneous receipts are shown.

In both tables 1 and 3, the expenditure figures represent disbursements and repayments of loans only, and exclude all income and expense items. Losses actually incurred and written off are treated as repayments, but no allowance is made for possible future losses or recoveries. Consistent with the general definition of Budget expenditures, investments in United States Government securities are excluded.

In the fiscal year 1954 gross loan disbursements of major Federal credit programs are estimated at $5.2 billion, and repayments at $4.3 billion. Thus the gross level of activity will be about 10 times as high as the net expenditures of $919 million. Of the total repayments, $263 million will go directly to miscellaneous receipts, chiefly repayments of loans by the Farmers' Home Administration, the Rural Electrification Administration, and the Treasury loan to the United Kingdom. Net Budget expenditures for loans, therefore, will amount to an estimated $1.2 billion.

Measured in terms of both disbursements and repayments, the Federal intermediate credit banks represent the most active direct lending program. This reflects primarily the short-term nature of their advances, which are frequently renewed. Net expenditures of the banks in 1954 will be only about 2 percent of gross disbursements. On the other hand, current levels of repayments are small when compared with current disbursements in the case of new programs, such as college housing and slum clearance and urban redevelopment, as well as in programs with predominantly long-term loans, such as the Rural Electrification Administration or loans for expansion of defense capacity.

Neither current repayments nor net expenditures provide any measure of the ultimate recoverability of the loans made. In most programs, interest or premiums cover expenses and losses. In some programs the legislative mandates make losses probable from time to time, such as the nonrecourse loans of the Commodity Credit Corporation and the loan-guarantee programs of the Veterans Administration.

LOANS OUTSTANDING AND GUARANTEES IN FORCE

The best index of the level of Federal credit programs over a period of years is provided by the total of their outstanding loans, guarantees, and insurance in force.

Outstanding loans and investments by the end of the fiscal year 1954 are estimated at $17.4 billion (table 4). Somewhat less than half of this represents loans to foreign governments, including the outstanding loan of $3.6 billion to the United Kingdom, loans of $2.6 billion by the Export-Import Bank and $1.6 billion by the Mutual Security Agency.

The amount of loans outstanding is expected to increase substantially during the 2 years ending June 30, 1954, with increases for every major credit program, except the loan to the United Kingdom. More than one-third of the expected increase is accounted for by the Federal National Mortgage Association.

Guarantees and insurance in force are estimated to increase to $32.4 billion by the end of the fiscal year 1954. Mortgage insurance by the Federal Housing Administration and guarantees by the Veterans Administration account for roughly 90 percent of this total.

The amounts shown represent the estimated contingent liability of the Federal Government and exclude the unguaranteed portion of loans. The major program on which the contingent liability differs materially from the principal amount of the loan is the veterans' loan guarantee program. By the end of the fiscal year 1954, the outstanding amount of such loans will be at least $8 billion higher than the Government liability under present economic conditions.

The probability that the Government will be called upon to meet these contingent liabilities in most instances is small, except in a national financial emergency. Sizable assets are available to minimize any potential losses. Moreover, in the case of mortgage insurance programs, the premium income in the past has been sufficient not only to cover expenses and current losses, but also to build up substantial reserves.

NEW OBLIGATIONAL AUTHORITY

Table 5 summarizes new obligational authority, giving a breakdown between Budget authorizations, i. e., those included in Budget totals of new obligational authority, and other authorizations (which do not normally give rise to Budget expenditures). New obligational authority for the fiscal year 1954 is estimated at $5.9 billion, approximately equal to the 1953 level, but substantially below the authority provided in 1952. Only $904 million of this represents new Budget authorizations. More than one-half of the new obligational authority is accounted for by the loan guarantees and insurance made by the Veterans Administration primarily for the construction and purchase of houses by veterans, and by the loan guarantee authority provided in the Defense Production Act.

(1) Not available.

New obligational authority for most credit programs has been provided by Congress in the basic legislation rather than in appropriation acts. For example, the lending authority of the Export-Import Bank and the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, the borrowing authority of the Commodity Credit Corporation and the Public Housing Administration, and the various mortgage insurance authorizations of the Federal Housing Administration are all prescribed in the statutes governing these programs. In only a few cases—such as the Rural Electrification Administration and the Farmers' Home Administration—are limits on new obligational authority normally set in annual authorizations. The general rule is, rather, merely to impose annual limitations on administrative expenses, which are not included in this analysis.

Most credit programs do not require new or additional obligational authority each year. In several important cases, the authority provided by the basic statute is indefinite in amount. The most important examples are guarantees and insurance of loans by the Veterans Administration, guarantees of defense production loans under section 301 of the Defense Production Act, and indirect guarantees of local housing authority obligations issued on the security of annual contribution contracts of the Public Housing Administration. In these cases, the tabulations show new authorizations equal to the net amount of new commitments estimated. In other cases, new credit commitments can be financed out of unexpended or uncommitted balances of prior authorizations, or out of funds made available by collections on outstanding loans. Hence, requests for new obligational authority in any one year are limited to relatively few credit programs; for example, in the fiscal year 1954, new obligational authority is specifically requested for only 3 of the 17 major programs. In addition, new authority becomes available for the slum clearance program under a permanent authorization provided in the basic statute.

A second type of new obligational authority indefinite in amount exists in the case of loan programs where the obligational authority can also be used for grants, purchase commitments, or other nonlending purposes. Major examples are expansion of production under the Defense Production Act, and the programs of the Commodity Credit Corporation and the Mutual Security Agency. In these programs, all the new obligational authority provided could legally be used for loans, but is not likely to be so used. Loans by the Mutual Security Agency in 1953 and 1954 account for only a minor part of the total assistance program, so that it would be misleading to include the total amount of the foreign aid program as new obligational authority for loan assistance. The data, therefore, show amounts for new obligational authority adequate to finance estimated new commitments. Loans by the Commodity Credit Corporation and under the Defense Production Act, however, account for a substantial part of these programs. Their total new obligational authority is, therefore, included, even though in both instances some of it will be used for nonlending purposes.

STATUS OF CREDIT AUTHORITY

Unlike most other Government programs, commitment authority for the major credit programs is not normally provided for a single year, but remains available in most instances until utilized or until the statutory authority for the program expires. Hence, with only a few exceptions, the existing authority represents the cumulative total of amounts made available in prior years.

Cumulative net authority.—Three major types of commitment authority have been provided for Federal credit programs. A majority of the major programs operate on a revolving-fund basis, that is, collections on outstanding loans and expirations of insurance commitments permit reuse of the original authority. Limitations on such programs are ordinarily in terms of maximum amounts of loans outstanding, maximum borrowings from the Treasury, or maximum amounts of insurance or guarantee liability. Leading examples include lending programs of almost all Government corporations and the mutual mortgage insurance program of the Federal Housing Administration.

In the case of several noncorporate loan and loan insurance programs a maximum limitation is placed upon the total volume of loans and loan insurance commitments. Funds collected on such loans and expirations of such insurance are not available for reuse. Typical examples are the direct loan programs of the Rural Electrification Administration and the Farmers' Home Administration and military and defense housing mortgage insurance programs of the Federal Housing Administration.

A few programs are not governed by any specific dollar limitations. These are limited only indirectly by the provisions of the statute or of the agency's regulations governing eligibility for Federal credit assistance. The amount committed depends primarily on the number of applications. The most important example is the loan guarantee and insurance program of the Veterans Administration. The loan guarantees authorized under section 301 of the Defense Production Act are also not specifically limited.

1 Not available.

In the case of both the Commodity Credit Corporation and lending programs under the Defense Production Act, loans are financed from obligational authority which also finances nonlending programs. For the purposes of this analysis, the net authority available at the beginning of the year for these loan programs is set equal to the total available authority after deducting authority committed for nonlending programs. An exception is made for the Mutual Security Agency, because its loans account for only a very small and indefinite fraction of the total economic assistance given under the foreign aid program in 1953 and 1954. Its authority at the beginning of the year is, therefore, shown as equal to loans outstanding and undisbursed commitments at the beginning of the year.

Credit authority available at the beginning of the fiscal year 1954 is estimated at $60.3 billion (table 6). New obligational authority of $5.9 billion is estimated to be made available during the year. On the other hand, estimated expirations, certain repayments, and other reductions in outstanding authority amount to $3.4 billion. The net authority available at the end of the fiscal year 1954 is, therefore, estimated at $62.8 billion.

Charges against authority.—In addition to outstanding loans and guarantees, shown in detail in table 4, charges against the available authority include undisbursed commitments. These are expected to total $5.9 billion on June 30, 1954.

Uncommitted authority.—For major Federal credit programs as a whole, commitment authority at the end of the fiscal year 1954 is estimated to exceed charges against the authority by $7.1 billion. Half of this amount is accounted for by the unused borrowing authority of the Commodity Credit Corporation. Unused lending authority of the Federal intermediate credit banks, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation, and the slum clearance and urban redevelopment program represent the other large items.

Since the indefinite authority of loan guarantee programs not subject to specific limitations is shown as equal to charges against the authority, the total uncommitted authority in table 6 does not reflect the fact that these guarantee programs could be expanded substantially under presently available authority. However, roughly 70 percent of the cumulative authority is subject to definite limitations.

Since this analysis is limited to the most active credit programs, substantial amounts of uncommitted authority of inactive programs are excluded. The most important examples of such standby authority are the $3 billion borrowing authority for the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation, $1 billion for the Federal home loan banks, and $750 million for the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation. These are unlikely to be used unless a national financial emergency occurs.

QUASI-PUBLIC CREDIT PROGRAMS

The Federal Government also has a measure of responsibility for the credit programs of certain mixed-ownership corporations and other public agencies operating in whole or in part with private funds. The most important are the banks for cooperatives, the Federal land banks, the Federal home loan banks, and the Federal Reserve banks.

The 12 regional banks for cooperatives make loans to agricultural cooperatives. Most of the stock in the banks is still owned by the Federal Government and the banks are supervised by the Farm Credit Administration. Loans outstanding at the end of the fiscal year 1952 were $342 million, compared to $311 million in 1951.

The 12 Federal land banks are now privately owned, but are sponsored by the Government and operate under the supervision of the Farm Credit Administration. These banks provide mortgage credit to farmers at relatively low interest rates through individual national farm loan associations. The amount of loans outstanding at the end of 1952 was $1,046 million, compared with $974 million a year earlier.

The 11 Federal home-loan banks are also now privately owned, but are supervised by the Home Loan Bank Board and have authority to borrow $1 billion from the Treasury, if necessary. These banks make both short-term and long-term advances to member savings and loan associations on the security of home mortgages or Treasury obligations, as well as unsecured short-term loans. Advances outstanding on June 30, 1952, were $653 million, but have increased sharply since then.

All of the stock in the 12 Federal Reserve banks is provided by the member banks, but the policies of the Federal Reserve System are controlled by the Board of Governors. Moreover, the Reserve banks pay 90 percent of their profits, after prescribed maximum dividends, to the Treasury, and their entire surplus reverts to the Treasury in the event of liquidation. As part of their normal central banking functions, the Reserve banks stand ready to make short-term discounts and advances for member institutions and also have a small program of direct loans to industry. The amount of discounts, advances, and industrial loans outstanding on June 30, 1952, was $64 million, with discounts and advances seasonally low on that date. One month later, they were nearly $1.3 billion.

MAJOR AGENCIES OR PROGRAMS

EXPANSION OF DEFENSE PRODUCTION

Under the Defense Production Act, the President is authorized to make loans or advances or to guarantee loans for expansion of defense production. Numerous agencies participate in these programs. The analysis assumes extension of the authority until June 30, 1954.

Loan guarantees.—Under section 301 of the Defense Production Act, the Departments of the Army, Navy, Air Force, Commerce, Interior, and Agriculture, the Atomic Energy Commission, the Defense Materials Procurement Agency, and the General Services Administration are authorized to guarantee loans by public or private financing institutions to defense contractors and subcontractors. The Federal Reserve banks act as fiscal agents for the guarantees of private loans, and the procedure is governed by the Federal Reserve Board's Regulation V. No specific limitation is placed on the amount of loan guarantees.

From the beginning of the program in September 1950 to the end of December 1952, about 1,200 V-loans, totaling $2.1 billion, have been authorized by the procurement agencies. About 90 percent of the guarantees have been authorized by the Air Force, Army, and Navy Departments, primarily to speed the production of aircraft and aircraft parts, electronics and communication equipment, tanks, weapons, and ammunition. Guarantees by the Defense Materials Procurement Agency to expand production of aluminum and other basic minerals and metals account for nearly all of the remainder. The volume of new commitments for guarantees reached a peak early in the fiscal year 1952 and has declined somewhat since then.

To cover administrative expenses and possible losses, charges are made for guarantees, depending upon the proportion of the loan guaranteed. This proportion has averaged about 80 percent. The guaranteed portion of loans must be purchased by the procurement agency upon request of the lender. So far, only about 15 guarantees have been converted into purchased loans, and income has substantially exceeded expenses.

Loans and advances.—Under section 302 of the Defense Production Act (and Executive Order 10281), the Reconstruction Finance Corporation and the Export-Import Bank are authorized to make direct loans or to participate in private loans for the expansion of industrial capacity, development of technological processes, or production of essential materials. This authority is available for borrowers who are ineligible under the regular lending authority of these agencies upon certification as to essentiality to the defense effort by the appropriate defense agency. Certifications of loans to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation totaled $320 million on June 30, 1952, of which $187 million was to assist in expanding the production of copper, steel, and other basic minerals and metals, and the remainder for end-item productive capacity. Loans by the Export-Import Bank account for only a relatively small part of the total. Net expenditures will increase sharply in 1954 as a result of earlier commitments. New commitments will be relatively low, since most of the planned expansion will be under way.

Under section 303 of the same act, the Defense Materials Procurement Agency makes advances on purchase commitments for strategic minerals and metals and industrial equipment. About two-thirds of the advances estimated for 1953 are to machine-tool manufacturers and aluminum producers.

Interest rates charged on both loans and advances are generally 5 percent. No net ultimate cost is expected.

MUTUAL SECURITY AGENCY

As part of its broad program to restore international economic stability and promote the economic development of underdeveloped areas, the Mutual Security Agency makes loans to foreign governments. In the fiscal year 1952, at least 10 percent of foreign economic assistance was required to be in the form of loans. Loans will be made at a substantially reduced level during 1953, primarily to expand the production of strategic minerals and materials. The number of new loans to be made in the fiscal year 1954 is indefinite at this time.

As successor to the Economic Cooperation Administration, the agency also administers loans previously made, including the $62.5 million loan to Spain and the $190 million loan to India under the India Emergency Food Act. More than half of the loans outstanding were advanced during 1949, shortly after passage of the Foreign Assistance Act of 1948.

Interest charges are generally 2.5 percent. Repayments are not scheduled to begin until after June 30, 1954.

VETERANS ADMINISTRATION

This analysis includes the loan guarantee and insurance program and the direct housing program authorized under the Servicemen's Readjustment Act of 1944, as amended. It excludes minor lending activities of the Veterans Administration, such as the policy loans made by the veterans' life insurance funds and a few very small inactive programs.

Loan guarantees and insurance.—The Administrator of Veterans' Affairs guarantees housing, business, and farm loans made by private lenders to World War II and Korean veterans. By June 30, 1952, almost 3 million loans of all types had been guaranteed, of which about 92 percent were for homes, 6 percent for business, and 2 percent for farms. In fiscal year 1953, an estimated 356,000 loans and in 1954 an estimated 368,000 loans will be guaranteed, as compared with 424,000 in 1952. There is no statutory limit on the total amount of these loans. The decline from the 1952 level reflects in large part the unattractiveness to private lenders of the 4 percent interest rate under current administrative regulations. The Government is liable for all losses up to 60 percent of the principal amount or $7,500, whichever is less. No charge is made by the Government for its guarantee. Administrative expenses and claims are paid from a general appropriation for veterans' readjustment benefits. Net losses on claims paid up to June 30, 1952, amounted to about $14 million, or less than 0.1 percent of the principal amount of all loans closed.

Direct housing loans.—In areas where the guarantee program is ineffective because of lack of private loans at 4 percent interest, the Veterans Administrator may make loans directly to veterans for the purchase or construction of homes (including farm housing) at 4 percent interest. It is estimated that by June 30, 1953, about 44,500 direct loans will have been made. The program expires at that time.

RECONSTRUCTION FINANCE CORPORATION

Under its basic statute, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation is authorized to make direct loans or participate in private loans to business enterprises (including railroads), financial institutions, public agencies, and victims of disasters. Loans can be extended only if credit cannot be obtained on reasonable terms from private lenders, if there is a reasonable assurance of repayment, and if the purpose of the loan is in the public interest. Under present policies, only loans which assist military or essential civilian production are regarded as in the public interest.

In addition to the lending authority provided in the basic statute, section 714 of the Defense Production Act authorizes $100 million for loans to small businesses for defense purposes upon the recommendation of the Small Defense Plants Administration. The Federal Civil Defense Act of 1950 authorized loans for civil defense purposes. The Corporation also is liquidating one large foreign loan and about 16,000 housing mortgages made under earlier authority.

As the table below indicates, loans to business enterprises (including railroads) accounted for more than two-thirds of loans, guarantees, and commitments outstanding on June 30, 1952.

Since the attack on Korea, new commitments on business loans and guarantees have been reduced sharply. Approximately three-fourths of the loans made in 1952 to victims of floods, fires, earthquakes, storms, and other disasters originated as a result of Missouri Valley floods. The first civil defense loans were authorized in 1952 to two hospitals.

Current interest rates are 5 percent for loans to businesses, 4.25 percent for public agency loans (including those made under the disaster and civil defense authorizations), and 3 percent for disaster loans for the rehabilitation of private homes. Income from lending activities in the fiscal year 1952 was ample to cover all expenses. Dividends of $12.3 million were paid to the Treasury, largely from current earnings.

EXPORT-IMPORT BANK OF WASHINGTON

The Export-Import Bank is the major foreign lending enterprise of the Government, with total lending authority of $4.5 billion. Its major function is the promotion of trade between the United States and foreign countries. In addition to its usual loans to finance American exports and imports, major loans currently being made include loans for the development abroad of materials essential to the defense effort and for the production of military equipment, and loans to promote the industrialization and welfare of underdeveloped areas. The Bank also acts as an agent of the Director of Mutual Security in administering loans and makes a limited number of loans under Defense Production Act authority.

In general, the Bank's loans supplement or encourage private capital, rather than compete with it. Rates of interest average 2.75 percent on commodity loans, 3.5 percent on development loans, and 4.5 percent on strategic materials loans; average maturities are 15 months, 12 years, and 8 years, respectively. Losses to date have been extremely small. As a result, reserves amounting to $267 million on June 30, 1952, have been set aside for future contingencies. Annual dividend payments to the Treasury were initiated in the fiscal year 1952 at a rate of 2 percent on the outstanding capital stock.

HOUSING AND HOME FINANCE AGENCY

Five major credit programs of the Housing and Home Finance Agency are included in this analysis. Minor credit programs supervised by the Administrator are loans for prefabricated housing, Alaska housing, and defense community facilities, and advances for State and local public works planning.

Federal National Mortgage Association.—The Federal National Mortgage Association provides a secondary market for residential mortgages which are either insured by the Federal Housing Administration or guaranteed by the Veterans Administration. Under legislation enacted in July 1952, the maximum mortgage portfolio was increased by $900 million to $3,650 million and a similar increase was made in advance commitment authority, predominantly for defense mortgages. Commitments for purchase of private defense housing mortgages will reach a peak this year. The analysis assumes extension of the advance commitment authority in the fiscal year 1954, but the amount of new commitments required will be much reduced, since the bulk of defense housing construction will already be under way.

Of the Association's mortgage portfolio of $2.1 billion on June 30, 1952, approximately 90 percent were mortgages guaranteed by the Veterans Administration. This preponderance results primarily from the reluctance of many private lenders to purchase or hold these 4 percent loans under presently prevailing interest rates. In recent months, purchases of defense housing mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration have been increasing. Partly because of the more restrictive policy adopted on nondefense mortgages, purchases of Veterans Administration guaranteed mortgages have been somewhat lower than in 1952 and the 1954 Budget estimates assume a further reduction in purchases and an increase in the sales of these mortgages.

Interest and commitment fees yield a substantial excess over all expenses, including interest on borrowed funds. As a result, the Association expects to pay annual dividends of over $30 million to the Treasury.

Slum clearance and urban redevelopment.—Under the authority of the Housing Act of 1949, the Housing Administrator makes loans and grants to communities to plan and execute projects for the elimination of slums and the redevelopment of blighted areas. Defense priorities and the complex local task of planning these projects and acquiring the necessary land have made this program slow in getting under way. By June 30, 1952, 166 localities were actively engaged in the program, but only 17 projects in 10 communities had reached the actual development stage—including acquisition and preparation of sites and subsequent sale for private or public redevelopment. Rapid expansion is expected in 1953 and 1954 as many more projects go from planning to development. By the end of the fiscal year 1954, outstanding loans, guarantees, and commitments will reach $194.5 million; this compares with $1.0 billion in lending authority available at that time. Sale of federally guaranteed obligations of local public agencies to private lenders is expected to provide about 70 percent of the needed financing.

The interest rate charged local authorities for loans under this program is currently 2.5 percent. Administrative expenses and capital grants are financed by separate appropriations.

College housing loans.—A loan program of $300 million to provide housing for colleges and universities was authorized by the Housing Act of 1950. Loans under this program can currently be made only to meet housing shortages resulting from defense-supporting activities, such as Reserve officers' training programs, defense research work, and medical or other professional training. Eligible applications for these loans rose sharply last spring and summer, with a corresponding increase in new commitments in the fiscal year 1953. Commitment authority of $60 million was released by the President for the fiscal year 1953, and the Budget assumes that an additional $50 million will be released for 1954.

The average interest rate charged educational institutions for loans is now about 3 percent. This is expected to cover all interest and administrative expenses.

Federal Housing Administration.—Since its creation by the National Housing Act of 1934, the Federal Housing Administration has been authorized to insure a great variety of loans made by private lending institutions for the purchase, construction, and improvement of homes. In recent years, almost a third of all new housing constructed has been financed with the aid of mortgage insurance commitments and a substantial share of mortgages to purchase existing housing and of home-improvement loans have been insured by the Federal Housing Administration.

Since 1950, special emphasis has been placed on assuring adequate financing for housing construction in defense areas by providing more liberal mortgage insurance for defense housing units and by extending and expanding the military housing insurance program. In the past year relaxation of credit controls over nondefense mortgages has been accompanied by sharp increases in applications for insurance of mortgages financing both new construction and purchases of existing housing. As a result, additional mortgage insurance authority of $1.5 billion will be required for operations during the fiscal year 1954.

Applications for insurance of property-improvement loans have recently increased to record levels. The present limitation of $1,250 million on outstanding loans of this type is already fully utilized and new loans are now being insured only as outstanding loans are amortized. Accordingly, the Budget assumes an increase of $500 million in the fiscal year 1953 in the maximum authority for this program, together with related changes adequate to permit the higher level of commitments anticipated in 1954.

Insurance premiums, application fees, and income on invested funds provide income ample to cover all current expenses of the various insurance funds, as well as to build up substantial reserves for possible future losses. In the case of the mutual mortgage insurance fund, the permanent peacetime program, dividends are distributed to mortgagors if reserves prove adequate. Legislation to strengthen the general reinsurance reserve was presented to the Congress too late for action last session.

Public Housing Administration.—The Housing Act of 1949 authorized the Public Housing Administration to make loans and grants to assist local housing authorities to construct 810,000 low-rent public housing units at the rate of 135,000 units annually over a 6-year period. The President was given authority to vary the number of units started each year, depending on economic conditions. In the appropriation acts, however, the Congress limited the program to 50,000 units for the fiscal year 1952 and 35,000 units for 1953. The 1954 Budget assumes starts of 75,000 units.

The Administration has a borrowing authority of $1.5 billion from which it makes temporary loans or guarantees private loans to local housing authorities to finance preliminary planning and the initial stages of construction. Prior to the completion of construction, the local housing authorities repay these temporary loans and obtain long-term financing by selling obligations—usually to private borrowers. Although these long-term bonds are not directly guaranteed by the Federal Government, the Public Housing Administration contracts with local authorities to pay them annual contributions which are sufficient to cover amortization and interest payments. These obligations, therefore, are treated in the analysis as equivalent to loans guaranteed by the Federal Government. Temporary loans and loan commitments outstanding are expected to reach a relatively constant level somewhat below the $1.5 billion borrowing authority. The amount of guaranteed long-term obligations, however, will rise as an increasing number of housing units are completed.

The interest charged local authorities is based on the going Federal rate for long-term maturities, or 2.5 percent currently. Administrative expenses and annual contributions are financed by separate appropriations.

DEPARTMENT OF AGRICULTURE

Four major farm credit programs are included in this analysis. Minor or inactive programs omitted are disaster loans, production credit corporations, Agricultural Marketing Act, and the Federal Farm Mortgage Corporation (in liquidation).

Rural Electrification Administration.—Since 1935, the Rural Electrification Administration has been making long-term loans, chiefly to cooperatives, to finance construction of electrical distribution, transmission, and generating facilities to serve rural areas without central-station service. Since 1950, similar loans have been made to finance construction and improvements of rural telephone systems.

New obligational authority is provided annually in the Budget to finance these programs. The amounts provided in 1952 and 1953 and recommended for 1954 vary, but because of substantial carry-overs of uncommitted authority in 1952 and 1953, new commitments will be about $200 million in each of the 3 years. For 1954, a decrease in commitments of $30 million for electrification loans will be offset by a $30 million increase for rural telephone loans. In addition to the Budget authorization, each year a contingent authorization for electrification loans is provided which becomes available for commitments to the extent that the Secretary of Agriculture certifies it is needed to meet loan demands.

Interest rates are set by statute at 2 percent. Administrative expenses are financed by a separate appropriation. Collections of principal and interest are deposited in miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury. Out of a total of more than $2 billion of loans made so far, losses have been less than $50,000.

Farmers' Home Administration.—The Farmers' Home Administration makes loans to farmers unable to obtain credit from other sources for farm operating expenses and crop production, farm ownership and improvement, improvement of water facilities in arid and semiarid areas, and for farm housing. Loans are intended to strengthen the family-type farm and encourage better farming methods. These loan programs are financed by annual authorizations. Except for a small increase in water facility loans, the Budget provides for these loan programs to continue in 1954 at the 1953 level. The Administration also may insure a maximum of $100 million a year in long-term mortgage loans to finance the purchase of farms. New commitments under this mortgage-insurance program are dependent primarily on the amount of private credit available to finance the purchase of farms at 3 percent interest and under certain prescribed criteria. The current level of such commitments ($11 million) is expected to continue in 1954.

Interest rates charged on most of the direct loans are 5 percent. Administrative expenses are covered by separate appropriations. Collections of principal and interest go into miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury.

Commodity Credit Corporation.—In carrying out the Government's program of supporting prices of agricultural commodities, the Commodity Credit Corporation makes direct loans to farmers and guarantees loans made by private lending agencies. These loans and guarantees enable farmers to market their commodities in an orderly manner and secure prices for such commodities, in line with the standards set forth in law. All loans are backed by commodities and borrowers may discharge their obligations without personal liability by turning over pledged commodities to the Corporation. These forfeitures of collateral are treated as repayments of loans in this analysis. The Corporation also makes loans for the construction or improvement of farm-storage facilities.

Because of great variations in the supply of agricultural commodities, and to a lesser degree the demand for such commodities, new commitments vary sharply from year to year. In order to encourage banks to hold a larger share of the loans that they make on commodities, the Corporation raised interest rates on 1952 crop loans to 3.5 percent, and the lender's share in the case of indirect loans has been increased from 1.5 to 2 percent. After deduction of funds used for nonlending programs, the Corporation will have $4.8 billion available for loans and loan guarantees in the fiscal year 1954. New commitments of $2 billion are estimated for 1954, but it is anticipated that most loans will be repaid in cash or commodities, leaving outstanding loans and guarantees of $725 million on June 30, 1954.

Capital losses, if any, sustained by the Corporation as a result of price-support operations are restored, along with other reimbursements, by cancellation of an equivalent amount of the Corporation's notes held by the Treasury, thus, in effect, increasing the Corporation's borrowing authority. In the fiscal year 1953, for example, total note cancellations of $303 million will supply additional obligational authority for the Corporation's programs.

Federal intermediate credit banks.—The 12 Federal intermediate credit banks extend credit to production credit associations and privately capitalized farm-lending institutions by discounting short-term notes to help finance the production needs of farmers. To finance their operations, the banks sell short-term debentures to the public. The banks may have obligations outstanding of not more than 10 times their capital and surplus. The capital and surplus also can be increased by additional subscriptions from a revolving fund in the Treasury. The total obligational authority of $1,568 million available on June 30, 1952, allows for this factor.

To finance expanding farm production and to meet higher production costs, new commitments in the fiscal year 1954 are estimated at $2.5 billion, or nearly one-fifth above the 1952 level. Repayments, however, will nearly cover disbursements, with net expenditures estimated at $58 million.

Interest rates charged vary with the costs of funds to the individual banks. They are set high enough to cover all expenses. One-quarter of the net income of the banks is paid to the Treasury as a statutory franchise tax and the rest is added to their surplus and reserves.

TREASURY DEPARTMENT

The only credit program administered by the Treasury Department and included in this analysis is the $3,750 million loan to the United Kingdom, extended in 1947 and 1948. This is a 50-year loan at 2 percent interest. Repayments of principal have been made on schedule, beginning in 1951. They are deposited directly in miscellaneous receipts and are not available for new loans.

SPECIAL ANALYSIS F

FEDERAL ACTIVITIES IN PUBLIC WORKS AND OTHER CONSTRUCTION

This special analysis brings together, on an over-all basis, information on the public works and other construction activities of the Federal Government. Detailed information is presented in part II of this Budget under the agency responsible for the activity.

The performance of the various functions of the Government requires a diversity of works and structures. These range from small buildings costing less than $25,000 to large river basin developments or military installations costing several hundreds of millions of dollars. The provision of some of the needed facilities is accomplished by Federal construction. In other cases the Government, through loans and grants to States and local governments, aids in the construction of public works in which there is a national interest. Most of this work is carried on by the private construction industry under contract with Federal, State, or local agencies. In addition, the Federal Government accomplishes some of its objectives by encouraging construction by private industry and individuals through incentives such as loan guarantees for housing and tax concessions for defense plant expansion.

Some of the public works activities of the Federal Government are concentrated in a few areas of the country, as in the case of the atomic energy plants. Others, such as river and harbor projects and veterans hospitals, are located throughout the country. Federal-aid highways are under construction in each of the States. Some facilities, primarily for military purposes, are constructed outside the United States.

The volume and types of construction vary from year to year as national needs change. Since the Korean aggression, for example, many needed civil works have been postponed in order to make scarce materials and manpower available for military and defense-related needs.

The construction activities of the Federal Government have an important influence on the construction industry as well as on other sectors of the economy. They create demands for materials, equipment, labor, and management. In total, public works constitute important additions to the Nation's wealth. An over-all analysis of the volume and types of public works and their geographic distribution over the country is useful in the economic appraisal of this aspect of the Federal Government's activities.

The fiscal year expenditures for public works and other construction in this analysis are Budget expenditures rather than the value of the work put in place during the year. Although Budget expenditures correspond generally to the value of the work on federally owned projects, they make up only the Federal portion of the cost of the State and local public works aided. Also, Federal expenditures do not reflect the volume of private construction resulting from Federal incentives to industry and individuals.

The total Federal public works expenditures in the Budget for 1954 include $3.9 billion for civil public works and $2.7 billion for military public works and defense construction, and are approximately $800 million above those for 1953. This increase is largely accounted for by the expansion of atomic energy facilities, included under civil public works, and by the increase in defense construction, mainly for the Air Force.

In addition to expenditures for civil and military public works, an estimated $337 million will be spent in 1954 for Federal assistance to construction activities of various semipublic bodies and private nonprofit groups, as well as some international agencies; and certain other Federal programs will stimulate private construction by home owners, individual farmers, and businesses—largely through loans, loan guarantees, tax concessions, and procurement contracts.

Authorizations and expenditures for individual Federal public works programs are shown in the detailed table on pages 1124 to 1128. At the end of this table there is shown a reconciliation of the public works expenditures according to the major categories of "Special analysis D, Investment, operating, and other budget expenditures."

CIVIL PUBLIC WORKS

Since the attack on Korea, Federal civil public works activities, in the main, have been limited to those making the maximum contribution to national security objectives. To achieve this purpose, it has been necessary to postpone certain otherwise desirable development programs and to place emphasis on activities which would make the most direct contribution to the defense program or would help significantly to meet essential civilian needs.

Table 2 shows expenditures for civil public works by agency and major type of activity. In 1954, a major portion of the civil works expenditures will be for programs of a national-security or defense-related character. These include atomic energy facilities, defense housing and community facilities, school construction grants in defense areas, power facilities or multiple-purpose projects with power features, civil defense facilities, and radio facilities for the "Voice of America." Many other civil public works contribute indirectly to the national security effort.

The civil public works activities of the Federal Government result in substantial additions to the wealth of the Nation. The 1954 total includes $3,146 million for additions to Federal physical assets through direct Federal projects and $743 million for additions to State and local assets through Federal grants for highways, airports, schools, hospitals, and other nationally significant works. The remaining $32 million of expenditures is for net loans to non-Federal public agencies, mostly for low-rent public housing. These expenditures reflect $304 million in gross loans and $273 million in repayments.

CONTINUING WORK AND NEW PROJECTS

Table 3 classifies the civil public works programs of the Federal agencies as new or continuing, and as direct Federal construction or as loans or grants to non-Federal public agencies for construction. "New" projects, or features, and "new" commitments include (a) those direct Federal projects or project features on which construction will be started with appropriations or other types of authorizations recommended for the fiscal year 1954, and (b) the new commitments recommended for the fiscal year 1954 for loan and grant programs.

By far the greater portion of the civil works expenditures in 1954 will be for continuation of work now under way. To carry these projects or programs forward will require estimated expenditures of $3.7 billion in that year, and $10.1 billion in later years. Estimates of expenditures required to complete going work after the fiscal year 1954 are based largely on current construction prices. Should these costs change before the projects are completed, the required expenditures would differ accordingly.

New commitments in this Budget for public works will require estimated expenditures of $214 million—only 5 percent of the total 1954 civil works expenditures. On the other hand, completion of work to be started in 1954 will require expenditures of about $900 million after 1954.

The new projects which are recommended include facilities designed to help meet the increasing needs for electricity in power shortage areas—in particular the Tennessee Valley area and the Pacific Northwest. These are Ice Harbor Lock and Dam on the Snake River, the addition of power facilities to three reclamation projects, the construction of a steam electric power plant in the western part of the Tennessee Valley Authority system, and the installation of an additional unit each in its Kingston and John Sevier steam plants.

Six new flood-control projects recommended for starting in 1954 include Toronto Reservoir in Kansas and local protection works at Wheeling-Benwood on the Ohio, Lake Pontchartrain in Louisiana, Sny Basin in Illinois, the Little Missouri River in Arkansas and Cape Girardeau on the Mississippi River in Missouri. These projects will protect areas which are highly vulnerable to floods. The Budget also provides funds for starting upstream flood prevention work in seven new watersheds, to lessen the flood damage on main streams and to bring the flood prevention work on the upper reaches of the rivers into better balance with downstream work.

Other new water resource developments recommended include 5 navigation projects needed to expedite waterborne traffic for defense purposes. These are the deep draft channel and harbor work at Redwood City, Calif.; Portland, Maine; the New York and New Jersey channels; and the Duluth-Superior Harbor; as well as the urgently needed Warrior Lock and Dam in Alabama to replace obsolete and structurally unsound locks. Also, new work is proposed on an extension of the Galveston Seawall to protect a significant urban area and an airport.

A new authorization of $100 million is recommended for defense housing under proposed legislation. Contracts for four new veterans hospitals will be let in 1954. The Budget for 1954 also includes funds to begin construction of a mining laboratory and certain other Federal research facilities. New grant and loan commitments are recommended for highways, airports, hospitals, medical research facilities, and public works in Alaska, most of which will be spent in succeeding years.

BASIC DATA, PRELIMINARY INVESTIGATIONS, AND DETAILED PLANS

Costs for basic data and preliminary surveys are not included in construction costs in this analysis. They are essential, however, to the efficient and economical design and construction of projects.

Basic data.—A total of $54.5 million is recommended in the fiscal year 1954 for general coverage data collection, including geodetic and topographic mapping, geologic and soil surveys, and for assembly of hydrologic and climatologic data. These general programs provide data for the preliminary planning and investigation of construction projects, and substantially reduce the cost of specific project surveys and investigations.

Preliminary surveys.—Well-conceived development projects and many defense installations require much preliminary investigation to determine their engineering and economic feasibility. Inadequate examination of all the problems involved in project formulation before authorization and in construction of the project may result in approval of projects having questionable justification, or in increased costs. Appropriations and allotments totaling $242 million are recommended for the fiscal year 1954 for preliminary investigations of river-basin and other construction programs under consideration.

The foregoing amounts include $4 million for the completion of the comprehensive interagency surveys of the Arkansas-White and Red River Basins and the New England-New York area called for in the 1950 Flood Control Act.

Detailed planning.—Detailed project planning costs are included in construction costs. Preparation of these plans well in advance of construction provides for orderly programming of project construction and prevents expensive changes in project designs during the construction period. Funds for preparation of plans in fiscal 1954 have been recommended in the amount of $47.9 million. This total includes $8.1 million to enable the Corps of Engineers and the Bureau of Reclamation to plan a limited number of high-priority projects already authorized by the Congress. Included also are $29.5 million for planning by the Atomic Energy Commission.

RESERVE OF PUBLIC WORKS PROJECTS

Authorized work.—In addition to the commitments to complete work now under way or work to be started in 1954, agency reports indicate that, on the basis of present prices, almost $16.6 billion of construction work has been authorized, either by general or specific legislation, and may be undertaken after fiscal 1954 if funds are provided. About $12.4 billion of this authorized work is included in the river-basin programs of the Corps of Engineers, the Bureau of Reclamation, and the Tennessee Valley Authority.

Planned projects.—The Corps of Engineers has an estimated $2.0 billion of authorized projects planned to the stage where construction can be undertaken; and advance planning is in various stages of completion on another $2.9 billion of authorized work. The Bureau of Reclamation has a reserve of $254 million in completed plans available in fiscal 1953 for later construction; plans are now in process of preparation for $938 million of projects, and additional planning will continue in 1954. The Tennessee Valley Authority has an estimated $220 million of projects planned and plans for another $1.1 billion of work are in process of preparation. The Atomic Energy Commission has no reserve of completed plans, but has $3.4 billion of projects in process of planning. Other Federal agencies have much smaller amounts of planned work. The aggregate of planned direct Federal projects ready for construction is $2.9 billion, with another $9.5 billion of project plans in process of preparation.

States, local authorities, and cooperatives receiving Federal loans and grants have plans completed for a total of $3.5 billion of projects, with another $4.3 billion in preparation.

PROGRAMS BY MAJOR FUNCTION AND TYPE OF FACILITY

Civil public works expenditures are classified in table 5, following, according to the major functions used in the classification of Federal programs. Nearly all of the functions of the Federal Government require some public works of one type or another. Almost 90 percent of the civil public works expenditures in 1954 will be for two major functions—the development of natural resources and the provision of transportation facilities. The remaining expenditures are spread over the other functions of the Government.

In some cases, public works activities form only a small part of the total cost of the programs carried out under that function. In the case of the agriculture and agricultural resources function, for example, expenditures for construction are only $13 million out of a total for the function of $1.8 billion in 1954. On the other hand, about two-thirds of the expenditures for the natural resources function are outlays for works and structures of various types. The type of financial assistance also varies among the functions. In the area of resource development, the works provided are Federal projects; they represent additions to Federal assets. This is also mainly true of the general government function, under which administrative buildings of the Federal Government are classified. In contrast, the national interest in some fields of transportation is furthered by grants to State and local governments, including those for highway and airport construction. To stimulate the construction of low-rent housing, another type of Federal financial assistance is used—that of loans to local public housing authorities.

Natural resources.—Expenditures for natural resources make up 70 percent of the total outlays for civil public works in the fiscal year 1954 and about 63 percent in 1953. Over half of the $2.7 billion to be spent on resource development in 1954 will be for atomic energy development. Increases for atomic energy account for almost all of the increase in public works expenditure between 1953 and 1954. These increases result primarily because of continued work on the plant expansion program for which funds were appropriated early in the fiscal year 1953. This program includes large additions to the production facilities at Hanford, Wash., Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Paducah, Ky., and a new plant at Portsmouth, Ohio.

Work will continue also at the Savannah River site. Although expenditures for the construction of experimental reactors will remain at substantially the same level as in 1953, expenditures for research facilities in total will decrease. Multiple-purpose development of river basins for flood control, irrigation, hydroelectric power, and related purposes makes up most of the remaining expenditures for natural resources. Expenditures on construction needed for the conservation and development of forest, mineral, park, and fish and wildlife resources and the resources of Indian lands will amount to $52 million.

Completion of the facilities under way or recommended in 1954 will necessitate a relatively high level of expenditures under this function for several years. Major river basin development projects, costing in some cases $100 million to $200 million, require from 3 to 10 years for completion, with substantial outlays in peak construction years. Also, the expansion of facilities for production of fissionable materials and atomic weapons for reactor research will entail large outlays in the next few years.

Transportation and communication.—Transportation facilities also account for a large share of the expenditures for civil public works in 1954. Largest expenditures are for the Federal-aid highway program. With the large unappropriated authorizations and the new authorizations of $575 million a year for 1954 and 1955 under the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1952, grants under this program will require substantial expenditures during the next few years. Most of the remaining expenditures are for construction of forest highways, Alaska roads, the Alaska Railroad, Federal-aid airports, and navigation aids and facilities by the Corps of Engineers and the Coast Guard.

Veterans' services and benefits.—During fiscal year 1954, work will continue on the construction program for Veterans Administration hospitals authorized in 1947, consisting of 76 hospital projects to provide 37,490 beds, 2 new regional offices on existing hospital sites, and the major alteration and renovation of existing hospitals and homes. All but 4 of the 76 hospitals in this program will be under contract by the end of 1953, and these 4 are expected to be placed under contract in fiscal year 1954. They will be located in San Francisco, Calif.; Cleveland, Ohio; Washington, D. C.; and Topeka, Kans.

The 1954 Budget also makes provision for carrying on construction work in 14 United States military cemeteries located in foreign countries, as well as the construction of drainage lines, structures, fences, and drives in cemeteries in this country.

International security and foreign relations.—Public-works activities under this function provide for the construction of office buildings for the United States Government abroad, for living quarters where necessary, and for construction of radio facilities in a world-wide radio broadcasting network for the "Voice of America." Two radio broadcasting facilities will be completed in 1954.

Social security, welfare, and health.—The Federal Government shares in the cost of construction of hospitals and public-health centers through grants to public agencies and nonprofit institutions. In the fiscal year 1954, approval is anticipated on 200 projects. The allocation of $75 million recommended for 1954 is half of the limit authorized in the statute. Expenditures will be largely from prior year allocations. The fiscal year 1955 is the last year for which allocations are authorized. Only the grants made to public agencies are included in the public-works total; those for private nonprofit hospitals are shown in table 8, following.

Funds are recommended in 1954 for grants to State and local bodies for construction of facilities for cancer, heart, and other medical research programs and for water and sewage plants and other community facilities needed for public health in defense areas. Buildings and improvements at Federal prisons are also included under this function.

Housing and community development.—The Federal Government encourages the construction of low-rent public housing units through loans to local housing authorities. The 1954 Budget provides for development activity and construction at the rate of 75,000 units, as compared with 35,000 units provided for by the Congress in 1953 and the annual average of 135,000 units a year for 6 years authorized in the Housing Act of 1949. Work will also continue in 1954 on the construction of federally owned housing units in critical defense areas. An additional authorization of $100 million is recommended in 1954 for continuation of this program. Other expenditures under this function consist largely of grants and loans for community facilities, including water and sewage systems, shelters for civil defense, and for the provision of public works in Alaska and the Virgin Islands.

Education and general research.—Federal grants are made for school construction in districts overburdened by Federal activities. These grants constitute the major part of public works expenditures for education. In 1954, they will be financed from prior year appropriations, and payments will be made only on applications filed before July 1, 1952.

Construction of general research facilities in 1954 is largely for a radio laboratory at Boulder, Colo., by the Bureau of Standards. The guided-missile laboratory under construction in California will be completed in the current year.

Agriculture and agricultural resources.—Construction of a laboratory for research on foot-and-mouth disease accounts for most of the expenditures for this function. Upstream flood-prevention work, including diversion ditches, floodways, and other flood water-retarding structures, will be started on 7 watersheds in 1954, in addition to that now under way in 11 areas. Expenditures in succeeding years may be expected to increase as this work progresses.

General government.—Public works classified under the general government function provide the administrative buildings required to carry on the Government's business, both in the United States and in the Territories. There is at present no general public-buildings construction program under way. This type of construction has been deferred during and since World War II. Present work in this country is limited largely to continuing work on a few projects. Grants are recommended for construction of some public works in Samoa and the Trust Territory of the Pacific Islands.

Types of facilities.—The foregoing discussion of the public works expenditures according to major functions indicates that the Federal Government requires a wide diversity of facilities to carry out its responsibilities. Also, as is shown in table 5, the same general type of facility is sometimes needed in carrying out several major functions. A summary of Federal public works according to type of facility would be useful in various analyses. Budget classifications and expenditure estimates are not in sufficient detail, however, to present a complete analysis on this basis.

A major group of related types of facilities includes those required for water resources development, such as levees, floodwalls, locks, dams, reservoirs, canals, pumping plants, power generation and transmission facilities, and various other facilities. These are discussed in some detail in the analysis of water resources development following.

A number of agencies construct highways, roads, and bridges. Most of these activities are classified under the transportation function, where an estimated $531 million will be spent in 1954 on 5,410 approved projects under the Federal-aid primary, secondary, and urban highway systems, including interstate highways. These systems now have a combined mileage of about 673,000 miles. Other highway and road expenditures in 1954 will provide for 500 miles of forest highways, construction and improvement of about 132 miles of roads and trails in national parks, and progress on four parkways, construction or improvement of 382 miles of Alaska roads, as well as construction of roads on Indian lands and development roads for access to timber in the national forests and public-domain lands. The construction of large dams and reservoirs frequently requires relocation of highways and new road construction. Details shown in the Budget, however, do not provide the basis for segregating these expenditures from the costs of the reservoir.

Other types of facilities which are constructed under several major functions include hospitals, schools, research facilities, and housing and community facilities. In addition to expenditures of about $80 million for veterans' hospitals in 1954, about $10 million will be spent for hospitals in the District of Columbia and $43 million for Federal grants to States for public hospital construction. Grants for nonpublic hospitals, shown in table 8, are estimated at $45 million.

Most of the expenditures for housing and community facilities are classified under the housing and community development function. Employees' quarters will also be under construction by the Panama Railroad and a few by other agencies, especially those carrying on programs in Alaska.

Research facilities are needed to carry on the Government's activities in a number of fields. Construction of these facilities will require about $90 million in 1954, a large part of which will be spent on facilities for research in atomic energy.

The estimated expenditures for the various types of facilities discussed above would be much larger if they included the amounts for construction by the military agencies. The estimates of military public works, however, are not shown in sufficient detail to permit this.

WATER RESOURCES AND RELATED DEVELOPMENT

The civil works programs of the Federal Government are classified in the Budget according to the major functions which they serve, as shown in table 5. However, some activities cut across several of the functional categories. An important example of this is the Federal Government's over-all program for water resources and related developments. While the major part of the work is classified under natural resources, other water-resource developments are carried out under programs for agriculture and agricultural resources and transportation and communication. Expenditures for all these water resources and related developments are estimated at $1.1 billion in the fiscal year 1954, as compared to $1.0 billion in each of the years 1952 and 1953.

Flood control.—The flood-control work of the Federal Government is carried on principally through the program of the Corps of Engineers and the Tennessee Valley Authority. The programs of the Department of Agriculture and the Bureau of Reclamation also include flood control. The flood-control program of the Corps of Engineers is Nation-wide in scope except for the Tennessee Valley area. It involves the construction of storage reservoirs for flood control, hydroelectric power, and related purposes; the construction of protecting levees and flood walls; and the improvement of channels. In 1954, major emphasis will continue on protective works in the Mississippi River and its principal tributaries, particularly the Missouri. Many of the projects on these tributaries involve the generation of hydroelectric power. Large flood-control projects are also under way in the Los Angeles and Central Valley areas of California and are nearing completion in the Roanoke and Savannah River Basins on the Atlantic seaboard. At the end of the fiscal year 1952, there were under way 137 predominantly flood-control projects, as well as multiple-purpose projects with flood-control benefits. Six new single-purpose flood-control projects are included in this Budget. Work of the Tennessee Valley Authority is generally similar to that of the Corps of Engineers but confined to the Tennessee Valley.

The Nation-wide flood prevention program of the Department of Agriculture includes watershed operations, upstream flood-control structures, and prevention of soil erosion, and is currently carried on in 11 watersheds authorized prior to World War II. Funds are included in the 1954 Budget for starting work in seven additional watersheds. Many of the multiple-purpose projects of the Bureau of Reclamation also provide substantial flood-control benefits.

Navigation.—Navigation facilities are provided primarily through the river and harbor program of the Corps of Engineers, except in the Tennessee Valley, where such work is carried on by the Tennessee Valley Authority. Some of the multiple-purpose projects of the Bureau of Reclamation also produce navigation benefits through regulation of low-water river flows and prevention of sedimentation. Navigation projects of the Corps of Engineers and the Tennessee Valley Authority include improvement of channels and harbors, construction of locks, dams and canals, and shore protection work, as well as of multiple-purpose projects with navigation benefits in addition to power and other features. At the end of 1952 the Corps of Engineers had under way 154 predominantly navigation projects, as well as some multiple-purpose projects with navigation benefits.

Irrigation.—The Federal program of land reclamation by irrigation is limited to the 17 Western States and is carried on principally by the Bureau of Reclamation. Some additional developments are constructed by the Bureau of Indian Affairs on Indian lands and by the International Boundary and Water Commission in the Rio Grande Valley as part of the international development of the waters of that river. Irrigation benefits are also produced by some multiple-purpose projects of the Corps of Engineers.

The Bureau of Reclamation program consists primarily of continuation of construction on 57 irrigation and power projects, including the Eklutna project in Alaska and 18 units of the Missouri River Basin program. Approximately three-fourths of the recommended appropriation will be for the Missouri River Basin and for six other important developments, as follows: The Central Valley project in California, Columbia Basin in Washington, Palisades in Idaho, Eklutna in Alaska, Weber Basin in Utah, and Colorado-Big Thompson in Colorado.

New construction to be started by the Bureau of Reclamation in 1954 includes addition of power features to three reclamation projects. These are the American Falls power division of the Minidoka project, the Deer Creek power plant of the Provo River project, and the Roza plant of the Yakima project in the Columbia Basin.

Bureau of Reclamation facilities in 1954 will provide for 313,300 additional acres of irrigated land and 207,500 kilowatts of new power generating capacity.

Summary of Federal hydroelectric power activities.—The major part of the construction for water resources and allied developments is related to or includes the generation of electric power. This power is produced at hydroelectric facilities included in multiple-purpose reservoir projects and at steam electric plants constructed by the Tennessee Valley Authority to meet increased regional demand for electric power.

Capacity installed by Federal power agencies now amounts to 10.2 million kilowatts, or about 12.5 percent of total United States capacity and, when projects now under way are completed, will total 20.8 million kilowatts.

TABLE 7.—Federal electric power generation presently scheduled (name-plate capacity)

[Million kilowatts]
Agency	Dec. 31, 1952	Ultimate
Corps of Engineers.....	1.6	7.5
Bureau of Reclamation.....	4.4	5.2
Tennessee Valley Authority.....	4.2	9.0
International Boundary and Water Commission.....		.1
Total.....	10.2	20.8

New projects proposed in the 1954 Budget would add an additional 1.1 million kilowatts to the above capacity. The Corps of Engineers will provide 0.26 million kilowatts; the Bureau of Reclamation, 0.04 million kilowatts, and Tennessee Valley Authority, 0.8 million kilowatts. This new capacity is located in two regions of the United States, the Northwest and Southeast. These areas have demonstrated a need for additional electric power for several years ahead. In both areas aluminum plants, atomic-energy facilities, and defense industries are heavy users of power.

Marketing of the power from these programs will require the addition of 1,780 miles of transmission lines in 1954 and will bring the total mileage in operation by the end of 1954 up to about 25,500 miles.

Joint construction of the power development in the International Rapids section of the St. Lawrence by entities in the United States and Canada, and construction of Hells Canyon project, as recommended by the President, would add substantially to this total generation.

MILITARY PUBLIC WORKS AND DEFENSE CONSTRUCTION

Expenditures for the major direct Federal military and defense construction are shown on page 1128 of the detailed table. The amounts shown do not reflect the large volume of private construction initiated by the military procurement program for aircraft and similar equipment.

Department of Defense, military public works.—Military public works include both overseas and domestic installations of training and testing facilities, warehouses, new bases, and troop housing for the Army, Navy, and the Air Force. Some facilities are being constructed for the National Guard and the Army and Navy Reserves. Housing and operational buildings are under construction as a part of the Alaska communications system. The Navy is enlarging the aqueduct providing San Diego with water. Expenditures for these purposes are estimated to be $2.6 billion in 1954, an increase of almost $300 million over 1953 and about $800 million over 1952.

Defense construction.—The term "defense construction" is used to describe construction activities of agencies other than the Department of Defense which are directly related to the defense program and classified functionally under "military services." The National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics is constructing and enlarging wind tunnels, laboratories, and related facilities in California, Ohio, and Virginia for research on defense projects.

In 1953, the Reconstruction Finance Corporation will substantially complete the major modification of synthetic rubber plants to convert to cold-rubber production and to increase styrene-rubber capacity from 760,000 to 860,000 tons annually. In 1954, the estimate provides for modification of existing facilities producing raw material for the manufacture of synthetic rubber so as to increase efficiency. In both 1953 and 1954, under the Budget estimates, substantial replacements of worn-out facilities will be made.

New authority recommended in 1954 for the stockpile program will provide for construction of additional tank capacity of 340,000 barrels and 4.5 million square feet of covered warehouse space to round out the facilities needed to store our stockpile of strategic and critical materials. The major alterations at the Nicaro plant in Cuba and at the various magnesium production facilities are substantially completed.

OTHER FEDERAL ACTIVITIES IN CONSTRUCTION

In addition to civil and military public works, there are other types of Federal activities, involving loans, loan guarantees, grants, or direct Federal expenditures, which affect or involve construction. The distinguishing feature of these expenditures is that they contribute principally to the physical assets of international public bodies, of semipublic and private groups, or of individuals, whereas public works are limited both in the foregoing sections of this analysis and in the "Analysis of investment, operating and other Budget expenditures (analysis D)" to additions to Federal, State, and local governmental physical assets.

INTERNATIONAL AND SEMIPUBLIC WORKS

One important group of these programs consists of Federal aid for international public works and semipublic works programs, shown in table 8.

<sup>1</sup> Nonconstruction costs excluded.<sup>2</sup> Negligible deduction.<sup>3</sup> Includes semipublic construction only. Balance of construction amount is shown in civil public-works table.

As part of our international responsibilities, we are helping to construct inter-American highways in Costa Rica and Nicaragua and to build hospitals in the Philippines for the veterans. The United States has also made a loan for construction of the United Nations building in New York. Table 8 does not indicate the assistance given under the NATO and mutual security program for the construction of facilities needed in the common defense.

The largest of the semipublic works programs is that of the Rural Electrification Administration. This agency makes loans primarily to rural cooperatives to finance electrification facilities to serve rural areas. The program was initiated in 1935 when less than 11 percent of the farms in the United States had electricity, as compared to 88 percent at present. The agency also makes loans to provide and improve rural telephone facilities, a program initiated in 1950.

Grants for hospital construction are made to States for both public and private hospitals. The grants for public hospitals are classified as public works. Grants for private hospitals, most of them nonprofit hospitals, represent about 50 percent of the total hospital grants. (See special analysis G, Federal aid to State and local governments.)

Construction at Howard University in 1954 will include buildings necessary for the medical program and installation of required utilities.

AIDS FOR PRIVATE CONSTRUCTION

Another group of Federal programs consists of loans, loan guarantees, tax concessions, and occasionally grants, direct aid, and other incentives. These are for construction by individual farmers, home owners, and business. This additional construction is an important segment of the Nation's total construction and, with special reference to the defense program, has helped to provide the large volume of industrial expansion essential to mobilization.

The Farmers' Home Administration makes various types of loans for farm houses and buildings. A part of the Department of Agriculture programs for flood-prevention activities includes direct construction of control structures on farmers lands. These are designed to reduce floods by controlling flow in upstream areas. The Commodity Credit Corporation makes loans for the construction or expansion of grain-storage facilities and provides storage-use guarantees to encourage the construction of commercial storage facilities.

In the field of housing, the Federal Housing Administration and the Veterans Administration operate programs for the insurance or guarantee of mortgages on private homes.

Under the Defense Production Act and related legislation, substantial incentives are provided to encourage construction of plants needed for defense. Certificates of necessity have been issued to permit rapid tax amortization of facilities whose total value is about $24 billion. Many of the substantial expansions in the steel, aluminum, petroleum refining, electric power, and other industries have received this type of assistance. Under the $2.1 billion borrowing authority in the Defense Production Act, several types of incentives are provided to encourage construction of defense facilities. Loans, advances against production, guaranteed prices, and purchase contracts at higher than ceiling prices are also provided under this authority to aid defense-industry expansions. Most of the desired expansion activities under these programs, required to achieve the current mobilization objectives, have already been initiated.

The loans and loan guarantee programs, including those having a major impact on private construction activities, are discussed in special analysis E, relating to Federal credit programs.

SPECIAL ANALYSIS G

FEDERAL AID TO STATE AND LOCAL GOVERNMENTS

This special analysis brings together in a single listing the estimates of expenditures for programs of Federal aid to State and local governments which appear in various agency chapters in part II of this Budget. The total of Federal aid in the fiscal year 1954 is estimated at $2,959 million, or 4 percent of all Federal Budget expenditures. The individual programs are identified in the detailed table which follows this explanatory statement.

The largest part of these Federal-aid expenditures will take the form of grants-in-aid, estimated at $2,863 million in the fiscal year 1954. Expenditures for shared revenues are estimated at $49 million in 1954. Expenditures for new loans and repayable advances to State and local governments are about $48 million more than collections credited against these expenditures.

Federal-aid expenditures over an 8-year period and their relative budgetary importance for the Federal Government and for the State and local governments are shown in table 1.

Categories and definitions.—"Federal aid to State and local governments," as the concept is used here, includes (a) grants-in-aid, (b) shared revenues paid over, and (c) loans and repayable advances. In addition to financial assistance, it includes grants made in the form of commodities, structures, or services, to the extent that these grants-in-kind can be identified in the Budget. Aid to Territorial Governments belonging to the United States, and to their political subdivisions, is also included. Federal administrative expenses incurred in providing the aid are excluded.

In general, Federal aid is employed as a device of inter-governmental cooperation through which the Federal Government participates in selected State and local programs of national interest. Thus, in the case of grants-in-aid, the Federal financial participation is not based on a particular service rendered specifically for the Federal Government by the State or local government, but rather is in support of a State or locally administered program of governmental service to the public. In most programs, the distribution among the States is determined by a formula specified in the basic law.

All Federal grant-in-aid laws contain provisions restricting the Federal expenditures to specified purposes. States or local governments seeking to qualify for grants are usually required to meet certain conditions and standards relating to such matters as State or local financial participation, approval of State plans, the designation of an administering agency, a merit system of personnel selection, reporting systems, and audits. In their details these conditions and standards vary considerably among programs.

Legislation governing a few grant-in-aid programs permits aid to private nonprofit agencies or institutions. The hospital construction program of the Federal Security Agency is an illustration. It is estimated that 51 percent of Federal expenditures for this purpose in the fiscal year 1954 will be used for nonpublic hospitals. The program, nevertheless, is one in which the States have a central role through the preparation of State-wide programs, the approval of individual projects, and the channeling of the Federal payments. Therefore the entire amount authorized and spent for the program is included as Federal aid in this table, but the amount going to private institutions is also indicated separately. Payments for privately owned hospital facilities in the District of Columbia are also included as Federal aid; they are part of a general local hospital program roughly analogous to the federally aided programs in the States. In this instance, half of the Federal expenditures are an advance to be repaid by the District government.

Another program which involves some grants to non-public institutions is the school-lunch program of the Department of Agriculture.

On the other hand, certain Federal programs may incidentally involve grants to particular State or local governmental agencies, even though they are not primarily programs of grants-in-aid or loans to State or local governments. For example, the Public Health Service and National Science Foundation make research grants to colleges and universities, including some State and local institutions. These payments are not included in the tabulation.

The payment of unemployment allowances to military veterans of the Korean campaign is considered a direct Federal program. The States, as a service to the Federal Government, actually make the benefit payments through their unemployment compensation offices, and the expenses of administration are paid by the Federal Government as part of its general grant-in-aid for unemployment compensation and employment service administration. These administrative costs are not identified separately and therefore are included in the Federal-aid total even though the benefit payments are excluded.

Shared revenues are payments of a portion of the proceeds from the sale of certain Federal Government property, products, and services, usually in connection with the management of public lands. Usually, the Federal law requires that the State or local shares be used for schools or for schools and roads in the county where the Federal lands are located.

Loans are made to State or local governmental bodies by the Housing and Home Finance Agency and by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for specified types of public improvements. Advances are made for advance planning of non-Federal public works and slum-clearance planning; these are repayable if the planned projects are carried out. Advances are also made by the Federal Civil Defense Administration in the operation of its supply procurement fund, which represents a central purchasing operation for State and local civil defense stocks. Part of the Alaska public works expenditures, like the District of Columbia hospital program, represents Federal advances to be repaid by the government of the Territory.

Budget expenditures for loans and repayable advances are net amounts, representing for any year the gross amount of loans and advances less credits for certain collections during the year. As estimated for the fiscal year 1954, Budget expenditures for this purpose are approximately $48 million. Gross disbursements are estimated at $361 million, collections at more than $313 million. An estimated $8 million of other collections from State and local governments on account of repayable advances are a part of "Miscellaneous receipts" and are not deducted from gross disbursements in computing Budget expenditures.

Major programs.—Grants to State and local governments account for nearly two-thirds of all the Federal Budget expenditures estimated for 1954 for social security, welfare, and health; labor; and education and general research. More than one-fourth of the Budget expenditures for transportation and communication will be for grants-in-aid.

The largest single program of grants is for public assistance, estimated at $1,340 million, 45 percent of all Federal aid to State and local governments in 1954. Several major grants are for construction programs—highways, airports, schools in defense-emergency areas, and hospitals. Major nonconstruction programs include aid for the operation of schools in defense-emergency areas, the administrative costs of unemployment compensation and labor placement services, school lunches, and the distribution of agricultural commodities to public institutions.

The largest loan programs are those of the Housing and Home Finance Agency for low-rent public housing and for slum clearance and redevelopment and of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for various types of community facilities.

Factors affecting aid expenditures and allocations.—The amounts expended for most programs of Federal aid are subject to limitation in advance within maximum amounts established in the basic authorizing laws. However, in the public assistance program the Federal payment is a reimbursement to the States of a portion of their expenditures. The amount paid to each State is determined by a statutory formula applied to actual case loads and individual benefit rates established by the State. Consequently the amount appropriated in advance does not necessarily limit the Federal payment for a given year.

Most Federal grant-in-aid statutes provide for the allocation of money among the States according to formulas containing specified measures of need, such as population, per capita income, the incidence of certain diseases, area, or road mileage. These formulas vary considerably from one program to another, depending on the nature of the activity or services for which the aid is given. A few grants are allocated to States as a percentage of State expenditures within specified statutory limits. Other grants are distributed as an equal amount to each State. Some allocation formulas are statutory while others are established by the administering Federal agency on the basis of criteria listed in the laws.

Citations to the basic laws are included in the pertinent appropriation language in part II of the Budget. Summary information about the formulas, as well as the statutory citations, are published annually by the Treasury Department in its "Combined statement of receipts, expenditures, and balances of the United States Government," in which, in the volume for 1952, table 31 covers grants-in-aid and table 32 shows shared revenues.

Relationship to other Budget figures.—Although the entries in this special analysis are compiled from part II of the Budget, and the program titles in general follow the appropriation account titles listed there, certain adjustments in the amounts have been necessary to provide a proper estimate of aid to State and local governments. These are noted below. Some inclusions and exclusions are noted above under "Categories and definitions."

All the amounts shown in this special analysis represent Budget expenditures, as defined in the introduction to the Budget and further explained in the introduction to part I. Expenditures for grants or loans are made in some instances from an appropriation which also finances direct Federal operations or Federal administrative expenses. In such cases, the amounts tabulated here ordinarily represent an estimate of only that part of the expenditure which is paid out as aid to State and local governments.

The amounts shown for the Department of Agriculture program, "Donation of commodities," represent the cost of commodities distributed during the year, whereas the commodities may have been bought, in part, in connection with the agricultural price-support activities of a different fiscal year. This is the major grant-in-kind program in the tabulation. Expenditures shown for the school-lunch program of the Department of Agriculture also include the cost of some commodities purchased by the Federal Government and distributed to schools.

The detailed tabulation of Federal expenditures for aid to State and local governments is arranged according to the functional classification used in the Budget Message and several of the summary tables in this volume. In order that this analysis may be related readily to the analysis of investment, operating, and other Budget expenditures presented in special analysis D, that tabulation shows separately in each category the amounts of Federal aid to State and local governments. In table 2, following, the Federal aid programs are recapitulated to follow the outline of special analysis D.

Table 3 similarly relates this special analysis of Federal aid to the tabulation, in special analysis F, of Budget expenditures for Federal activities in public works. About one-fourth of all Federal-aid expenditures is for public works, and most of the public-works grants are for transportation facilities.

In many programs involving Federal aid to State and local governments, the expenditures in a given fiscal year correspond closely to the amount of new obligational authority made available for that year. The amount of new obligational authority enacted or recommended for each appropriation account is shown in the tables at the beginning of the several chapters in part II of this Budget. In many instances (as indicated by footnotes to the detailed tabulation in this special analysis), the obligational authority is available not only for Federal aid to State and local governments but also for direct Federal operations and other uses. Apart from these cases, the Federal-aid programs in which there are substantial differences between new obligational authority for any year and expenditures in that year are chiefly construction programs, for the reason that construction projects cannot generally be completed and paid for within a single fiscal year. Programs with substantial differences between estimated expenditures and new obligational authority for the fiscal year 1954 include the Federal Security Agency grants-in-aid for hospital construction and for school construction and operation in defense-affected areas, the Housing and Home Finance Agency programs of grants for defense community facilities and services and loans for low-rent public housing, the Federal Civil Defense Administration grants for protective facilities, and the Department of Commerce grants for highways.

Other financial relationships.—Apart from grants-in-aid, loans, and shared revenues, many other Federal expenditures and policies affect the finances of State and local governments. Types of transactions not covered in the tabulation of aids include the following:

(a) Reimbursements for various specific services, such as payments to public educational institutions for tuition of veterans and of students from the Armed Forces and payments to local governments for care of Federal prisoners in local institutions.

(b) Contractual payments to public institutions for research and training in specified fields.

(c) The value of war surplus educational and hospital supplies, materials, and equipment, and of housing donated or sold at substantial discount to State and local agencies.

(d) The payments of property taxes, or payments in lieu of property taxes, made upon Federal property under the provisions of nearly a score of laws. When such payments are based upon a percentage of revenues, however, as in the case of the Tennessee Valley Authority, they are included in the shared-revenue section of the table.

Also, the table does not reflect various indirect financial benefits accruing to State and local governments such as the lower interest rates which those governments enjoy because of exemption from Federal income tax of interest paid on State and local debt; the indirect Federal guarantee of municipal obligations issued for low-rent housing and slum clearance; deductions of State and local income, property, and other taxes from personal and corporate incomes in computing Federal income tax; services which may be rendered to other governmental units by Federal agencies in the ordinary course of their operations; and some programs administered cooperatively for the purposes of both the State and Federal Governments, such as agricultural crop reporting or the National Guard.

Some of these financial benefits, of course, have counterparts in the form of services rendered or occasional payments made to the Federal Government by the States or their subdivisions.
