INTRODUCTION

The Budget for the fiscal year 1954 contains the President's recommendations for the work program and financial program of the Government for the coming year. It also presents comparable information for the fiscal years 1952 (actual) and 1953 (partly actual and partly estimated).

The material in the Budget covers both groups of Treasury funds—Federal funds (owned by the Government), and trust and deposit funds (held in trust or in suspense by the Government). It contains information on both the income side of the Budget and the outgo side. The Budget reflects one stage of the income side and three stages of the outgo side. The former is shown on the basis of cash received. The latter is reflected in terms of authorizations, obligations (or in some cases accrued expenditures), and cash expenditures (checks issued).

Congress acts on the outgo side of the Budget by granting authorizations to incur obligations and make expenditures for expenses, grants, capital outlay, and fixed charges. This congressional action takes several different forms, the most common of which is an appropriation. The Budget contains summaries and detailed schedules which show all new obligational authority, both appropriations and other kinds. It also contains details on obligations incurred (or sometimes on expenditures accruing, in the case of business-type budgets).

The outgo side of the Budget is customarily measured in terms of cash expenditures, not on the basis of authorizations or obligations. Expenditures occur when the obligations and liabilities incurred by Government agencies are paid. In some cases the payment and the obligation occur at the same time. In most cases, however, the payment follows the obligation by some time, varying from a few days or weeks in the case of salaries and wages, to several years in the case of some contracts for major construction and the procurement of new heavy equipment. The Budget contains summaries of expenditures, tables listing the expenditures by accounts, and detailed schedules relating the expenditures in each account to obligations and authorizations.

The Budget document consists of the Budget Message and four parts which contain summary tables, detailed data, and special analyses.

In the Budget Message (pp. m5 through m55) the President makes the general presentation of his financial program and outlines his major recommendations.

Part I of the document (pp. A1 through A13) contains seven summary tables on Federal funds and on the public debt. Each of these tables is designed to bring together in one to three pages some over-all aspects of the Federal Budget.

Part II (pp. 1 through 970) contains the details of the Budget for Federal funds, including various types of tables and schedules, explanatory statements of the work to be performed and the money needed, and the text of the language proposed for enactment by Congress on each item of authorization.

Part III (pp. 971 through 1074) contains similar detail for trust funds, and a schedule on deposit funds. It also contains memorandum information on "working funds," which presents the activity in accounts which are established when money is advanced by one agency to another for interagency services.

Part IV (pp. 1075 through 1139) contains various special analyses of budget data and Federal programs. Some of these give details for certain summary figures appearing in part I—for example, a classification of budget receipts by source, and a classification of budget expenditures according to functions and subfunctions. Many of the other special analyses in part IV contain tabulations which cut across the entire Federal program.

An appendix, printed separately, contains more detailed information on personal services by grade and title, and repeats schedules of obligations by object from part II of the budget.

Introductory statements at the beginning of each part give further explanations of budget format. The introduction to part I (pp. A3 and A4) summarizes some of the more important facts with respect to the structure of the budget system, the concept of the budget surplus and deficit, classifications, and terminology used.

BUDGET MESSAGE OF THE PRESIDENT

To the Congress of the United States:

I am transmitting, with this Message, the Budget of the United States Government for the fiscal year ending June 30, 1954.

This Budget represents my judgment as to the amount of funds needed to carry forward our programs for the security and welfare of our people and for world peace. It is based, like all those I have transmitted in previous years, on the policy that the Government should undertake to do only what is essential for the safety and well-being of the Nation, and that what must be done should be done in the most efficient manner.

This Budget has been prepared under unique circumstances. It is the first Budget since the adoption of the Twentieth Amendment to the Constitution to be presented to the Congress by a President who will leave office a few days after its transmission. My successor will be inaugurated as President on January 20. His will be the Executive responsibility during the time when this Budget is being considered by the Congress, and his will be the responsibility for the administration of Federal programs for the period of time covered by this Budget. I have done all in my power to ease the problems of transition to the new administration, including informing the President-elect, through a representative of his choice, of the background and considerations which have entered into the preparation of this Budget. However, I wish to make it clear that neither my successor in office nor any of his staff has participated in the decisions herein represented. The President-elect has no responsibility for the amounts included in this Budget, and will be entirely free, of course, to propose changes in them.

Because of the particular circumstances, there is one significant difference between this Budget and others I have transmitted. In previous years, the Budget estimates have included the cost of new legislation which I recommended to the Congress. Such a practice is a sound rule for Federal budgeting. This year, however, I am not transmitting specific proposals for new legislation. Accordingly, the usual estimates of the fiscal effects of such legislation are not included. For example, neither estimated expenditures for aid to medical education nor estimated receipts from increased postal rates are included. I still support these and certain other legislative proposals as strongly as ever, but since I will not be in office during the fiscal year 1954, I do not think it proper for me to transmit specific new legislative proposals or to budget for them. However, funds are included in this Budget to carry forward certain activities already under way which will require renewed legislative authority to continue into the next fiscal year, such as the programs under the Mutual Security Act and the Defense Production Act.

In this Budget, I am recommending that the Congress enact 72.9 billion dollars in new authority to incur financial obligations during the fiscal year 1954. Total expenditures, from these funds and from balances of authorizations previously enacted, are estimated at 78.6 billion dollars. Receipts under present tax laws, which provide for the expiration of some of the post-Korean tax increases, are estimated at 68.7 billion dollars. On this basis, the deficit is estimated at 9.9 billion dollars. The following table shows the Budget totals for the five fiscal years 1950 through 1954.

BUDGET TOTALS
[Fiscal years. In billions]

	1950 actual	1951 actual	1952 actual	1953 estimated	1954 estimated

Deficit (-) or surplus (+).....	-3.1	+3.5	-4.0	-5.9	-9.9

These figures show very clearly the budgetary impact of the defense mobilization program on which we embarked after the communist aggression in Korea in June 1950. This program required, among other things, that we increase our active military forces by about two million men and women, equip those larger forces with new and improved weapons, and maintain them for an indefinite period. These were steps judged necessary not only to carry out the commitment we undertook in Korea, but also to increase our defense preparedness in the light of the continuing possibility of fighting on a much larger scale. We are now well along in this program. Our armed forces have long since reached the level of 3.6 million; the initial equipment to outfit them has been ordered, and much of it has been delivered.

New obligational authority, primarily to finance the purchase of military weapons and equipment, rose sharply after the attack on Korea and reached a peak of 92.9 billion dollars in the fiscal year 1952. Since then, new obligational authority has been declining. The amount recommended for the fiscal year 1954 is 20 billion dollars less than the amount enacted for 1952.

Although new obligational authority is declining, expenditures are still rising. This is due to the long lead-time involved in the procurement of military equipment—the time required to design, produce, test, and deliver such complex items as planes, tanks, ships, and guns, after contracts are let. Because of this long lead-time, most items of military equipment are not usually delivered and completely paid for until two or sometimes three years after they are ordered.

Each year from 1951 through 1953, new obligational authority has exceeded expenditures, because new obligational authority represented for the most part orders being placed, and expenditures represented for the most part payments for goods being delivered. In the fiscal year 1954, fewer orders will be placed, but more goods will be delivered. As a result, expenditures are expected to exceed new obligational authority for the first time since before Korea.

Under our present defense program, military expenditures are expected to reach their peak in the fiscal year 1954 and to start declining in subsequent years. If our armed forces are stabilized at their presently approved goals and if no new aggressions occur, new obligational authority and expenditures may be expected to level off in future years at the amounts necessary to maintain these forces and to replace current equipment with new and better items as they are developed. It is difficult to forecast with any precision the amount by which total Federal expenditures may be expected to drop in future years under these assumptions, but it may be in the neighborhood of 15 billion dollars. In my judgment, however, a drop of this magnitude cannot be expected for at least two or three years.

BUDGET EXPENDITURES

This Budget is dominated, as the last three have been, by the cost of national security. About 73 percent of all Budget expenditures in the fiscal year 1954 will be for six major national security programs—military services, international security and foreign relations, the development of atomic energy, the promotion of defense production and economic stabilization, civil defense, and merchant marine activities. In the fiscal year 1954 these programs will cost approximately 57.3 billion dollars.

An additional 14 percent of Budget expenditures in 1954 will be for interest and for veterans' services and benefits. These expenditures, which will amount to approximately 11 billion dollars, represent for the most part a continuing cost of World War II; in addition, they include the costs of services and benefits for the growing number of veterans of the fighting in Korea.

The remaining 13 percent, or 10.3 billion dollars, will be for all other activities of the Government. Some of these activities—such as the port security program of the Coast Guard and the internal security program of the Federal Bureau of Investigation—have a direct bearing on our national security. Others—such as our programs for agriculture, housing and community development, education and general research, labor, social security, welfare, and health—help to assure our continued social and economic progress and to strengthen the Nation for the long, hard period of world tension that lies ahead of us. Still others represent basic functions of Government, such as making and enforcing the laws, collecting taxes, and maintaining Federal records and property.

As the following table indicates, expenditures for major national security programs not only dominate this Budget, but also account for most of the increase in total Budget expenditures since 1950, the last full fiscal year before the attack on Korea.

EXPENDITURE POLICY

In the preparation of this Budget, every Government program—including those directly concerned with national security—has been reviewed in the light of the current outlook for international developments, in the light of the heavy tax burden, and in the light of the long-term needs of the Nation. The recommended estimates reflect our constant effort to adjust expenditure programs to make sure they are at the minimum level consistent with our national objectives. Proposals for military procurement, for example, reflect our policy of relying, wherever possible, on a continuing flow of weapons and equipment from production lines, rather than on the accumulation of large inventories of reserve stocks.

Increased funds have been included in this Budget only for those programs where, in my judgment, a clear and definite need exists that cannot be longer deferred without impairing the public interest. In the case of several regulatory agencies, such as the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Federal Trade Commission, the Securities and Exchange Commission, and the Federal Communications Commission, earlier cutbacks were so severe that steps have been taken in this Budget to restore some of them. Even in these instances, however, the policies have been strict. Funds have been provided for handling increased workloads or backlogs of unfinished work only when failure to do so would result in delays which would have to be made up later at an even greater expense, or in a serious impairment of an agency's ability to carry out the responsibilities assigned to it by law. It would be shortsighted to do less.

Because of the overriding requirements of the national security programs, many important Government services to businessmen, farmers, and the public at large have been held, in recent years, to levels below those justified by our growing population and expanding economy. Rising prices have also increased the cost of Government and have reduced the actual service to the public per dollar spent just as they have reduced the purchasing power of private individuals and firms. When defense spending has declined, we must bring these services to levels consistent with the long-range development of the Nation and its resources.

The recommended appropriations anticipate increases in efficiency resulting from reorganizations, improved management procedures, and better programing of the work to be done. Substantial progress has been made in strengthening Federal management in the last few years so as to get more work done at less cost. This progress is reflected in this Budget, and will continue to be a factor in future Budgets.

Government organization and procedures are not static. They must be continually reviewed and modernized in order to adapt the machinery of Government to its current tasks. An examination of needed actions to improve Government organization and management is now a regular and continuing part of the process of preparing and administering the Federal Budget. Reorganization plans transmitted under the Reorganization Act of 1949 have made a number of far-reaching improvements in providing officials of the executive branch with more effective organization and more adequate authority to do their jobs. I believe it will be found to be most desirable to extend the authority in that act, which expires April 1, 1953, as one of the steps needed to assure continued progress in increasing the efficiency with which the executive branch is managed.

TAX POLICY

I have always held that the Government's fiscal policy should aim at promoting the stable growth of our economy. This means that normally in times of high employment and rising national income the Federal Government should operate with a balanced Budget.

In the years following the end of World War II, when the economy was operating at a full-employment level, my Budget Messages called for balanced budgets and debt reduction. During the four fiscal years 1947 through 1950, the Government had an over-all net surplus of 4.3 billion dollars.

After the outbreak of hostilities in Korea, I recommended that we finance our rearmament effort on a pay-as-we-go basis. In response to my recommendations, the Congress raised tax rates in 1950 and again in 1951. These tax increases were substantial. They helped produce a Budget surplus in the fiscal year 1951, but they have not met our subsequent revenue requirements. The fiscal year 1952 ended with a deficit of 4 billion dollars. A deficit of 5.9 billion dollars is now estimated for the current fiscal year. An even larger deficit, 9.9 billion dollars, is estimated for the fiscal year 1954.

Under present law, a number of the tax increases enacted in 1950 and 1951 will terminate in 1953 and 1954. The excess profits tax on corporations is scheduled to expire on June 30, 1953. Under the Revenue Act of 1951, the rate increases on individuals' income will terminate on December 31, 1953, and the increases in normal rates on corporations' income will expire on March 31, 1954. Virtually all of the excise tax rate increases under this act will also expire on March 31, 1954. The purpose of the Congress in setting termination dates was to assure early review of the tax increases enacted after Korea. Responsibility for this review falls on this session of the Congress.

If the increases are allowed to expire as scheduled, the Government will lose about 2 billion dollars in revenue in the fiscal year 1954. The full effect of the expirations will be an annual revenue loss of approximately four times this amount.

The continuing increase in expenditures for national security and the prospect of a substantial deficit in the fiscal year 1954 pose an immediate and serious problem in tax policy. While I do not wish to make any specific recommendations, I do wish to make it clear that in my judgment it would not be wise to plan for a large Budget deficit during a period when business activity, civilian employment, and national income are reaching unprecedented heights. The course of prudence and wisdom would be to continue to strive for a balanced Budget and a pay-as-we-go policy in our rearmament program.

In its consideration of the level of tax rates, I hope the Congress will also give serious consideration to improving the equity of the tax system. The injustices and loss of revenue arising out of loopholes in the tax laws should be eliminated. Confidence in the equity of tax laws is essential in a democracy.

BUDGET RECEIPTS

The following table shows the source of estimated Budget receipts for the fiscal year 1954, compared to revised estimates of receipts for the current fiscal year and actual receipts for the fiscal year 1952. The estimates for 1954 are based on present tax laws.

BORROWING AND THE PUBLIC DEBT

On the basis of the present fiscal outlook and existing tax laws, the public debt is expected to increase from 259 billion dollars at the beginning of the current fiscal year to about 264 billion dollars by June 30, 1953, and 274 billion dollars by June 30, 1954.

Last spring substantial revisions both from the standpoint of increased rate and increased intermediate yields were announced in the savings bond program, designed to put these widely held issues on a basis more nearly comparable with alternative investments. Holders of almost three-quarters of the maturing savings bonds are taking advantage of the new arrangements under which interest continues to accrue on bonds not presented for cash redemption at maturity.

EXPENDITURES AND AUTHORIZATIONS BY MAJOR FUNCTION

The following table shows estimated expenditures and recommended new obligational authority for the fiscal year 1954, classified by major function. It also compares estimated expenditures in the fiscal year 1954 with revised estimates for the current fiscal year and with actual expenditures in 1952. A more detailed breakdown of expenditures and new obligational authority by major function is contained in Special Analysis B, in part IV of this document.

The estimates for 1954 include several hundreds of millions of dollars of receipts, authorizations, and expenditures relating to foreign credits and currencies for which no comparable figures appear in the 1952 and 1953 totals.

Until now foreign credits and currencies have been available to certain agencies without the normal processes of budgeting. Recent legislation requires that foreign credits be budgeted and reported in the same manner as regular funds of the Government. This step is desirable in order to obtain adequate control over the use of such credits, to promote effective utilization of the foreign credits on hand or otherwise available in lieu of dollars, and to make full disclosure of the Government's financial operations in the Budget totals.

Accordingly, this Budget includes appropriation estimates for the dollar equivalent of the agencies' estimated use of foreign currencies in 1954. The appropriations would be used to purchase foreign currencies from the Treasury as they are required for expenditure. These transactions will add the same amount to both Budget receipts and expenditures, and will therefore have no effect on the deficit.

MILITARY SERVICES

This year we are budgeting for the fourth fiscal year following the attack on Korea. During the past 30 months, we and our allies of the United Nations have been fighting and holding the communist aggressors. In addition, we have been expanding our armed forces toward larger goals—21 Army divisions, 3 Marine divisions, a Navy of 408 combatant ships with air support, and an Air Force of 143 wings. This is an expensive program, but our national security depends on it. We cannot afford to lower these goals until the free world is secure against the communist menace.

In order to appraise properly the budgetary impact of our rearmament program, it is necessary to examine the four fiscal years 1951 through 1954 as a single time span, and to bear in mind the relationship between new obligational authority and expenditures. In the fiscal year 1951, new obligational authority for the military functions of the Department of Defense totaled 48.2 billion dollars, and in 1952 it reached 60.3 billion dollars. In the current fiscal year, it is expected to drop to 48.1 billion dollars, and I am recommending a further reduction to 41.2 billion dollars for 1954.

Because of the long lead-time involved in military procurement, expenditures for most types of weapons and equipment occur many months after the Congress has enacted the authority for their purchase. Thus, as a result of the 1952 peak of new obligational authority, expenditures are expected to reach their peak in the fiscal year 1954. If we maintain the force level I am recommending in this Budget, expenditures for the military functions of the Department of Defense should begin to decline in the fiscal year 1955 and should continue to decline until they reach the level required to keep our armed forces in a state of readiness. On the basis of present rough estimates, that level may be in the neighborhood of 35 to 40 billion dollars annually.

In addition to the military functions of the Department of Defense, the military services category includes certain supporting activities such as the stockpiling of strategic and critical materials, the research programs of the National Advisory Committee for Aeronautics, and the Selective Service System. Expenditures for all programs in the military services category are estimated at 46.3 billion dollars in the fiscal year 1954. This is an increase of 1.9 billion dollars over 1953 and 6.6 billion dollars over 1952.

Military personnel.—Expenditures for military personnel are for the pay, subsistence, clothing, and transportation of our armed forces. This Budget provides for an average strength of more than 3.6 million service men and women, an increase of more than 2.1 million since the beginning of the Korean conflict and slightly above the average provided for in the 1953 Budget.

Despite the slight increase in average strength, expenditures for military personnel in the fiscal year 1954 are expected to be 200 million dollars less than in 1953 since expenditures in 1953 include outlays for retroactive combat-duty pay and mustering-out pay.

As a result of two amendments to the 1953 Department of Defense Appropriation Act placing percentage limitations on officer grades and restricting the retirement of officers, the Department has been unable to administer our military personnel program in the best interests of the Government and the men. One amendment, which limits the proportion of officers of each rank, unduly restricts the flexibility of the services in assigning rank commensurate with responsibility. Apparently intended to slow down promotions of officers in the higher ranks, it has had its greatest impact on those in the lower ranks. The second amendment discourages the voluntary retirement of certain officers when it might be in the best long-run interests of both the Government and the officers to encourage some of these retirements. It has the damaging long-range effect of limiting the number of career-minded young junior officers from whom we must draw our future military leaders and on whom we must depend for the future effectiveness of our military forces. While I am in sympathy with the basic purpose of these two amendments, I believe they are doing more harm than good. Therefore, I believe they should be repealed as soon as possible.

Operation and maintenance.—To operate and maintain the divisions, ships, and aircraft of our military establishment in the fiscal year 1954, I am recommending 10.3 billion dollars in new obligational authority. This is 800 million dollars less than the amount estimated for 1953, and 2.1 billion dollars less than the amount enacted for 1952. The decline is due primarily to the fact that the Congress has already provided a large part of the funds needed to fill the pipeline for supplying our expanded forces, to complete the rehabilitation of our military installations, and to purchase a mobilization reserve of spare parts and soft goods. Expenditures for operation and maintenance are estimated at 10.6 billion dollars, which is 800 million dollars more than the estimate for 1953. The 1954 estimate makes no specific allowance for additional costs that would result from the continuation of combat operations in Korea.

Major procurement and production.—The Congress has already authorized most of the funds needed initially to purchase aircraft, ships, vehicles, artillery, weapons, ammunition, guided missiles, electronics, and other major items of military equipment for our defense buildup. A large part of this equipment has been placed on order and is in production. Deliveries are increasing substantially. However, additional funds are required to bring us closer to our armed force goals and to replace weapons and equipment that are worn out, obsolescent, or destroyed or consumed in battle.

In this Budget I am recommending 14.2 billion dollars of new obligational authority for major procurement and production, compared with 19.8 billion dollars estimated for 1953 and 29.2 billion dollars enacted for 1952. About 58 percent of my 1954 recommendation is for aircraft, about 34 percent is for artillery, ammunition, and other major items, and nearly 8 percent is for shipbuilding.

Expenditures for major procurement and production, which largely reflect deliveries, are expected to reach a peak of 17.4 billion dollars in the fiscal year 1954. Under our present production plans, they should thereafter begin to decline gradually toward the level necessary to keep our armed forces equipped with modern weapons.

In this Budget, as in the 1953 Budget, maximum reliance is placed on maintaining a continuing flow of production along with the ability to expand that production rapidly if necessary, rather than on the accumulation of large reserves of weapons and equipment. In general, the production of reserve stocks for full mobilization is scheduled at the minimum rate which would preserve as many of our existing military production lines as possible in operation for a long period in the future. A noteworthy exception to the application of this general principle is ammunition, for which additional funds may be required in the spring of 1953 unless it becomes clear that combat consumption will cease during the calendar year.

Military construction.—To properly house, train, supply, and deploy our expanded military forces, it has been necessary to repair, rehabilitate, and construct military installations from which our forces operate. For the three fiscal years 1951 through 1953, Congress has enacted 8.7 billion dollars of new obligational authority for this purpose. An additional 700 million dollars is recommended in this Budget for building projects which have already been authorized by the Congress, but for which funds have not yet been provided. Almost all of this 700 million dollars is for Air Force bases in the United States and overseas. Nearly 60 percent of the post-Korean military construction program has been for Air Force operating bases here and abroad. These are necessary to accommodate the increased number of air wings which are being formed. The problem of the need for additional authorizations is being studied by the Department of Defense.

Although the new obligational authority recommended for 1954 is considerably below the amount enacted in each of the preceding three years, expenditures for military construction are expected to rise from 2.3 billion dollars in the current fiscal year to 2.7 billion dollars in 1954 as work already under way nears completion.

Civilian components.—The civilian components of the armed forces consist of the Organized Reserve, the Army National Guard, the Air National Guard, and the Reserve Officers' Training Corps. These units provide the trained nucleus around which a rapid expansion of our active military forces could be accomplished in a minimum time. This Budget provides for an increase in the strength of our civilian components receiving drill pay from 845,000 at the end of the fiscal year 1953 to 978,000 at the end of the fiscal year 1954, because an increasing number of men who are released from active service are becoming members of the civilian components.

Research and development.—As a result of research and development work done in the past few years, our forces are now being equipped with many new types of weapons and equipment far superior to those of World War II. Additional new and improved weapons are now going into production, and we are making intensive efforts to perfect still others which will contribute directly to our military strength in the years immediately ahead. These new developments will eventually give our forces capabilities far beyond those of the present. Advances in almost every field of science are being applied to weapons and techniques of warfare. These developments are complex and costly, and the time required to translate new ideas into practical military weapons is long. Our gratification in the progress we are making must be sobered by the realization that parallel developments are undoubtedly under way behind the Iron Curtain.

Expenditures of the Department of Defense for research and development are estimated at 1.6 billion dollars in 1954, an increase of 200 million dollars over 1953.

Industrial mobilization.—The industrial mobilization activities of the Department of Defense include (1) the maintenance of reserve industrial plants and tools, (2) engineering and management studies to improve manufacturing methods and to reduce the quantities of the scarce critical materials now being used, and (3) mobilization planning in conjunction with other agencies to insure the availability of industrial capacity which can be expanded to meet the requirements of total mobilization. All of these programs are essential to the maintenance of a strong mobilization base.

Since Korea, our military procurement program has added to our mobilization base, and the need for separate industrial mobilization activities has thereby been reduced. However, there are still deficiencies in our capacity to swing rapidly into full-scale production of the military items needed in wartime. A study is now being made to determine the nature and extent of these deficiencies.

For the purpose of filling such gaps in the mobilization base, I am recommending that 500 million dollars be appropriated to the Department of Defense to purchase the plants, tools, and productive facilities that would be needed. Most of this fund will be used to acquire tools and facilities beyond those needed for currently planned procurement. The requested amount will be adequate for the first year, but additional amounts may be needed later.

A second problem of industrial readiness concerns the maintenance of existing elements of the mobilization base. As the production and procurement of military equipment decline during or after the fiscal year 1954, a part of the expanded capacity for producing military items will be converted to civilian production, or otherwise disappear from the mobilization base. Steps should therefore be taken to prevent such loss. The cost of acquiring these facilities will be borne by this new fund in an amount not to exceed 100 million dollars as well as by regular appropriations to the Department of Defense.

It should be made clear that present legislative authority, and the funds herein requested, will not meet the needs of the mobilization base outside the capacity which is directly related to the production of military items. For other elements of the base, such as certain kinds of basic industrial facilities, new legislation and funds may be needed.

Stockpiling.—During the fiscal year 1954, it is estimated that nearly 900 million dollars worth of strategic and critical materials will be added to our stockpile. By the end of 1954 our stockpile inventory will be valued at 5.5 billion dollars in June 1952 prices. This is more than double the value of our stockpile inventory at the end of the fiscal year 1950, and represents nearly 75 percent of our total objective, which amounts to 7.4 billion dollars.

INTERNATIONAL SECURITY AND FOREIGN RELATIONS

The Budget recommendations for international security and foreign relations are designed to further the common effort of the United States and other free nations to establish the foundations for lasting peace and security. In this joint undertaking, we are helping our allies to build the strength needed by them and by us to resist the forces which jeopardize the peace and threaten our security. If this aid is to be effective, it must meet the particular and most urgent needs of each individual country. In some instances, it consists largely of the weapons necessary for the expansion of military strength. In others, it takes the form of goods, services, and the technical skills needed to help millions of people in their struggle against poverty, disease, and starvation—conditions which create unrest and invite subversion. By providing this assistance, we are helping ourselves just as much as we are helping our allies. When the members of a flood-threatened community join together to build a dike, each man's effort helps to protect his own house as well as his neighbor's.

During the past two years, under the mutual security program, we have made significant progress in helping our allies to achieve greater military strength, economic growth, and political stability. I am confident that the Congress, by extending the Mutual Security Act, will make it possible to continue this progress.

The magnitude and duration of future grant aid programs, and the attainment of the long range objectives of our foreign economic policy, will depend on the success of efforts to increase the level of United States imports, and United States private and public investment abroad.

Military and economic assistance.—This Budget includes 7.6 billion dollars in new obligational authority for the mutual security program, 1.1 billion dollars more than the Congress enacted for the fiscal year 1953. This increase is required primarily because of the urgent need to help our allies meet certain critical deficiencies in equipment and supplies for their armed forces. Another factor is the necessity of expanding our efforts to deal with critical economic problems in the underdeveloped areas of the world.

As of November 1, 1952, we had shipped to our allies more than 3 billion dollars worth of weapons and military equipment, including 17,230 tanks and combat vehicles, 92,700 military transport vehicles, 1,403,213 small arms and machine guns, 19,843 artillery pieces for the ground forces, 432 naval vessels, and 2,673 aircraft. Deliveries are rising, and in the fiscal year 1954 are expected to rise still further.

In Europe, economic assistance has been an indispensable factor in expanding military forces. In the underdeveloped areas of the world, our economic and technical assistance has been an important element in helping to raise food production, improve health standards, and increase the technical knowledge needed to build stronger economic and political institutions.

Aid to Europe.—During the fiscal year 1954 our aid will enable the North Atlantic Treaty Organization to improve the combat effectiveness and increase the size of present land, naval, and air forces. A year ago, firm goals for December 1952 were set at 50 divisions, 4,000 front line operating aircraft, and 1,600 naval vessels. These goals are now being reviewed by the North Atlantic Treaty Organization in Paris.

As new units are added to the growing defense budgets of our NATO allies it becomes increasingly important to weigh carefully the added military strength achieved against the new economic burden which is incurred. European defense expenditures have more than doubled since Korea and are continuing to increase. In spite of this effort, the European nations are still unable to provide and maintain, out of their own resources, all the complex and expensive modern weapons required by their armed forces. The mutual security program helps to provide the crucial margin of resources they need.

An increasing volume of the required weapons and equipment is being purchased in Europe under United States contract. This offshore procurement is essential to the expansion of military production capacity in Europe. Such capacity will not only increase the ability of our European allies to provide their own weapons in the years ahead, but also will support prolonged combat operations in the event of aggression. During the fiscal year 1952, contracts for offshore procurement totaled 621 million dollars. In the current fiscal year, this amount is expected to nearly double. This Budget assumes a further increase in the fiscal year 1954.

Economic aid will be needed by several European countries. France will need this type of assistance in order to meet her NATO commitments and still continue her fight against the communist guerrillas in Indochina. The United Kingdom also will need economic assistance to carry forward her expanded defense effort in the face of a severe drain on her dollar reserves. Some economic aid also will be needed by other European nations to enable them to fill critical gaps in the NATO defenses.

Assistance to other areas of the free world.—In areas outside of Europe there are many friendly nations, containing nearly half of the earth's population and much of its material wealth, which are struggling against conditions that threaten their continued existence as free nations. Our economic and technical assistance is helping the people of these nations to help themselves—to develop the economic and political strength required to combat the threat of communist imperialism. Where necessary, we are also supplying military aid to help these nations resist aggression and thereby secure time for the economic changes which will make them less vulnerable to subversion.

In the Middle East, we are assisting in the relief of Arab refugees through our contribution to the United Nations refugee agency. Point Four technical assistance is being provided most countries in the Middle East to help them expand and strengthen their economies. In some instances, notably Israel and certain Arab states, this technical assistance is supplemented by limited economic aid.

In Indochina, our military assistance has been a crucial factor in strengthening the troops of France and the Associated States of Viet Nam, Laos, and Cambodia in their fight against a powerful, communist-led revolt. The security of the island of Formosa has been markedly increased. The communist-led uprising in the Philippines has been reduced to small proportions through the energetic efforts of the Philippine Government, aided by United States military equipment. Further military assistance is needed if these countries are to continue their resistance to aggression.

Our economic assistance to India and to other nations in Asia is helping them to continue the progress they have already made toward alleviating famine and disease—the necessary first steps in their efforts to improve the living conditions of their peoples. These countries can make a vital contribution to the strength of the free world if their economic development programs are given the extra momentum which outside aid can provide.

In Latin America the United States has helped finance economic development mainly through loans from the Export-Import Bank. This area also offers attractive fields for private United States investment, which in the calendar year 1951 increased by nearly 200 million dollars. In order to further economic development in Latin America, the United States has for a number of years extended technical assistance on a grant basis for certain projects undertaken jointly with Latin American governments.

Conduct of foreign affairs.—The efficient functioning of our diplomatic and consular missions, and our extensive participation in the United Nations and other international organizations, constitute vital links in the chain of international security which we are seeking to forge.

Expenditures for the conduct of foreign affairs in the fiscal year 1954 are estimated at 302 million dollars, an increase of 42 million dollars over the current year. This increase is due, first, to the fact that the dollar equivalent of foreign currencies spent by the United States is included in the 1954 estimate for the first time; second, to the added workload of investigations and clearances required by the Immigration and Nationality Act of 1952 in connection with the issuance of visas and passports in the United States and at our overseas missions; and third, to an anticipated increase in expenditures for construction of overseas radio facilities for the "Voice of America."

I have repeatedly emphasized the importance of our overseas information and education program. In this Budget I am recommending appropriations of 135 million dollars to continue and expand this vital work.

FINANCE, COMMERCE, AND INDUSTRY

The vast expansion of our productive capacity which we have achieved since Korea would not have been possible without the authority granted under the Defense Production Act. To assure further progress toward our mobilization goals, I believe it is necessary to continue this legislation through the fiscal year 1954, including authority to allocate critical materials and equipment, provide incentives for the expansion of defense production, and stabilize prices, wages, and rents. No new obligational authority will be needed to provide financial assistance for expanding defense production, but 54 million dollars has been included in this Budget for administering production and stabilization and export controls.

More than 90 percent of the 1954 expenditures for finance, commerce, and industry programs will be for the promotion of defense production and economic stabilization. These expenditures are expected to decline in 1954 as military and economic expansion goals are achieved.

Expansion of defense production.—Under the authority of the Defense Production Act and related legislation, the Government has offered a wide variety of incentives to private industry to expand defense production and to broaden the economic base for any future mobilization effort. Producers of aluminum, copper, machine tools, and other critical commodities have received long-term purchase commitments totaling about 3.5 billion dollars to guarantee markets for the output of their new facilities, and the Government has bought 1.5 billion dollars of scarce materials for resale to private business. In addition, nearly 400 million dollars in loan commitments have been made, as well as grants for the exploration of mineral resources, for the subsidization of high-cost production, and for the purchase of equipment to be leased to defense contractors. The transactions already approved total about 6 billion dollars, and additional transactions totaling 2 billion dollars have been authorized. Since most of this assistance either will not involve Government expenditures or will be repaid, the net ultimate cost is expected to be less than 800 million dollars. In addition, a substantial volume of private defense production loans have been guaranteed and large investments in defense facilities have been stimulated by permitting accelerated amortization of these investments for tax purposes.

Budget expenditures for expansion of defense production in the fiscal year 1954 are estimated at 200 million dollars, primarily from commitments already made. Since much of the planned expansion has been completed, new commitments are expected to decline substantially.

Small business.—The Small Defense Plants Administration, the Department of Commerce, and other Federal agencies are helping small businesses to make their full contribution to the defense effort. Under an agreement between the Small Defense Plants Administration and the Department of Defense, more than 200 million dollars in defense contracts has already been reserved exclusively for small firms. The total amount of defense contracts going to small business is, of course, substantially larger. The Reconstruction Finance Corporation has made many loans to small businesses which have not been able to obtain private credit. Nearly 300 of these loans, amounting to 37 million dollars, have been made upon recommendation of the Small Defense Plants Administration.

Business loans and guarantees.—New lending activity under the regular business loan authority of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation has been sharply reduced from the levels prevailing before Korea. The 1954 Budget assumes no significant increase in new loans.

Accordingly, the Corporation plans to close a number of local offices, maintaining only small information units to provide advice and assistance to loan applicants.

TRANSPORTATION AND COMMUNICATION

Federal programs in the fields of transportation and communication are designed to help assure that these important services are adequate to meet the needs of a peacetime economy, as well as possible mobilization needs in the event of war. In carrying out these programs, the Government provides facilities and services which private enterprise cannot suitably supply, grants subsidies where authorized, and regulates economic and safety aspects of transportation and communications operations. In the fiscal year 1954, expenditures for these programs are estimated at 2 billion dollars, or 40 million dollars below the level for 1953. This reduction is due mainly to an expected decline in ship construction expenditures.

Merchant marine.—Through subsidies for ship construction and operation, the Government helps to maintain an active maritime industry adequate to the needs of defense and commerce. In recent years, this continuing subsidy program has been supplemented by emergency measures arising from defense mobilization needs. The Maritime Administration, for example, is building 35 cargo ships of advanced design to meet special defense requirements for high speed ocean transportation. This program will be largely completed during the fiscal year 1954. The reduction in expenditures for this emergency program will be partly offset by the cost of building other vessels which I believe should be started in the fiscal year 1954. An appropriation of 108 million dollars is recommended for construction of four passenger-cargo ships needed for commercial operation on essential trade routes, and an appropriation of 11 million dollars for the construction of a prototype high-speed tanker incorporating design features important for defense operations. Experience gained from the prototype project will enable the Maritime Administration to expand construction of this type of ship rapidly in the event of a future emergency.

Since the outbreak of hostilities in Korea, the emergency operation of Government-owned cargo ships by the National Shipping Authority has helped to overcome a world-wide shortage of shipping capacity. As the shortage of private capacity has eased, the Government has steadily withdrawn from this operation, and has returned its ships to inactive status in the reserve fleet. By the end of the fiscal year 1954, only about 50 ships will remain in active operation under this program, as compared to a maximum of 538 during the fiscal year 1952. This Budget includes funds to maintain the reserve fleet in a condition to meet any future emergency.

Navigation aids and facilities.—Construction of navigation facilities by the Corps of Engineers is limited in this Budget to projects already under way, and to those which should not be deferred any longer in view of national defense requirements or essential civilian needs. To permit the efficient handling of essential water-borne traffic, five new starts are recommended, including the Warrior River Lock and Dam in Alabama for the replacement of obsolete and structurally unsound locks, and harbor improvements at New York, Duluth-Superior, Redwood City, California, and Portland, Maine. In addition, an extension of the existing sea wall at the Galveston harbor project will be started to protect a highly developed urban area. These new projects will involve a total cost of 42 million dollars, of which an estimated 4 million dollars will be spent in the fiscal year 1954. Maintenance activity on existing projects is being held to minimum levels required to permit continued operation and prevention of excessive deterioration.

Highways.—Federal assistance for highway improvement is provided principally through grants to State and local governments.

Construction activity, which had been retarded by the steel shortage and other factors, has expanded considerably in recent months. As a result, Federal-aid expenditures for highway construction are expected to increase from 417 million dollars in the fiscal year 1952 to 511 million dollars in 1953, and 540 million dollars in 1954.

The level of highway grants in any given year is determined by legislative authorizations previously enacted by the Congress and by the volume of State and local construction activity on Federal-aid road systems. Therefore there is little control over the expenditure level of this program through the Budget process. For example, the funds included in this Budget for the fiscal year 1954 represent merely an estimate of the grants that will be required to meet commitments incurred under the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1950. The Highway Act of 1952 increased the annual authorization from 500 million dollars to 575 million dollars and will cause expenditures to increase in the fiscal years 1955 and 1956.

In addition to Federal-aid highway grants, the Bureau of Public Roads will spend 50 million dollars in the fiscal year 1954 for other highway programs, such as forest highways and access roads to defense plants, military installations, and sources of strategic materials.

Aviation.—Despite major technological and financial gains in recent years, the aviation industry is still in a developmental stage, and continues to need substantial Federal assistance in order to realize its full potential growth. Such aid is provided principally through the Federal airways program, grants-in-aid for airport construction, and airline subsidies.

In keeping with the general restriction on public works activity during this emergency, airport construction grants to State and local governments have been curtailed in recent years. With the continued growth of air traffic, serious airport inadequacies have developed. To permit increased Federal assistance for the most urgently needed projects, it is recommended that new obligational authority for this program be increased from the 14 million dollars enacted for the fiscal year 1953 to 30 million dollars for 1954.

Subsidies for airline operation are now merged with compensation for carrying mail, and are included in postal expenditures. However, recent studies by the Civil Aeronautics Board provide for the first time an official estimate of the cost of this subsidy program. For the fiscal year 1954, it is estimated that airline subsidies will amount to 71 million dollars, or slightly more than half of the total air mail payments.

Postal service.—With presently authorized rates, the postal deficit for the fiscal year 1954 is estimated at 669 million dollars, about the same as in 1953.

Unless postal rates are increased, the fiscal year 1954 will be the sixth consecutive year in which the postal deficit will exceed one-half billion dollars. The largest part of these deficits results from the grossly inadequate postal rates being charged for magazines and other second-class mail, and for advertising circulars and other third-class mail.

I have repeatedly urged the Congress to relieve the taxpayers of this unnecessary burden by increasing postal rates sufficiently to reduce the postal deficit to the cost of handling Government mail, airline subsidies and other items which are properly chargeable to general tax revenues—a cost in the neighborhood of 170 million dollars.

Regulation.—Recent reductions in the appropriations for the regulatory agencies—particularly the Interstate Commerce Commission and the Federal Communications Commission—have seriously impaired their ability to carry out the responsibilities assigned to them by law. The administrative expenditures of these agencies are small in relation to the importance of their activities to the Nation's economy. This Budget provides moderate increases for these agencies to enable them to overcome serious backlogs of pending cases, and to deal more effectively with emerging new problems.

NATURAL RESOURCES

Expenditures for natural resources programs in the fiscal year 1954 are estimated at 4.1 billion dollars, an increase of 727 million dollars over the current fiscal year and 1.1 billion dollars over 1952. Almost all of this increase is in the atomic energy program, which will account for two-thirds of the expenditures for natural resources in 1954. Other major expenditures will be for flood control, irrigation, and multiple-purpose river basin development, including related power facilities. The remaining expenditures will be largely for the management and development of the national forests, parks, and public lands, and for our mineral resources programs.

The money we spend for the orderly conservation, development, and use of our natural resources represents a sound investment. In many cases the activities are wholly or partially self-liquidating. But what is more important, they contribute to our military strength and to long-range economic progress. They are prerequisite in many fields to the needed expansion of private investment. While exercising the utmost economy in these programs, I believe we should allow for some work made urgent by the continuing drain on our resource base and by the postponement of needed development during and since World War II.

Atomic energy.—Ten years ago, scientists working at the University of Chicago under Federal sponsorship brought about the world's first nuclear chain reaction. Since then, our efforts in the development of atomic energy have of necessity been devoted primarily to meeting the needs of national security. Two major expansions of facilities for the production of fissionable materials and atomic weapons have been authorized by the Congress since the attack on Korea. The first was authorized in the fiscal year 1951 and the second early in the fiscal year 1953. The rise in atomic energy expenditures results largely from construction work on the new facilities. As a result of this expansion, our ability to meet the threat of aggression will be significantly increased.

The new obligational authority which I am recommending for 1954 is substantially less than the amount enacted for the current fiscal year, because the bulk of the construction funds needed to finance the expansion programs has already been provided. However, I am recommending an increase in funds for operations. These funds will provide for increases in our reserve of atomic weapons and for the development and testing of improved weapons. I am also recommending an increase in funds for the development of atomic power for naval ships. The keel of the first nuclear-powered submarine was laid last summer. The funds recommended for aircraft reactor research will enable this program to proceed at an effective pace.

Research in the peacetime uses of atomic energy shows steady progress. We have developed new techniques in medical research, and substantial progress has been made in the fields of physics, chemistry, and biology. This research will continue in 1954. This Budget also provides for continuing research in the development of atomic reactors for the production of electric power—a program which promises to have a major impact on future power developments.

Land and water resources.—In the fiscal year 1954, the Federal Government will spend 1.1 billion dollars for the development of land and water resources. More than half of this amount will be for the 133 river basin development projects and units now under construction by the Bureau of Reclamation and the Corps of Engineers. Much of this work is multiple-purpose development for irrigation, flood control, navigation, and hydroelectric power, creating substantial benefits for industry and agriculture and making an important contribution to defense. Seven flood control projects and seven irrigation projects or units will be substantially completed during the year.

The major part of the task of developing our river basins is still ahead of us. I believe we should no longer defer certain flood control and power projects which we have repeatedly postponed since the beginning of World War II. I am therefore recommending funds in the 1954 Budget for starting construction on eight new projects and five additions to existing projects, where planning is for the most part well advanced and where there is clear economic justification. This new work is required to protect important areas which are highly vulnerable to floods, or to meet defense or essential civilian power needs in critical shortage areas. The ultimate cost of these new projects and features is estimated at 325 million dollars, of which about 16 million dollars will be spent in the fiscal year 1954. Funds also have been included in this Budget for advance planning of some high priority projects already authorized by the Congress.

Six of the new projects I am recommending are for flood control. These include Toronto Reservoir in Kansas, and five local protection works at Wheeling-Benwood on the Ohio, Sny Basin in Illinois, Lake Pontchartrain in Louisiana, Cape Girardeau in Missouri, and on the Little Missouri River near Murfreesboro, Arkansas.

This Budget also includes funds to enable the Tennessee Valley Authority to start construction of a steam electric plant in the western part of the system, and to begin installation of additional units in the Kingston and John Sevier steam electric plants. These facilities are required to meet the growing power needs of the area for defense, industrial, and domestic purposes. I also recommend that construction be started on Ice Harbor Lock and Dam in the Pacific Northwest and that work begin on the installation of power facilities in three reclamation projects. These are the Deer Creek power plant of the Provo River project in Utah, the American Falls power division of the Minidoka project in Idaho, and the Roza power plant in the Yakima project in Washington. I also believe that the Congress should authorize the Hells Canyon power project in the Pacific Northwest.

The situation regarding the St. Lawrence project is somewhat different now from what it has been. When the last Congress did not approve the 1941 Canadian-United States agreement calling for joint construction of both the seaway and power phases of the project, Canada and the United States proceeded with alternate arrangements, under which the main river control works necessary for power development would be built by appropriate entities in the two countries, and Canada would build the necessary additional works to provide a deep waterway between Montreal and Lake Erie on the Canadian side of the international boundary. As I have repeatedly informed the Congress, I regard these alternate arrangements as much less desirable than the 1941 agreement but in the absence of congressional action they represent the only way to get the project built.

The alternate arrangements are well along. The International Joint Commission has approved the plans for the main dams and control structures in the International Rapids section of the St. Lawrence River. The Province of Ontario is ready to construct the Canadian share of these works. Applications are pending before the Federal Power Commission for a license to build the United States share. The Government of Canada is prepared to construct the waterway. Under these circumstances, the Canadian Government have informed us that they consider it no longer practicable to revert to the 1941 agreement.

I believe, however, that there is still an opportunity for the United States to join, as we should have long ago, in building the St. Lawrence seaway. If the new administration and the new Congress propose practical arrangements for sharing the cost and the construction of the seaway, I believe the Canadians will, even at this late date, admit us to partnership in the seaway. I hope very strongly that this will be done, for it is clearly in the best interest of both countries that this important waterway along our common boundary should be built and controlled by both countries together.

Water resources policy.—In the past few years I have frequently informed the Congress of the need for new concepts and procedures to modernize the outdated ways of handling our water resources development. I have supported efforts to plan and operate water resources projects on a regional basis. From time to time I have reported to the Congress that certain projects failed to meet standards for sound Federal investment, and have indicated that present Federal law is in need of clarification or revision.

In 1950, I established the Water Resources Policy Commission to examine these problems and report their findings to me. At my request, the Bureau of the Budget has been making an intensive study of the Commission's findings, recommendations, and legislative proposals, working with representatives of other Federal agencies and consulting with State and interstate bodies and private associations.

Also at my request, the Director of the Budget has recently established uniform standards and procedures to be used in reviewing proposed water resources programs and projects. These guides will strengthen and improve Executive Office review of water resources development proposals. However, major changes must be made in present Federal legislation before up-to-date policies for comprehensive development of water resources can be made fully effective.

I also suggest that the Congress may wish to study its own machinery for dealing with water and related land resources programs in order to provide a sounder basis for consideration of interrelated, multiple-purpose programs.

A year ago, I established a Missouri Basin Survey Commission to study the policies and organizational problems involved in the water resources development of this basin, the scene of two serious floods within the past two years. The forthcoming report of this Commission should make a substantial contribution to the sound program planning and improved administration needed for the balanced development of this large basin.

AGRICULTURE AND AGRICULTURAL RESOURCES

Our agricultural programs are designed primarily to achieve three related goals: first, to preserve a healthy farm economy; second, to conserve and improve our soil resources; and third, to assist farmers in attaining the high level of production necessary to meet the food and clothing needs of our people.

Net expenditures for agricultural programs in the fiscal year 1954 are estimated at 1.8 billion dollars, 116 million dollars lower than the estimate for the current fiscal year.

Stabilization of farm prices and income.—Expenditures for stabilization of farm prices and income are made under the agricultural price-support program, the International Wheat Agreement, the permanent appropriation for removal of surplus agricultural commodities, the Sugar Act, and the Federal crop insurance program.

Net expenditures for price support, made by the Commodity Credit Corporation, represent primarily the excess of outlays for loans and purchases over loan repayments and proceeds from sales of inventories. Whether the Corporation has net receipts or net expenditures in any particular fiscal year depends mainly on factors affecting the supply and demand for commodities under price support—such as the acreage planted, weather conditions, food needs in this country and abroad, and general economic conditions. Estimated expenditures of 729 million dollars in 1954, including the costs of the International Wheat Agreement, are 72 million dollars below the current estimate for 1953. This is due largely to an expected decline in outlays for wheat, offset in part by increased outlays for corn. The substantial change between the net receipts in 1952 and the large estimated expenditures in 1953 is accounted for mainly by the increase in corn and wheat production and the decrease in wheat exports between the two years.

The present International Wheat Agreement expires on July 31, 1953. Further negotiations for its extension will be undertaken this month. This Budget assumes that United States participation in the Agreement will be continued.

Financing farm ownership and operation.—Agricultural credit programs supplement private credit sources. The loan programs of the Farmers' Home Administration help new farmers and low-income farmers unable to obtain credit from other sources to develop and operate efficient family-size farm units. Despite the numerous applications for these loans, other budgetary requirements impel me to recommend that the program be kept to approximately the same level as in the fiscal year 1953.

The programs supervised by the Farm Credit Administration—including the activities of the Federal land banks, Federal intermediate credit banks, production credit corporations, and banks for cooperatives—are also directed toward achieving more efficient family-size farm operations, and toward the development of farmers' cooperatives.

Financing rural electrification and rural telephones.—The rural electrification program has made great strides since its inception in 1935. Less than 11 percent of all farms had the benefit of central station electric service in that year; less than 12 percent were without this service on June 30, 1952. The loan program which I am recommending for rural electrification is 30 million dollars less than in 1953, but it allows 135 million dollars for further progress toward bringing electricity to the Nation's farms.

The 1950 census showed that only 38 percent of our farms had telephones—a smaller percentage than in 1920. Furthermore, many farms with telephones had unreliable service. I am therefore recommending an increase of 30 million dollars in the loan program for rural telephones.

Conservation of agricultural land and water resources.—From the long-run view, conservation of our soil resources is the most important of our agricultural goals. Without adequate conservation measures, neither a high level of production nor a healthy farm economy can be long maintained.

For this reason I recommend that the advance authorization for the agricultural conservation payments program in the crop year 1954 be continued at the 250-million-dollar level authorized by the Congress for the 1953 crop year. I am also recommending an increase of 2 million dollars in the Soil Conservation Service appropriation to provide technical services to new soil conservation districts, which are being established at the rate of about 125 each year. This is the minimum program which I feel is compatible with the sound management of our soil resources.

Effective soil and water conservation is an indispensable part of our Nation's efforts to prevent and control floods. By increasing the amount of water held on the land on which it falls, by slowing the rate of run-off, and by controlling the course which the water takes in major watersheds, we not only prevent loss and improve the productivity of the soil, but we also lessen the danger of flood damage and siltation on the main streams. Thus far, however, flood prevention efforts of this kind in the upper reaches of our rivers have generally lagged behind the flood control work we have been doing on the main streams. For that reason this Budget recommends appropriations of 22 million dollars to accelerate upstream flood prevention work, compared with 8 million dollars in the current fiscal year. Fourteen million dollars of the total amount recommended for 1954 will be allotted to the 11 watersheds on which work was begun in 1947; 8 million dollars will be for work to be started on seven new watersheds and for investigations and surveys. The commencement of work on the new watersheds is recommended because it will not only have important flood prevention and conservation benefits, but also because it will enhance the value of downstream projects constructed by the Corps of Engineers, the Bureau of Reclamation, and non-Federal interests. The 18 watersheds on which work is either being done or is proposed in this Budget represent only a small fraction of the agricultural and forest lands on which work needs to be done.

Research and other agricultural services.—Expenditures for research and other continuing basic services for agriculture, such as extension work and insect and pest control, are expected to increase from 147 million dollars in the fiscal year 1953 to 154 million dollars in 1954. This is due largely to construction of the laboratory for research on foot-and-mouth disease for which the Congress appropriated funds last year. Also, I am recommending increases in a few of the most essential research activities, such as the Federal grant to State experiment stations, marketing research under the Agricultural Marketing Act, and research on plants and animals and on insect and disease control.

LABOR

The labor programs of the Federal Government help to promote the effective use of our manpower resources, which is necessary for the strengthening of our military defenses and for the continued vigorous growth of our economy. These programs furnish basic economic protection to the working force against the hazards of unemployment, safeguard workers against substandard wages and working conditions, bring together the job opportunity and the job seeker, and speed the movement of manpower into defense industries.

In the fiscal year 1954, expenditures for labor programs are estimated at 268 million dollars. Eighty percent of this amount will be for direct grants to the States for the administration of employment service and unemployment compensation programs, including the recently established unemployment compensation program for veterans. Increases in these grants will account for most of the rise in labor expenditures over 1953. Small increases are recommended to strengthen Federal labor-management relations activities and to enable the Department of Labor to cooperate with the States in finding more effective ways to deal with the distressing economic and social problems of migratory farm workers and their families. In addition, increases in appropriations for employment service, industrial safety, and apprentice training programs are recommended to enable the Department to continue work previously financed through a special appropriation for defense production activities.

Placement and unemployment compensation administration.—Part of the estimated increase in grants to the States for administration of unemployment compensation is due to changes in legislation. The Veterans' Readjustment Assistance Act of 1952 provides for unemployment compensation payments to veterans who do not find work after release from the armed forces. These payments are administered through State employment security agencies under agreements with the Secretary of Labor. Another factor in the increase is that the cost of administering the Federal-State unemployment compensation program is greater because State salary rates continue to increase and the expanded coverage under State laws results in more claims for unemployment compensation even though the general level of unemployment remains low. Finally, experience now indicates that a higher claims load than was assumed in the last Budget will develop in 1953 and continue in 1954, as a result of temporary unemployment due to industry-by-industry adjustments. These increased workloads, which could not be foreseen at the time the 1953 Budget was prepared, will require a supplemental appropriation tentatively estimated at 6.7 million dollars for grants to the States in the fiscal year 1953.

Although some State unemployment compensation programs have been strengthened by extending coverage, there is still need for basic improvements in the Federal-State system along the lines I have previously recommended.

More attractive job opportunities in industry for the domestic labor force make necessary the recruitment of additional workers from Mexico for seasonal farm employment. These workers are brought in under conditions which protect them from exploitation and protect the employment opportunities and labor standards of available United States workers. About 275,000 Mexican workers will be needed to meet farm production requirements in 1954. Legislation authorizing such recruitment expires on December 31, 1953. I believe it will be necessary to continue this program.

Labor standards and training.—Increasing defense production has reversed a downward trend in accidents on the job. In 1951, more than 2 million workers were injured, resulting in a loss of 140,000 man-years of working time. To reduce these individual tragedies with their accompanying losses to national production, the Department of Labor is planning to intensify its safety training program in cooperation with safety organizations, private industry, and State and other Federal agencies. Provision also is made in this Budget for enforcement of the recently enacted Coal Mine Safety Act.

The Bureau of Apprenticeship will continue to encourage and assist in establishing training programs for apprentices needed to meet critical shortages in skilled occupations essential to defense production. Greater emphasis will be given to general programs for training semi-skilled and unskilled workers on the job to increase their productivity and skills in a wide variety of defense production occupations.

The report of the Commission on Migratory Labor in 1951 pointed up the unique social and economic problems of migratory farm workers, which call for special attention by Federal and State governments and local communities. That report has stimulated increased interest and action by a number of States. This Budget includes 156 thousand dollars to enable the Department of Labor to start a program of cooperation with the States in developing more effective ways to bring to these workers and their families a reasonable share of the advantages normally enjoyed by other citizens.

Unemployment trust fund.—Receipts of the unemployment trust fund in the fiscal year 1954 are expected to be slightly higher than in 1953. Benefit payments are also expected to be slightly higher, because more unemployed workers will be eligible for benefit payments under the expanded coverage of State laws, even though it is assumed the level of unemployment will remain low. These receipts and payments are not included in the Budget totals.

HOUSING AND COMMUNITY DEVELOPMENT

The Federal Government, by insuring and guaranteeing private loans, has helped to finance the construction of nearly half of the 7 million new homes built since the end of World War II, as well as the purchase and improvement of many million existing homes. A large number of these units has been bought by veterans of World War II with the assistance of loans guaranteed by the Veterans Administration. Since the attack on Korea, special emphasis has been placed on providing housing and community facilities in critical defense areas. The record levels of construction both before and since June 1950 have materially improved the housing of the average American citizen. Adequate housing is still unavailable, however, for millions of low-income families.

Net expenditures for housing and community development in the fiscal year 1954 are estimated at 509 million dollars, a decline of 248 million dollars from the current fiscal year. Principal factors in the expected decline are a lower volume of mortgage purchases and direct loans for veterans' housing, and substantial net receipts instead of expenditures for the public housing programs.

Defense housing and community facilities.—To help meet the most urgent defense requirements, Federal assistance has been granted or is planned for about 200,000 new housing units in critical defense housing areas and near military posts. Private builders are constructing most of these homes with the aid of liberal Federal mortgage insurance backed in many cases by Federal mortgage purchase commitments.

In those areas where private builders, even with these special financing aids, are unable to provide the needed housing, the Federal Government is supplying 19,000 temporary units to meet short-term needs near defense installations. Federal grants and loans are also helping local communities to finance the expansion of community facilities where defense activities have made such expansion necessary. To provide a small part of the additional temporary housing units urgently needed near military installations, I am recommending supplemental appropriations of 12.5 million dollars for the current fiscal year. Moreover, since it is now apparent that we cannot complete the needed minimum program before the Defense Housing and Community Facilities Act expires next June 30, I believe that the major provisions of the act should be extended for another year, with increased authorizations and additional appropriations of 100 million dollars.

Aids to private housing.—Most of the private housing built in critical defense housing areas is being financed with mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration. Since the successive relaxations of real estate credit controls in 1951 and 1952, applications for Federal insurance of mortgages in other areas have been rising steadily. If this trend continues, it is expected that there will be a need in the fiscal year 1954 for mortgage insurance commitments to finance nearly 300,000 new housing units. In addition, it is estimated that there will be a need for the Federal Housing Administration to insure mortgages covering purchases of more than 200,000 existing houses and 2 million other loans for improvement and repair of existing housing. To meet these needs will require increases of 1.5 billion dollars in the maximum mortgage insurance authorizations and 500 million dollars in the authority to insure property-improvement loans. Neither of these steps is likely to increase Budget expenditures, since the premiums paid for the insurance usually exceed administrative expenses and losses.

The Federal National Mortgage Association is authorized by law to purchase certain mortgages insured by the Federal Housing Administration or guaranteed by the Veterans Administration. The Veterans Administration also has authority, until June 30, 1953, to make direct loans to veterans in areas where guaranteed loans are not readily available. Over the past two years, both substantial purchases of veterans' housing mortgages and direct housing loans to veterans have been necessary, because the 4 percent interest rate on the guaranteed mortgages has been unattractive to many private lenders. The expenditure estimates in this Budget assume that under the restrictive policies adopted last fall a smaller volume of veterans' mortgage purchases will be necessary in the fiscal year 1954. Purchases of defense housing mortgages are expected to increase under the additional authority provided by the Congress last summer.

Public housing.—Since the attack on Korea, the low-rent public housing program has been held far below the average annual level of 135,000 starts authorized in 1949. For the fiscal year 1953, the Congress has limited the program to 35,000 new units, which will meet only a small part of the needs of low-income families now living in substandard units. For the fiscal year 1954, I am including in this Budget, as I did for 1952 and 1953, provisions for starting a minimum of 75,000 new units.

In this program, local authorities construct and operate the housing units. The Federal Government lends the authorities money or underwrites private loans to start construction, and pledges an annual contribution to help maintain the rents at levels which the tenants can afford. During the fiscal year 1954, the local authorities expect to sell substantial amounts of long-term bonds to private investors, using the proceeds to repay short-term loans from the Federal Government. As a result, receipts are expected to exceed expenditures for new loans under this program. In addition, the Public Housing Administration plans to sell 16,000 war housing units built during World War II. This will mean a further increase in receipts.

College housing loans.—In May 1950, the Congress authorized 300 million dollars in loans to help educational institutions obtain adequate housing for their students and faculty. This program has been held at low levels and has been confined to defense-related housing construction. However, applications for loans which qualify under these limitations have been increasing, and expenditures are expected to rise substantially in the fiscal year 1954.

Urban development and redevelopment.—The broad program for slum clearance and urban redevelopment authorized by the Housing Act of 1949 has been moving slowly, partly because of the time required by the local communities to make specific plans for projects which meet both local needs and Federal requirements. At present, about 180 cities are actively planning projects, but actual clearance and redevelopment operations have begun on only 23 approved projects in 14 cities. By the end of the fiscal year 1954, it is expected that 10 projects will be completed and about 110 others will be under way.

Under the original statute, additional loan and grant authority totaling 350 million dollars becomes available in the fiscal year 1954. However, because of the limited progress of the program to date and the plans to use private funds to replace most of the direct Federal lending, expenditures are estimated at only 33 million dollars.

Civil defense.—Recent advances in the techniques of warfare make it imperative that we immediately provide the essentials of a civil defense program. I have repeatedly warned that failure to do so could leave a fatal gap in our security structure. Passive civil defense of the World War II type cannot be effective against atomic warfare. Rather, the emphasis must shift to strong preattack measures, the success of which depend largely on advance warning. In this Budget, therefore, I am recommending appropriations which would enable the Federal Government to complete the air-raid warning system in the 191 cities which are likely to be principal targets in the event of an enemy attack on the United States. Because the effectiveness of civil defense organizations and techniques depends so directly on an adequate Nation-wide warning system, the Federal Government should pay the full cost of the warning program. The Government also should continue to accept full financial responsibility for the stockpiling of a national reserve of medical and engineering supplies and equipment. The present 50 percent matching arrangement should continue for other civil defense programs, since primary responsibility for organization and training of voluntary forces remains with the States and cities.

I am recommending total appropriations of 150 million dollars for civil defense in the fiscal year 1954. Because of anticipated delays in deliveries of medical and engineering supplies, expenditures are expected to decline from 84 million dollars in the current fiscal year to 74 million dollars in 1954.

EDUCATION AND GENERAL RESEARCH

Expenditures for education and general research in the fiscal year 1954 are estimated at 288 million dollars, an increase of 16 million dollars from the present fiscal year. These expenditures, of course, do not include the amounts spent for education and research in carrying out military, veterans', atomic energy, and other programs.

Sixty-five percent of the expenditures for education and general research in the fiscal year 1954 will be for grants to those local school districts that have been overburdened by defense activities. Another 10 percent will be for grants to States to help support their vocational education programs and their land-grant colleges. The Federal Government also assists Howard University and educational institutions for the deaf and blind, and it maintains major library and museum services at the National Capital. Expenditures for general purpose research are for the work of the Census Bureau, the National Bureau of Standards, and the National Science Foundation.

Promotion of education.—Payments to help build schools in districts overburdened by Federal Government activities and for children living on Federal property are estimated at 140 million dollars in the current fiscal year and, because of the expiration of the law authorizing these payments, will decline to an estimated 111 million dollars in 1954. Under present law, payments will be made only on applications filed before last July, and expenditures will be made from appropriations now available. Nearly 1,000 school districts are being helped to build more than 1,200 schools under this program.

Payments for school operating costs in overburdened districts and for children living on Federal property are estimated at 76 million dollars in the fiscal year 1954, a rise of nearly 25 million dollars over 1953. The increase results largely from the fact that enrollments and costs per pupil are rising. This program covers more than a million children in 2,600 school districts. The law authorizing these payments will expire on June 30, 1954.

These programs to aid school districts affected directly by defense activities have been very useful. They do not, of course, help the thousands of other school districts which are struggling with the problems of overcrowded schools, underpaid teachers, and obsolete or inadequate buildings. I hope the Congress will consider ways and means of helping the States to meet these needs.

National Science Foundation.—The National Science Foundation was created by the Congress in recognition of the need to formulate an adequate scientific research policy for the Nation, to remedy gaps in our basic scientific knowledge, and to overcome shortages of specialized manpower. However, sufficient funds have not been appropriated to permit the Foundation to perform these functions effectively. As I have pointed out in previous Messages, the Foundation should become the primary instrumentality through which the Federal Government gives support to basic research that is not directly related to the statutory functions of other Federal agencies. For this reason, the appropriation recommended for the Foundation in 1954 contains amounts for support of basic research and for fellowships which would otherwise be included in the estimates of other departments and agencies.

I urge the Congress, in the light of these considerations, to provide the Foundation in the fiscal year 1954 the full 15 million dollars authorized by present law. The law should be amended so as to permit a higher level of appropriations in the future.

Census Bureau.—Expenditures for census work will rise substantially in the fiscal year 1954 because the Census Bureau will take the basic 5-year censuses of business, transportation, manufactures, and mineral industries, and will begin preliminary work on the 1954 census of agriculture. As a result of improvements in the methods of collecting and compiling data, the total expenditure for the censuses of business and manufactures will be less than the last time they were taken despite increases in salary rates and other costs.

SOCIAL SECURITY, WELFARE, AND HEALTH

Expenditures for social security, welfare, and health are estimated at 2.6 billion dollars in the fiscal year 1954, approximately 15 million dollars less than the estimate for the current year. The chief factor in the expected decline is a drop in expenditures for hospital construction.

More than half of the expenditures for social security, welfare, and health are in the form of Federal grants to the States for public assistance. Most of the grants are for assistance payments to the needy aged. At present, 20 percent of the people over 65 years of age depend on this program for support.

Railroad retirement.—Budget expenditures for railroad retirement are mainly transfers of railroad payroll taxes to a trust account. The expenditures for the fiscal year 1954 also include approximately 35 million dollars as the final installment of a 1949 appropriation of 167 million dollars from general revenues to the railroad retirement account to cover the cost of granting railroad workers credit for time spent in military service during World War II.

Public assistance.—The Federal Government makes grants to the States to pay part of the cost of monthly payments to four categories of people in need—the aged, the blind, the permanently and totally disabled, and dependent children. In the fiscal year 1954, these grants are estimated at 1.3 billion dollars, the same as in the current fiscal year. Although the number of beneficiaries on State and local rolls is somewhat lower than last year, individual payments have been rising steadily. This reflects action by the States to cover earlier increases in the cost of living and to provide more adequate relief. It also reflects congressional action last summer increasing Federal contribution rates, effective from October 1, 1952, for a period of two years.

The need for public assistance should decline as more and more people acquire the protection of old-age and survivors insurance and qualify for higher benefit payments. Eighty percent of the gainfully employed people in the United States are now covered by this insurance. These people can look forward to monthly benefits in their old age as a matter of right, and at their death their dependents may also be entitled to monthly payments. This system of contributory social insurance was designed as our principal instrument for providing social security. It is now beginning to achieve that position. At present, the total of old-age and survivors insurance benefits is about equal to the combined expenditures of the Federal, State, and local governments for public assistance payments for all persons in need. Further improvements in our social insurance program should be made; they will quicken the rate at which public assistance can be reduced to its intended role as a second line of defense against want, filling gaps in the social insurance program.

Promotion of public health.—Federal expenditures for all public health programs—exclusive of medical care for military personnel and veterans—are estimated at 309 million dollars in the fiscal year 1954. About half of this amount will be for grants-in-aid to State governments and local communities for hospital construction, general health services, maternal and child health, and the control of such major diseases as tuberculosis, venereal disease, cancer, mental illness, and heart ailments. Other expenditures are for operation of Public Health Service hospitals, for payments to medical schools and universities for medical research and training, and for clinical and laboratory research conducted by the Federal Government. This Budget also includes appropriations for grants administered by the National Institutes of Health to private and public institutions for construction or major alteration of medical research facilities.

The expected decline in expenditures for these programs is due to several factors. Federal payments for hospital construction grants are expected to be 32 million dollars less because of prior year reductions in new obligational authority. Construction outlays for health research facilities are expected to drop by 11 million dollars with completion of the clinical research center during the current year. These decreases will be partly offset by increases in expenditures for research.

Several problems in the health field require congressional attention. We do not have enough doctors, dentists, and nurses to serve the whole population. Many localities are without adequately staffed health offices. Measures are needed to bridge the financial gap between good medical care and the average family's ability to pay for it. The Commission on the Health Needs of the Nation, which I established a year ago to study and report on long-term health requirements, has now published its findings and recommendations. I urge the Congress to give this report prompt and careful study to the end that appropriate action may be taken to meet our national needs.

Aid to special groups.—Essential improvements in hospital, school and employment services for our 400,000 native Indians will require some increase in expenditures for these services in the fiscal year 1954. Most of this is for a program to provide Indians with training for employment in industry and agriculture and to help them make satisfactory adjustments in new locations. A small increase is recommended for the Federal-State vocational rehabilitation program, which now helps about 65,000 disabled persons annually to become capable of gainful employment. Under another federally aided program, low-priced school lunches are now available to one-fourth of our school children.

Trust funds.—Each of the three major civilian retirement systems sponsored by the Federal Government is financed through a separate trust fund with payroll contributions as the principal source of revenue.

For the fiscal year 1954, receipts in these trust funds are expected to exceed the benefit payments by 2.6 billion dollars. This will raise the balances in the three accounts to nearly 30 billion dollars. It is desirable to build up reserves now because the cost of benefits will increase over the years as more and more people become eligible for retirement. The interest earned by the reserves which are being accumulated will help to meet this future cost.

In the case of old-age and survivors insurance, present law provides for gradual increases in the tax rate. Effective January 1, 1954, the rate is scheduled to rise from 1½ percent to 2 percent each on employers and employees.

The receipts and payments of these trust funds are not included in the Budget totals.

VETERANS' SERVICES AND BENEFITS

In the fiscal year 1954, the Federal Government will spend an estimated 4.6 billion dollars for a wide variety of veterans' services and benefits, ranging from medical and readjustment assistance to service pensions and burial benefits. These services and benefits are provided to veterans or dependents of veterans who died or were disabled in the service, and in many instances also to veterans without service-connected injuries or to their families.

Expenditures for veterans' programs have declined 38 percent from the post-World War II high of 7.4 billion dollars. However, the total for 1954 continues at about the 1953 level, and the outlook for future years is for increases rather than decreases.

Total .....	4, 863	4, 546	4, 564	4, 617

Two main factors point to an upward trend in expenditures. The basic factor is the rapid growth of the veteran population. Since 1940 the number of veterans has increased from 4.3 million to approximately 19.8 million. New veterans are now being discharged at a rate of approximately one million a year. If our armed forces continue at their present size, most of the people in the United States will eventually be veterans or dependents of veterans.

The second factor which points to an increase in outlays is the extension and liberalization of veterans' benefits through legislation. In the last 10 years the Congress has enacted more than 500 laws affecting veterans' benefits. Because eligibility conditions and benefit rates are fixed by basic statutes, four-fifths of the expenditures of the Veterans Administration are not subject to direct control through the Budget process.

I strongly support the policy of providing assistance to veterans, particularly those injured in the service, in assuming their normal places in society. In considering new veterans' legislation, however, recognition should be given to the extensive development in recent years of general welfare programs, such as social security, which serve both veterans and nonveterans. There is overlapping at present between the two sets of programs which should be corrected.

Compensation and pensions.—It is estimated that an average of 3,348,000 individuals and families will receive veterans' compensation and pension payments totaling more than 2.5 billion dollars in the fiscal year 1954. Expenditures for these programs are increasing steadily. Even if no new legislation is enacted and no allowance is made for a further increase of the veteran population, it is estimated that expenditures for veterans' compensation and pensions will double in the next 30 to 40 years.

Insurance and servicemen's indemnities.—Under the Servicemen's Indemnity Act of 1951 the Government pays 10 thousand dollars to the family of each serviceman who dies on duty or within 120 days thereafter. This supersedes the optional system of national service life insurance. In the case of policyholders who acquired national service life insurance or United States Government life insurance before the indemnity law was enacted, the Government continues to reimburse the trust funds for deaths traceable to war hazards. Expenditures for indemnities are expected to rise from about 6 million dollars in the fiscal year 1952 to nearly 15 million dollars in 1954, while Government payments to the insurance funds are expected to decline from 210 million dollars to 51 million dollars.

Hospital and medical care.—The increase in current expenses of the veterans' hospital and medical program reflects the opening of new hospitals being completed under the construction program authorized after World War II. My Budget recommendations for the fiscal year 1954 provide for an estimated daily average beneficiary load of 136,250 in veterans' hospitals, in contract hospitals, and in State homes. By June 30, 1954, the Veterans Administration is expected to have in operation 170 hospitals and 17 domiciliary homes. This Budget includes a recommendation for new obligational authority of 80 million dollars to build the final four hospitals in the current construction program, and 20 million dollars for modernization, improvement, and repair of existing hospitals.

Readjustment benefits.—Expenditures for readjustment benefits in the fiscal year 1954 are expected to decline slightly from the level now estimated for 1953. Expenditures for benefits to World War II veterans are declining, but outlays for benefits to veterans of the Korean conflict are rising, because the Veterans' Readjustment Assistance Act of 1952 extended to the veterans of the current emergency benefits similar to those which had been provided under the "GI bill" to World War II veterans. In the fiscal year 1954 it is estimated that about 70 percent of the readjustment expenditures will be for benefits under the new law.

The estimated 1954 expenditures provide for an average enrollment in school, job, and farm training courses of 715,000 veterans, of whom 475,000 are expected to be veterans of the Korean conflict. They also provide for unemployment allowances of 47 million dollars under the new law for an estimated weekly average of 55,200 veterans, and 75 million dollars to cover interest gratuities and losses under the veterans' loan guarantee program. It is expected that 368,000 new loans totaling 3.1 billion dollars will be guaranteed during the year.

Trust funds.—Under the national service life insurance and United States Government life insurance trust funds, 50 billion dollars of insurance continues in force in about 7 million policies issued before the Servicemen's Indemnity Act of 1951. In the three fiscal years 1952 through 1954, expenditures from these funds are expected to exceed receipts by a decreasing margin as special dividend payments decline. The receipts and payments of these trust funds are not included in the Budget totals.

GENERAL GOVERNMENT

Expenditures in the general government category are largely for making and enforcing laws, collecting taxes, managing the public debt, administering Federal records and property, and for payments to the Civil Service retirement trust fund.

Expenditures for general government are expected to increase from 1.4 billion dollars in the current fiscal year to 1.5 billion dollars in the fiscal year 1954. The increase is chiefly due to higher Federal payments to the Civil Service retirement system and to increased expenditures for maintenance and repair of Government buildings.

Federal financial management.—Under the reorganization plan approved by the Congress last March, the Bureau of Internal Revenue has reconstituted its Washington office, decentralized certain supervisory functions to 17 newly established districts, and made its inspection service independent of the rest of the Bureau. Well-qualified personnel have been selected to fill the key positions, all of which, except the position of Commissioner of Internal Revenue, are now part of the classified civil service. These steps, by strengthening supervision and more clearly defining responsibilities, should not only tighten enforcement of the revenue laws, but also permit the Bureau to give better assistance to taxpayers. This Budget provides for increased activity in the collection of delinquent taxes.

Large numbers of savings bonds purchased during World War II are now reaching maturity. The owners of most of these bonds are continuing to hold them under the extension program authorized in 1951. Nevertheless, more than one-quarter of these bonds are being presented for redemption. These redemptions, plus an increase in current sales of new savings bonds, have sharply increased the workload of the Bureau of the Public Debt. I am therefore recommending an increase in the Bureau's appropriation.

Central property and records management.—Under the Federal Property and Administrative Services Act of 1949, as amended, the General Services Administration has taken major steps to manage more efficiently the buildings owned or operated by the Federal Government, to buy more economically the items used by many Government agencies, and to reduce materially the cost of handling and storing Government records.

The sharp reductions in appropriations last year have made it impossible to maintain and operate public buildings properly. I am therefore recommending an increase to restore these services to levels more nearly adequate—but still below those maintained by operators of comparable private buildings. I am also recommending increases to permit necessary repairs to Government buildings, to finance the first installment of a three-year program for modernizing major post office facilities in the interests of increased efficiency, to extend the central procurement of common-use items, and to obtain the increased savings that may be expected from wider use of surplus equipment and supplies. The funds recommended in this Budget would also finance the last two of ten record centers started two years ago, and thus would complete a program which has already made large savings through better utilization of space and release of filing equipment.

Civilian personnel management.—The great improvements made in the Federal civilian service in recent years have brought us nearer to our goal of a real career service throughout the Government, in which all appointments and promotions are based on merit and the conditions of employment provide positive incentives to honest, efficient work. To continue this progress, the funds proposed in this Budget would increase the proportion of placements made through competitive examinations conducted by the Civil Service Commission and boards of examiners in the agencies, extend the Commission's inspections of personnel management in the agencies, and bring certain overseas personnel under the competitive civil service.

The Classification Act of 1949 authorized a limited number of positions in grades GS-16, 17, and 18 created under that act. This authorization has been amended by a series of subsequent enactments, frequently in appropriation acts, each allowing a few positions for selected agencies and programs. The lack of consistency in these several statutes constitutes an obstacle to effective management and should be eliminated through the enactment of a single general authorization covering the requirements of all executive branch agencies. For this reason, appropriation requests do not include authority to individual agencies for additional positions in these grades.

Retirement for Federal civilian personnel.—I am recommending appropriations of 427 million dollars to cover the Government's obligations to the Civil Service Retirement and Disability fund and 3 million dollars to pay annuities under special laws. The Government's obligations to the Civil Service Retirement and Disability fund include 59 million dollars to cover the cost for 1953 and 1954 of the temporary increase in benefits voted last summer for persons then receiving annuities from the Civil Service retirement system, and 368 million dollars for its contribution as employer for the fiscal year 1954. The amounts I am recommending do not provide for payments on the Government's outstanding liability to the fund, since this is one of the problems to be studied by the Committee on Retirement Policy for Federal Personnel recently established by the Congress.

Protective services and alien control.—The Immigration and Nationality Act, which became effective on December 24, 1952, has considerably expanded the responsibility of the Department of Justice and other departments in such fields as investigation, deportation, inspection, and naturalization. The law also expands Federal controls over alien crewmen and registered aliens, increases visa requirements, and adds new grounds for exclusion and deportation. Also, the Government must pay almost all of the costs of detention, hospitalization, and deportation which were previously borne in part by private carriers. To finance the substantial increases in staff necessary to administer the new law, as well as to strengthen enforcement along the Mexican border, it is recommended that the appropriation for the Immigration and Naturalization Service be increased to 48 million dollars in 1954, and that a supplemental appropriation of 1.7 million dollars be enacted for 1953.

I continue to believe that the new law contains many provisions that are unwise, unfair, and incompatible with our foreign policy objectives. The Commission on Immigration and Naturalization has now published its findings and recommendations. I urge the Congress to give them its prompt attention.

INTEREST

Interest payments constitute a large and growing charge on the Budget. They represent mainly the current cost of the fivefold increase in our public debt which occurred as a result of World War II. As fixed charges, they cannot be reduced by congressional or Executive action, but vary only as securities are issued, retired, or refunded under changing interest rates and with varying payment periods.

INTEREST

[Fiscal years. In millions]

Item	Expenditures			Recommended new obligational authority for 1954
	1952 actual	1953 estimated	1954 estimated
Interest on public debt.....	$5,853	$6,450	$6,350	$6,350
Interest on refunds of receipts.....	76	65	65	65
Interest on trust deposits.....	5	5	5	5
Total.....	5,934	6,520	6,420	6,420

Interest on the public debt.—The cost of interest on the public debt in the fiscal year 1954 is estimated at 6,350 million dollars. The decrease of 100 million dollars from the 1953 estimate does not indicate a reversal of the upward trend in interest payments, but merely reflects an unusual situation which occurred during the fiscal year 1953. More than 15 billion dollars in certificates of indebtedness which paid almost a year's interest at maturity were refunded early in the fiscal year 1953 into new obligations on which interest payments for half a year or more are due on June 1, 1953. Thus, about 20 months' interest on this portion of the debt falls due during the current fiscal year.

Although interest expenditures in 1954 will be lower than in 1953 because of this unusual situation, interest costs are still rising. These increases are due in large part to the higher interest rates paid on securities issued or refunded during the past two years. In addition, each year an increasing amount of special issues is held by Government agencies and trust funds. The interest rates on these issues are slightly above the average rate on the debt as a whole. Furthermore, these interest rates tend to increase when the average interest rate on the total debt rises.

Recent increases in the size of the interest-bearing debt are the second major reason for the rise in interest costs. By the end of the current fiscal year, the outstanding debt will have increased by 6.5 billion dollars since Korea, and the 9.9 billion dollar deficit estimated for the fiscal year 1954 will cause a further increase.

My interest in and study of the Federal Budget began many years before I became President. As President, I have given the Budget my constant attention. It should receive that same attention from the Congress, particularly because of one basic fact often overlooked and often misunderstood.

This fact is that the financial program of the Government cannot be planned in terms of a single fiscal year. It must be planned in the light of security, economic, and budgetary goals—not just for the ensuing year but for three and even four years ahead.

The Budgets I have transmitted have always reflected such planning. My recommendations on taxes and appropriations have had as their objectives the meeting of all our responsibilities for the security and welfare of our people and for a growing economy with a stable currency and a balanced budget.

Budget and fiscal policies are tools of national policy. As such, they are subjects of controversy and evolution. I believe that the policies I have supported are sound, and that the recommendations in this Budget will enable us to meet our national needs in the fiscal year 1954 in the light of the Nation-wide and world-wide objectives of the United States.

INTRODUCTION TO PART I

Part I of the Budget (pp. A1 to A13) contains seven summary tables on Federal funds and on the public debt. Each of these tables is designed to bring together in one to three pages some over-all aspects of the Federal Budget.

TYPES OF FEDERAL FUNDS

The Federal (Government-owned) funds which are covered in part I of the Budget are of three types as follows:

The general fund is credited with all receipts which are not earmarked by law for a specific purpose, and is charged with expenditures that are payable from appropriations out of "any money in the Treasury not otherwise appropriated" and from borrowing. Both in number of items and in amount, most of the Government's transactions are transactions of the general fund.

Special funds are those which are established to account for receipts that are earmarked by law for a specific purpose. They exclude the funds which carry on a cycle of operations for which there is continuing authority to use the receipts (as described in the next paragraph). Some special funds are subject to annual appropriation by Congress. Others are automatically available under the laws which created the funds.

Revolving and management funds include two sub-categories. Revolving funds are those which finance a continuing cycle of operations with receipts derived therefrom earmarked for continuing use. Revolving funds may be for external operations (including the funds of most Government-owned corporations) or for intragovernmental purposes. Management funds are those which are created to expedite accounting for and administration of operations financed from two or more appropriations of an agency.

BUDGET RECEIPTS AND EXPENDITURES

Basis of stating budget receipts.—Table 1 includes a summary of budget receipts. Such receipts include all money paid into the Treasury to the credit of the general fund and of special funds. Budget receipts never include money obtained from borrowing. Because revolving and management funds are reported on a net basis in the expenditure figures (see below), budget receipts do not include receipts of such funds.

Basis of stating budget expenditures.—Tables 1, 4, and 7 include information on budget expenditures. Such expenditures cover the general funds, the special funds, and the revolving and management funds. In the case of revolving and management funds, the expenditures are completely on a net basis; that is, the collections received by the fund are deducted from the total of the checks issued in payment for goods and services received, and the resulting figure is shown as the expenditure. Where the collections are larger than the sum of checks issued for such a fund, the net amount included in the expenditures is a negative item.

Expenditures for all categories shown in these tables are on a checks-issued basis. This means that expenditures are reported for the fiscal year in which the checks are issued, or (where no checks are required) the year in which payment is made in cash. It also covers the interest on the public debt becoming payable in the year, including coupon interest and the increase in the redemption value of savings bonds. Table 1 includes an adjustment figure for the past year to bring the final total to the Daily Treasury Statement expenditure basis.

In the case of general fund expenditures, the amounts shown are net of incidental reimbursements from outside, made to the appropriations. In the case of all funds, expenditures are net of reimbursements received from within the Government (thus avoiding double-counting).

Retirement of Government debt is always excluded from budget expenditure figures. Similarly, net investments in United States Government securities (which occur sometimes in the case of Government corporations) are excluded from the expenditure figures.

Eliminations from both receipts and expenditures.—Certain payments from one fund to another are eliminated from budget receipts and expenditures. This is done in order to avoid inflating both sides of the Budget. The payments of earnings and dividends on capital, and the return of such capital to the general fund are the types of items which have been so excluded.

BUDGET SURPLUS, DEFICIT, AND PUBLIC DEBT

Budget surplus and deficit.—The Budget surplus or deficit, shown in table 1, represents the difference between the budget receipts and budget expenditures of a given year. Cash balances at the opening or closing of the year have no effect upon the figure. Nor does the use of prior year appropriation balances in lieu of new appropriations change the figure. Similarly, surpluses and deficits of previous years cannot enter into the calculation.

The public debt.—The last section of table 1 summarizes and table 3 gives details regarding the effect of each year's operations upon the public debt. The budget surplus or deficit is not the only factor which causes a change in the public debt. The amount which it is necessary to borrow or which it is possible to repay is also influenced by: Changes in the Treasury cash balance, the result of trust fund transactions, the use of Government corporation borrowing directly from the public as a means of financing budget expenditures of the corporations (and vice versa in the case of direct repayments of borrowing by the corporations), and the change in the amount of outstanding checks and other items in process of clearance through the accounts.

TIMING OF AUTHORIZATIONS

Distinction between permanent and current authorizations.—Tables 2 and 6, as well as the detail in part II, distinguish permanent authorizations and current authorizations. The "permanent" items are those under which additional sums become available from time to time under action previously taken by the Congress; no further action is required each year. Most permanent authorizations are in force until repealed; a few are in effect for only a few years as specified in the law. The “current” authorizations are those enacted by Congress in or immediately preceding each fiscal year.

Items proposed for later transmission.—While the summary tables of the Budget present a complete financial program, the details in part II are not a formal transmittal of the entire Budget. Tables 1, 2, 4, 5, and 6 identify by separate columns the estimate of amounts which it is expected will be transmitted later. Table 7 identifies such items in a separate stub section. Such items include: (a) Supplemental estimates for the current year, (b) appropriations and other authorizations to carry out programs for which authorizing legislation is to be submitted in advance of the formal recommendation for appropriation, (c) proposed legislation which would affect receipts, and (d) an allowance for items which cannot be foreseen now but which will be transmitted later when definite amounts can be determined and the needs can be more specifically identified. The last-named allowance is called a “reserve for contingencies”; congressional action upon it will be requested later, not at a single time nor as a single lump sum item, but in the form of a number of specific appropriations for individual items.

TYPES OF AUTHORIZATIONS

Government agencies are generally permitted by law to incur obligations requiring the future payment of money only when they have an appropriation or fund available for the purpose. Therefore, authorizations are enacted to cover obligations to be incurred within the fiscal year, rather than merely covering the expenditures which will be made during that one year in payment of obligations.

In tables 2 and 6 budget authorizations are classified according to types as follows:

Appropriations are authorizations to make expenditures from the general fund of the Treasury or from the various special funds. In some cases the authority to incur obligations has previously been granted in the form of contract authorizations; when this has happened, the appropriation to permit the payment of such obligations is said to be “for liquidation of contract authorization.” In all other cases appropriations confer authority to incur new obligations and to pay for them.

Contract authorizations are authorizations to incur obligations prior to the enactment of an appropriation. A contract authorization does not in itself permit the spending of money; hence it must be followed by an appropriation to permit payment of the contracts and other obligations thus incurred.

Authorizations to expend from debt receipts are authorizations to make expenditures from borrowed money. Such authorizations may take these forms: (a) Authorizations for the Treasury to make public debt receipts available to a given agency or enterprise, often in exchange for notes of the enterprise; (b) authorizations for a Government-owned corporation to borrow directly from the public; and (c) cancellation of notes which have been issued by a Government enterprise and are held by the Treasury, where the cancellation has the effect of permitting further expenditures to be made (through restoring previously used authority to borrow from the Treasury).

Reappropriations and reauthorizations are actions to continue available part or all of the unused balances of prior appropriations or authorizations which would otherwise expire. They are in fact a form of new authority.

Total new obligational authority shown in tables 2 and 5 is the sum of the various types of authorizations named above, less the portion of appropriations which is for liquidation of prior contract authorizations. This total represents the new authority becoming available in any given year for the purpose of making commitments.

RELATING EXPENDITURES TO AUTHORIZATIONS

The last section of table 2 and all of table 7 are devoted to summarizing the relationship between budget authorizations and budget expenditures. Most budget authorizations are available for obligation for only 1 year, but some are available for longer periods of time. Even those which expire for obligational purposes at the end of 1 year remain available for making expenditures in payment of such obligations for an additional 2 years. Therefore, a substantial portion of each year's expenditures comes from authorizations of prior years, and a substantial portion of each year's authorizations is carried over into future years before it is spent. The carry-over of balances is controlled by certain basic statutes and by the language of appropriation acts.

Because old and new money are commingled in some of the accounts, no attempt is made in the summary figures to separate actual spending in 1952 between the use of new authorizations and the use of balances. However, the Budget presents such a breakdown on an estimated basis for 1953 and 1954. In the case of revolving and management funds, it assumes that budget authorizations are spent in an amount equal to the portion credited to the revolving fund during the year. The remainder of the revolving and management fund expenditures (or negative expenditures) are not related to budget authorizations, and are here classified as being charges or credits to “receipts of the enterprise.”

CLASSIFICATIONS USED IN PART I

Budget receipts shown in table 1 are classified according to source. A more detailed itemization of this classification appears in Special Analysis C of part IV.

Expenditures and authorizations are classified by functions in tables 1 and 2, as in the Budget Message. This classification indicates the broad purposes and groups of programs for which expenditures are made by the Government. A more detailed list of the contents of each functional category appears in Special Analysis B, and a 10-year table by functions appears in Special Analysis I of part IV.

Expenditures and authorizations are classified by major organization unit in tables 4 through 7. This indicates the agency which receives the budget authorization. Expenditures are shown opposite the same agency, even though a portion of the money is sometimes spent through allocations, advances, or reimbursements made to another agency. The details for each organization unit are found in part II of the Budget.

FOREIGN CREDITS FORMERLY AVAILABLE FREE

Several laws have enabled certain agencies which operate abroad to use some of the foreign credits and currencies which the Government receives, without crediting such collections to Treasury receipts and without an appropriation for the use of them. In other cases, the foreign credits have been available to an agency only when purchased by an appropriation, and the value of the credits purchased has been shown in miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury.

This Budget includes in the recommended appropriations the value of foreign credits which are needed for obligation in 1954. It reflects the collections of such credits in budget receipts and the spending of such credits in budget expenditures.

INTRODUCTION TO PART II

Part II contains the details of the Budget for Federal funds, including various types of tables and schedules, explanatory statements of the work to be performed and the money needed, and the text of the language proposed for enactment by Congress on each item of authorization. This part also includes material on funds of the municipal government of the District of Columbia, and a few other trust funds which require congressional action.

The contents of part II are arranged in chapters reflecting the organization of the Government. Totals from the various chapters are carried forward to various tables of part I.

SUMMARIES OF NEW AUTHORIZATIONS AND EXPENDITURES

At the beginning of each chapter a table in large type summarizes new authorizations, and a second table summarizes expenditures. Both tables segregate the items proposed for later transmission, for which no details appear in this Budget, from those items already enacted or recommended in this document.

Summary of new authorizations.—This summary indicates the totals of each type of authorization to incur obligations or make expenditures. The various types of authorizations are explained in the introduction to part I (pp. A2 and A3). The figures come from the detail in the chapter and are carried forward into table 6 and from there to tables 5 and 2 of part I. Grand totals are shown for the new obligational authority enacted or recommended.

Summary of expenditures.—This summary indicates the total expenditures for the chapter. For the years 1953 and 1954, it estimates the portion of the expenditures which come out of appropriations or other authorizations currently granted by Congress, and the expenditures coming from permanent authorizations and from the balances of prior authorizations. Additional entries are used where required for expenditures which will come from appropriations currently made to liquidate prior contract authorizations, and for the net expenditures of revolving and management funds. Because old and new money are commingled in some of the accounts, no attempt is made in the summary figures to separate actual spending in 1952 between the old and the new authorizations.

The figures are taken from the detailed analysis schedules appearing throughout the chapter. The amounts shown in the chapter summaries are carried forward into table 7 and from there the totals are taken into tables 4, 2, and 1 of part I.

In preparing the estimates for 1953 and 1954, it is generally assumed that old money available in commingled accounts will be obligated before the new money is obligated, and that expenditures will reflect the liquidation of those obligations on the basis of previous experience. Where the obligation and expenditures are simultaneous, the first-in, first-out method is used to assign expenditures between old and new money. In the case of revolving funds where budgetary authorizations are commingled with receipts of the enterprise, it is assumed that the budgetary authorizations are expended in an amount equal to the amount thereof placed in the revolving fund during the year, and that the remaining expenditure or net collections are therefore a charge or credit to receipts of the enterprise.

STATEMENT OF AUTHORIZATIONS AND EXPENDITURES BY ACCOUNT TITLE

A detailed listing of the organization units and account titles show the budget authorizations and expenditures for each. The accounts are divided into several sections: current authorizations other than revolving and management funds, permanent authorizations, revolving and management funds, and supplemental items proposed for later transmission.

Special types of authorizations are set forth under the applicable appropriation titles, identified by separate stub entries. Functional code numbers appear in a separate column, indicating the category in the Budget Message and in the functional tables where each account shown here has been included.

A separate double page spread is used for revolving and management funds. This portion of the table shows the total amounts provided by operations, the total amounts applied to operations and the net expenditures (which is the difference between the two other figures just named). Appropriations and other budgetary authorizations to use general fund money for revolving funds are shown in this section. The expenditures for each revolving fund include both the spending from budgetary authorizations and the spending of receipts of the enterprise.

DETAILED MATERIAL

The detailed material generally follows the order of the chapter summaries. Thus, the accounts of a given organization unit may be found in several places, if the unit has different types of authorizations and funds. Supplemental items which are anticipated for later transmission are summarized at the end of each chapter, but the regular detailed material on them will be submitted to Congress when the supplemental is formally transmitted by the President.

Within the detailed material, bold-face headings are generally used for account titles for which congressional action is being proposed; light-face headings are used for the accounts which require no action at this time.

The kind of display regularly shown for general and special fund appropriations is illustrated and explained on page 4 and the types of financial statements regularly used for revolving funds are illustrated and explained on page 5.

The management funds follow the same general style as general and special fund accounts with an extra summation of amounts provided and amounts applied, printed at the end of the expenditure analysis schedule. Special schedules are used to show separately the use of appropriations which are solely for the liquidation of contract authorizations.

The individual schedules contain considerable additional data beyond that which is shown in summary schedules. For example, the detailed schedules on general and special fund appropriations show balances available for expenditure at the beginning and end of each year, divided between the portion thereof which is obligated and the portion which is unobligated. The detailed schedules also show such additional information as the reimbursements credited directly to appropriation accounts, the savings which will lapse from each year's appropriations, and various other data of interest.

APPROPRIATION LANGUAGE

The language proposed by the President for inclusion in the 1954 appropriation acts is printed at the head of each item requiring action. The language in the 1953 appropriation acts is used as a base. Immediately following the language are citations to relevant laws and the appropriation acts from which the text is taken.

SCHEDULE OF AMOUNTS AVAILABLE

For each account there is shown a brief schedule which lists the appropriations made or required, other sources of money or authority to incur obligations, deductions for the amounts not used within the year, and the amount of "Obligations incurred."

OBLIGATIONS BY ACTIVITIES

Financial requirements are broken down by purpose, program, project, or activity. This breakdown is especially tailored for each agency and account, reflecting the particular duties and responsibilities for which it receives money.
 Where reimbursements are received from other accounts of the Government, the obligations chargeable to such reimbursements are often placed in a separate portion of this schedule.

Description	1952 actual	1953 estimate	1954 estimate
Direct Obligations
1. Executive direction.....	$394,817	$395,600	$383,390

Total obligations.....	2,595,788	2,595,000	2,650,000

Direct obligations are those for which this agency gets the money directly, either by appropriation, contract authorization, reimbursements from outside the Government, or other means.

Obligations shown in this portion of the schedule are financed by other appropriations and accounts, and therefore the amounts shown here are duplicated within the direct obligations section of the paying accounts.

NARRATIVE STATEMENTS

The work planned and services proposed to be carried out are described briefly under each appropriation or fund. Where practicable the narrative statements indicate the expected accomplishment in relation to the financial estimates and gives some measures of program and performance. In the case of permanent appropriations, the narrative statements also explain the source of the money and the statutory basis for the appropriation.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Executive direction.—The Attorney General, aided by the Deputy Attorney General and other immediate assistants, directs and supervises the programs and activities of the Department.

2. Administrative reviews and appeals.—In addition to reviews of requests for pardon, these include the work of the Board of Immigration Appeals and of the Board of Executive direction, administrative services, and similar common overhead activities are merely listed, except when there is some unusual circumstance to be explained.

Headings in the narrative statements usually agree with the schedules of obligations by activities.

OBLIGATIONS BY OBJECTS

There is shown for each account a summary of personal services and a classification of the obligations according to a uniform list of objects. These object classes, numbered from 01 to 16, reflect the nature of the things or services purchased, regardless of the purpose or the nature of the program for which they are used.

Permanent positions are those of a full-time nature which are of indefinite duration. They include positions which may be filled by persons with temporary appointments.

Average salaries and average grades are computed arithmetically. The average salary may fall either within or outside the salary range of the average grade.

Employment in part-time positions and those of a seasonal nature or of short duration is included here.

Payments for the extra day or days in excess of 52 weeks per year, overtimes, night-work differential, holiday pay, etc., are included here.

Obligations refer to orders placed, contracts awarded, and services received during the year, regardless of the time of payment. Appropriations or other obligatory authority must be provided by the Congress before obligations can be incurred.

Obligations which have been incurred but not yet paid are estimated as closely as possible, but the eventual payment may be in a slightly different amount from the obligation first reported. This line indicates the difference arising from this cause.

ANALYSIS OF EXPENDITURES

This schedule shows the relationship between obligations incurred during the year and the amounts disbursed in the same period. The unliquidated obligations (i. e., obligations which have not yet been paid) at the beginning and end of the year are the principal items in making the bridge from obligations to expenditures.

Unliquidated obligations, start of year.....	$193,155	$228,917	$255,000
Obligations incurred during the year.....	2,542,023	2,595,000	2,650,000
Adjustment in obligations of prior years.....	3,071
Deduct:	2,738,249	2,833,917	2,905,000
Reimbursable obligations.....	108,953	100,000	100,000
Unliquidated obligations, end of year.....	72,332	255,000	362,700
Total expenditures.....	2,234,917	2,478,917	2,542,300
Expenditures are distributed as follows:
Out of current authorizations.....	2,194,153	2,240,000	2,287,300
Out of prior authorizations.....	196,228	238,917	255,000

Since the total of obligations includes the reimbursable items, but the expenditure figures are necessarily net of reimbursements (primarily to avoid duplicate accounting for the Government as a whole), it is necessary to deduct reimbursements in arriving at expenditure figures.

This is an example where successive annual appropriations are made. If appropriations of two or more years were merged under the law, a single figure would appear in the 1952 column for expenditures out of both current and prior authorizations.

EXPLANATORY ILLUSTRATION OF BUDGETS FOR REVOLVING FUNDS

The financial statements shown below are regularly used for revolving funds. Such funds also have narrative statements on program and performance.

Budgetary authorizations for such funds and limitations on expenses of the Government corporations follow the general format illustrated on the opposite page.

STATEMENT OF THE SOURCES AND APPLICATION OF FUNDS

This is a balanced presentation of the amounts becoming available during the year, either in the form of cash or other working capital, and the way in which those amounts have been used.

The statement excludes depreciation, losses on loans, and other transactions which affect neither cash nor other current assets and liabilities. It does reflect transactions which affect cash, accounts receivable, accounts payable, other accrued liabilities, inventories of supplies for administrative purposes, deferred charges and credits.

Both the funds applied and the funds provided parts of the statement are divided between "operations" and Treasury "financing." The sum of the amounts applied to operations less the amounts provided by operations equals the net expenditures, which are included within the budget expenditures for the Government as a whole.

A. Statement of sources and application of funds

Total funds provided.....	4,808,453	3,525,000	3,109,500

If the enterprise acquires materials for manufacture or sale, purchases for manufacture or sale are included in expenses, whether or not the materials are used within the year.

The change in selected working capital items will equal the difference between the figures on statement C for two successive years for current assets (other than Treasury cash and inventories for sale and manufacture) less current liabilities.

The amounts shown on this line are equal to the amount shown as payments to the fund on the "Budgetary Authorization Schedule."

EFFECT ON BUDGETARY EXPENDITURES

Funds applied to operations.....	$2,123,009	$2,952,574	$2,403,032
Funds provided by operations.....	3,808,453	3,525,000	3,109,500
Net effect on budgetary expenditures.....	-1,685,444	-572,426	-706,468
The above amounts are charged or credited (-) as follows:
To budgetary authorization.....	1,000,000
To net receipts of the enterprise.....	-2,685,444	-572,426	-706,468

Net effect on budgetary expenditures includes the spending of appropriations for the revolving fund as well as the spending of the fund's own receipts. A negative figure here indicates collections in excess of expenditures.

STATEMENT OF INCOME AND EXPENSES

This is a statement of the income and expenses and the resulting profit or loss for the year. This statement is normally on a full accrual basis, including in the expenses sums for depreciation and provision for losses on receivables. It also indicates losses and charge-offs when they occur. In addition, gains or losses from the sale of equipment or other assets appear here.

At the bottom of this statement there is an analysis of the retained earnings or cumulative deficit, showing any additions to it during the year, any charges made against it, and the balance at the end of the year.

Income (as well as expenses) is usually based on the accrual method of accounting.

If the enterprise conducts a sales operation, the cost of goods sold, rather than purchases, is considered an expense in this statement.

Depreciation and other expenses not shown on statement A are indicated separately.

Retained earnings here agrees with the balance sheet. It represents cumulative profits kept in the business, whether in the form of cash, inventories, receivables, or fixed assets.

STATEMENT OF FINANCIAL CONDITION

This is a balance sheet of assets, liabilities, and investment of the Government at the close of the fiscal year. Like the other statements, it is normally on an accrual basis.

When interest is paid on part or all of the investment of the United States Government, this section is broken down to indicate the amount which has been invested by the Government on which the fund pays interest, the amount invested on which the fund does not pay interest, and the retained earnings or deficit.

Cash with United States Treasury is the sum that the fund has on deposit with the Treasury. It excludes any balances of appropriations (or other authorizations) which have not yet been paid into the business enterprise or revolving fund.

Liabilities normally means what is owed for goods and services which have been received. The remainder of the obligations outstanding, covering items on order which have not yet been received, is shown as a footnote.

The investment of the United States Government indicates the Government's interest as owner, plus the Government's interest as creditor in the form of notes payable to the Treasury where a Government corporation has authorization to borrow on such notes.

SCHEDULE OF ACCRUED EXPENDITURES BY OBJECTS

This is a schedule of accrued expenditures by uniform object class. Sometimes the details are on an obligation basis, with an adjustment for the change in items on order, ending with the total accrued expenditures.

SCHEDULE A-1. Accrued expenditures by objects

Where there are annual congressional limitations on certain expenses, this schedule is usually limited to the expenses which are under limitation.

LIBRARY OF CONGRESS

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The Library of Congress, established by an act of Congress approved April 24, 1800, is not only the library of the Congress itself, but is also the general library of the Government of the United States, complemented in special fields by other Government libraries. Its collections are comprehensive and varied, and include important manuscripts, maps, music, motion picture films, sound recordings, prints, photographs, books, periodicals, newspapers, documents of all national governments of the world, oriental literature, etc. In addition to housing the collections and performing general and basic services connected therewith, certain specialized functions are performed: The Legislative Reference Service, Copyright, catalog card distribution, and the service of books in raised characters and talking books to the blind. In terms of these broad fields of activity comparative obligations (including only those chargeable to annual appropriations) for 1952 and estimated for 1953 and 1954 are:

Total obligations.....	9,287,678	9,443,478	10,049,960

The Library's first obligation is to Congress; the second to other agencies of the Government; and the third to other libraries, scholars, investigators, and the general public.

In addition to funds appropriated annually by Congress, there are also available a number of gift and trust funds, working, transferred, and allocated funds.

Certain responsibilities for the physical equipment, maintenance and operation of the Library buildings rest by law with the Architect of the Capitol, and estimates for these purposes are carried under the request of that office.

For the general and basic services, the major objectives for 1954 are to enable the Library to meet the increasing number of official inquiries requiring material from hitherto little emphasized geographical and subject areas; to repair its sustaining services which were weakened by the need for developing new areas in which service was demanded by the Federal agencies; and to permit necessary flexibility in staff assignments to insure basic adequacy of services. Additions to the staff are proposed for a few operations which are threatened with a serious breakdown. Two new projects are proposed. For the specialized services, the objectives for 1954 are the strengthening of the staff, organization and techniques to meet the demands of Congress (Legislative Reference Service) and of the public (Copyright, catalog card distribution, and the service of books for the blind).

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Personal services required for the basic operations of the Library are financed from this appropriation.

1. Acquisition of Library materials.—The development of the collections of the Library is planned; materials are procured by purchase, gift, exchange, copyright deposit, transfer, or otherwise; and materials are selected for addition to the collections. The objectives for 1954 are: Greater selectivity and improved efficiency in the procurement of materials, with emphasis on the acquisition of noncurrent strategic materials and filling serious gaps in the collections; and the strengthening of exchange relations with institutions in important areas. The collections totaled 30,746,772 items as of June 30, 1952, and consisted of 9,578,701 books and pamphlets; 12,855,870 manuscript pieces and 8,312,201 maps, pieces of music, reels of microfilm, photographs, and the other miscellaneous items. A continued increase in receipts from various sources is anticipated in 1953 and 1954.

Total.....	3,882,320	4,515,000	4,515,000

Of the pieces received about 1½ million items are added to the collections annually.

2. Organization of the collections.—Library materials are cataloged, classified, marked, and arranged; Library of Congress catalogs and the National Union Catalogs are maintained; and binding operations controlled. The objectives for this activity in 1954 are: Improvement of the preliminary control of materials; and the cataloging of foreign language publications.

Selected performance data for 1952 and estimated for 1953 and 1954 are as follows:

Description	1952 actual	1953 estimate	1954 estimate
Volumes fully cataloged and added to the classified collection.....	144,584	145,000	145,000
Items otherwise organized for use (without full cataloging).....	24,570	25,000	25,000

NOTE.—These figures are for the Processing Department only and do not reflect cataloging, filing, binding, and related processing operations performed by other departments of the Library.

3. Reader and reference service.—Books and other library materials are provided within and without the Library and reference assistance rendered. The objectives of this activity for 1954 are: More adequate service to readers during the 52 hours of full service and the 26 hours of limited service; the expansion of the area and language specialization program in regions of sensitive importance and to strengthen basic departmental operations such as the shelving of incoming materials, cataloging of non-book materials (maps, manuscripts), the selection and preparation of materials for binding, and the interpretation of the collections through the preparation of bibliographies and checklists. The upward trend in workload is expected to continue in 1953 and 1954.

Books and pamphlets served.....	1,414,042	1,440,000	1,465,000
Other units of material served.....	698,807	750,000	800,000

Reference letters.....	34,689	37,000	40,000

4. Maintenance and protective services.—The two Library buildings and the collections and other properties contained therein are maintained, preserved, and protected. A staff of 200, including 90 part-time charwomen, preserves, cleans, and maintains the Library buildings, collections and grounds, operates telephone switchboard, elevators, check stands, motor vehicles, and the laundry; procures and maintains furniture, housekeeping materials, and miscellaneous equipment; assigns space; and operates the receiving and stock rooms. Constant alertness by the Guard Force staff of 79 is necessary to prevent fire and theft, for the maintenance of order and for regular inspections of all areas in both buildings, which contain one of the greatest accumulations of national treasures in the world.

5. Executive direction and general administrative services.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Copyright Office is responsible for recording and cataloging all copyright applications, assignments and renewals, supplying copyright information to the public, and for collecting and accounting for copyright fees. Title 17 U. S. C., sec. 210, provides that the Register of Copyrights shall print complete and indexed catalogs for each class of copyright entries. The amount requested for fiscal 1954 will enable the Register of Copyrights to publish the Catalog of Copyright Entries and a Bulletin of Copyright Decisions and make them available to the public within a reasonable period. The office is conducted as a business operation. The amount requested for personal services is approximately equal to the fees received for services rendered. In addition, the value of books and other library materials deposited in accordance with the Copyright Act and transferred to the Library of Congress are also to be credited to the copyright operation.

The objective for 1954 is to keep current with the workload at all times, and to render prompt and efficient service to the public. The program and performance under each of the activities described are predicated on an estimated 213,890 copyright registrations during 1954, an estimated 208,797 during 1953, and an actual 203,705 during 1952. The basis for the estimated increase between 1952 and 1954 is an anticipated increase of 5 percent in registrations.

1. Receiving and accounting for applications, etc.—All materials mailed or delivered to the Copyright Office are received, assembled, and routed, accounts maintained for all moneys received, records relating to the registration of copyrights filed, and materials deposited in accordance with the Copyright Act. Performance data for 1952 and estimates for 1953 and 1954 are as follows:

Registrations.....	203,705	208,797	213,890
Mail received and dispatched.....	480,912	492,934	504,957

2. Examining copyright applications.—All applications and deposits are examined before issuance of registration certificates or recording of documents to determine whether the provisions of the Copyright Act have been satisfied. Performance data for 1952 and estimates for 1953 and 1954 are as follows:

Items examined for registration.....	265,533	272,171	278,809
Registrations and recordation of documents.....	211,422	216,707	221,993

3. Indexing and cataloging all materials received.—The Register of Copyrights is required to print complete and indexed catalogs of all items registered. In the interest of over-all economy and the elimination of overlapping activities, the Copyright Office also prepares full catalog entries in accordance with Library of Congress cataloging rules on about 10-20 percent of the items registered. Performance data for 1952 and estimates for 1953 and 1954 are as follows:

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

To carry out the objectives of the Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946, research reports and digests are prepared and inquiries from Members and committees of Congress relating to legislative problems and programs are answered. The objectives for 1954 are: The readjustment of all activities to an anticipated increase in the number of inquiries and more adequate research coverage in areas of congressional concern.

1. Authoritative research and analysis.—The Legislative Reorganization Act of 1946 specifies 21 fields of specific congressional concern. During 1953 the following 12 fields, all carried forward from 1952, are to be covered: International economics, international relations, taxation and fiscal policy, American government and public administration, conservation and natural resources, social welfare, American law, labor economics, engineering and public works, transportation and communications, agriculture, and housing. It is proposed in 1954 to add two additional fields: Money and banking and industrial organization.

2. General research.—General research is performed and reports furnished, spot reference inquiries answered, graphs, charts and illustrations prepared, and translations made. Congressional inquiries numbered 52,460 in 1952, which was 16.2 percent over 1951. A continuation of increase is anticipated. Assuming an annual increase at the rate of 10 percent, the total for 1953 would be 57,706; and for 1954, 62,476. Sufficient staff is requested for 1954 to provide more adequate handling of the substantial increase in inquiries since 1950.

3. Preparation of digests, indexes, and abstracts.—The Digest of Public General Bills covered 11,000 bills during the Eighty-second Congress (4,121 in the second session). It is expected to cover as many during the Eighty-third Congress, second session. The card index to the Federal Statutes was maintained as an essential reference tool.

4. Reference files, bibliographic and reader services.—Reference files, containing clippings, pamphlets and documents, are maintained; researchers supplied with bibliographic and reference tools; selective and comprehensive bibliographies prepared for Members and committees of Congress; and reader services provided by the Congressional Reading Room. During 1952, 65,315 reference file items were processed, 10,884 bibliographic entries prepared, 24,244 published items acquired and processed, and 3,199 readers served. It is expected to maintain this level in 1953 and 1954.

5. Administration.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The work of the Card Division is that of a mail order house doing a business of some $900,000 a year. It maintains a stock of over 150,000,000 catalog cards representing some 2,000,000 titles, and fills orders from more than 8,000 regular subscribers in the United States and abroad. It also prepares and offers for sale certain publications. More than 97 percent of the personnel costs of this appropriation is chargeable to the cost of card and publication sales, and this cost plus 10 percent profit is returned to the Treasury. The remaining 3 percent represents a service to the Library of Congress. The objectives for 1954 are: The greater use of card reproduction by means other than printing to expedite the filling of orders for out-of-print cards; continued improvements in operations with resulting reductions in cost to card subscribers; increasing the scope and utility of the Library's Author and Subject catalogs in book form; and extending the usefulness and coverage of Serial Titles Newly Received.

Approximately 70 percent of the portion of this appropriation which is used for printing catalog cards and related publications is chargeable to the cost of card and publication sales, and this cost plus the 10 percent statutory profit is returned to the Treasury; the remaining 30 percent represents service to the Library of Congress. It is planned in 1954 to keep within the publication pattern of 1953 by offsetting anticipated increases in certain areas such as the Author Catalog by anticipated decreases in other areas; for example, an anticipated decrease in card production when the printing of cards for motion pictures reaches its anticipated normal level.

1. Supplying catalog cards for the Library of Congress.—The number of cards supplied to the Library of Congress in fiscal 1952 was 4,950,658; estimated for 1953, 5,000,000; and for 1954, 5,000,000.

2. Sale of cards to other libraries.—The number of cards sold in fiscal 1952 was 20,816,692; estimated for 1953, 23,000,000; and for 1954, 25,000,000.

3. Preparation and distribution of publications.—Continued emphasis will be placed on the improvement and wider distribution of the two library catalogs issued periodically in book form: The Author Catalog (formerly the Cumulative Catalog) and the Subject Catalog, the latter begun in 1950, and both widely accepted as important bibliographic tools. The requested increase is to permit necessary expansion of Serial Titles Newly Received, a publication prepared by the Library as part of its program of accession lists. It provides a central listing of serials received by American libraries, and its proposed expansion will result in active participation by approximately 100 libraries, including some indication of their serial holdings. The total service is of particular importance in meeting the needs of scholars, librarians, and research workers for information about newly published serials in their fields of interest.

4. Card printing for the Library of Congress.—The number of cards printed in fiscal 1952 for the Library of Congress was 4,950,658; estimated for 1953, 5,000,000; and for 1954, 5,000,000.

5. Card printing for other libraries.—The number of cards printed or otherwise reproduced in fiscal 1952 for sale to other libraries was 30,137,014; estimated for 1953, 32,994,524; and for 1954, 31,150,214. The estimated increase in the number of cards to be printed is based in large part on the estimated increase in the number of out-of-print titles to be reproduced by multilith, and the production of cards for motion pictures and film strips.

6. Printing and binding the Author Catalog.—The Author Catalog is a book catalog of the cards printed by the Library of Congress arranged by author. It is issued monthly and cumulated quarterly and annually. It is planned to issue a 5-year cumulation in fiscal 1953 in lieu of the annual issue for calendar 1952. In fiscal 1954, the issuance of an annual cumulation (for 1953) will be resumed. There were 733 paid subscriptions for monthly and quarterly issues in 1952. It is estimated in 1953, subscriptions for all issues will number about the same as those for all issues in 1951—886; and 890 in 1954.

The Library of Congress has, since 1948, published the Army Medical Library Catalog as a supplement to the Author Catalog. The 1948, 1949, and 1950 issues have been author arrangements, but the 1951 issue is published in two parts: Part One—Authors, and Part Two—Subjects. The Army Medical Library Catalog is sold as a separate item. Two hundred and fifty copies were sold in 1951; 208 copies had been sold in 1952 between publication in May and September 30; it is estimated that 250 will be sold in 1953, and 260 in 1954.

7. Printing and binding the Subject Catalog.—The Subject Catalog is a book catalog reproducing cards printed by the Library of Congress and arranged according to subject content of the publications represented. It is published quarterly and cumulated annually. There were 375 paid subscriptions for 1952; it is estimated that there will be 385 in 1953, and 390 in 1954.

8. Printing and binding of publications related to cataloging.—These publications are auxiliary to the cataloging activities of the Library of Congress and include the Classification Schedules, lists of Subject Headings, Rules for Descriptive Cataloging, Cataloging Service Bulletins, and similar publications. Because of the need to reprint a large number of classification schedules, it is anticipated that 1953 expenditures will equal those of 1952; a slight reduction in the publication program is anticipated for 1954, as compared with 1952.

General Increase of the Library of Congress—

General increase of the Library: For [purchase] expenses (except personal services) necessary for acquisition of books, [miscellaneous] periodicals and newspapers, [photocopying supplies and photocopying labor,] and all other material for the increase of the Library, [including payment in advance for subscription books and society publications, and for freight and expressage, postage, commissions, and traveling expenses not to exceed $25,000, including expenses of attendance at meetings when incurred on the written authority and direction of the Librarian in the interest of collections, and all other expenses incidental to the acquisition of material for the increase of the Library by purchase, gift, bequest, or exchange, $270,000] $335,000, to continue available during the next succeeding fiscal year. (2 U. S. C. 131, 132, 132a; Legislative Branch Appropriation Act, 1953.)

Purchase of books and other library materials—1952, $266,008; 1953, $276,860; 1954, $335,000.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This appropriation constitutes the only means of acquiring regular domestic trade publications (except for copyright deposits) and many foreign trade publications, both current and noncurrent, from approximately 100 countries or areas. The publications acquired by purchase constitute a most important part of the Library's acquisitions although they represent only a small portion of the material received annually.

The increase in fiscal 1954 is necessary in large part to repair to some extent the damage done to the Library's noncurrent book acquisitions program during the past 3 years through the necessity to expend funds to meet the increased costs of current books, subscriptions, and incidental expenses. The increase requested will also provide for slight increases in the acquisition of current books and subscriptions; permit the continuance of a portion of the Library's exchange program which was financed until recently by funds transferred from the Department of State; and enable the Library to acquire additional non-current materials (including photoreproductions) to meet its reference responsibilities to the Congress, the executive agencies of the Federal Government, and the general public.

Increase of the Law Library, Library of Congress—

Increase of the law library: For [the purchase] expenses (except personal services) necessary for acquisition of books [and for], legal periodicals [for], and all other material for the increase of the law library, [including payment in advance for legal periodicals and for legal society publications, and for freight and expressage, postage, commissions, traveling expenses not to exceed $2,500, including expenses of attendance at meetings when incurred on the written authority and direction of the Librarian in the interest of collections, and all other expenses incidental to the acquisition of material for the increase of the law library, $85,500] $94,000, to continue available during the next succeeding fiscal year. Purchase of books and other library materials—1952, $95,178; 1953, $103,891; 1954, $94,000.

This appropriation constitutes the only means of acquiring law books published in the regular domestic trade (except for copyright deposits) and many foreign law books published in countries all over the world. The legal publications acquired by purchase constitute a most important part of the Law Library's acquisitions, although a substantial part of the annual receipts is received by means other than purchase.

The increase in fiscal 1954 is necessary to meet an increase in the prices of legal publications of 10 to 20 percent over the prices of 1951. Such increase in the appropriation is essential to enable the Law Library to acquire the items for which it must continue to subscribe, current material from all jurisdictions with particular emphasis on common law countries and the sensitive areas abroad, and older publications to fill gaps in the collections in order to obtain the comprehensive and complete coverage that the very nature of law requires. Maintenance of the 1951-52 level of acquisition by means of the requested increase in appropriation would permit the Law Library, as the only general legal research library of the Government, to continue to meet the reference and other service demands of the Congress, the executive and judicial branches of the Government, and the general public.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Library of Congress program for providing books for the blind of the United States, its Territories and insular possessions is authorized by the act of March 3, 1931 (2 U. S. C. 135a), as amended. The most recent amendment, by removing the word "adult" from the language of the authorization act, extended the program to provide a reader service for blind children. The moneys authorized to be appropriated annually by this act are used for providing books published either in raised characters, on sound-reproduction recordings, or in any other form. Funds are also expended for the purchase of sound-reproduction recordings and for the purchase, maintenance, and replacement of reproducers for such sound-reproduction recordings. The books are circulated through the facilities of 28 regional distributing libraries and the talking book machines are distributed through 55 State lending agencies, with preference given to blind veterans.

The objectives for 1954 are: Provision for reproductions of books in Braille and Moon type commensurate with the declining reader demand and within the limitation of available funds to provide the maximum satisfaction to increased reader demand for talking books including some titles for children, preparation of new specifications for talking book reproducers and provision for a slight net increase in the number of talking book reproducers beyond the replacement requirement of 5,000 per year, preparation of new specifications for the printing of books in Braille type, sponsoring a national conference for volunteer groups directed to the coordination, simplification, and better understanding of the procedures for transcribing books in single copies into Braille type and special recording of text books on plastic disks, and improvement of liaison between the Library of Congress and agencies in the field.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Office of Superintendent of Documents is a division of the Government Printing Office which operates under separate appropriations. The work programs are entirely of a service nature and are of such type that there is no control over the volume of work which the Superintendent of Documents is required by law to perform.

1. Sales distribution.—The Superintendent of Documents is authorized by law to sell copies of Government publications purchased from the Public Printer. Acquisition costs are paid from sales receipts, so no appropriation is required for printing sales copies. By provision of law, the sale price is set at the cost of manufacture plus 50 percent. At the end of each fiscal year, excess receipts not required for purchasing additional publications are turned in to the Treasury Department as miscellaneous receipts. For the fiscal year 1952 earned revenue from this source was $1,762,752. It is estimated that miscellaneous receipts earned will be $2,000,000 for 1953 and $2,200,000 for 1954. The number of sales orders has been steadily increasing, and in the last 10 years the volume of orders has more than doubled and the dollar value of publications sold has more than tripled. The current public interest in the Government's publishing program points to a continuing increase in the volume of orders.

2. Distribution for other agencies and Members of Congress.—The Superintendent of Documents under provisions of law is required to prepare mailing lists, including the mailing list for the Congressional Record, and to perform mailing operations upon the request of any Government agency and without reimbursement from those agencies. Another legal obligation is to handle the mailing of Farmers' Bulletins, Soil Surveys, and other publications which are allocated to Members of Congress on a quota basis.

3. Depository library distribution.—The Superintendent of Documents is required by law to supply one copy of every Government publication, upon request, to more than 540 libraries which are designated depositories for Government publications.

4. Cataloging and indexing.—The law provides that the Superintendent of Documents shall prepare and distribute catalogs and indexes of all publications issued by the Federal Government. The Monthly Catalog of U. S. Government Publications and the Numerical List and Schedule of Volumes are the two principal publications which are issued to discharge legal requirements.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The National Security Council advises the President with respect to the integration of domestic, foreign, and military policies relating to the national security. The Central Intelligence Agency is under the direction of the Council. The Council includes the President, the Vice President, the Secretary of State, the Secretary of Defense, the Director for Mutual Security, and the Chairman of the National Security Resources Board. In addition the secretaries and under secretaries of other executive departments and of the military departments, the Chairman of the Munitions Board, and the Chairman of the Research and Development Board may serve as members when appointed by the President and confirmed by the Senate. Other high officials attend meetings or participate in Council actions as directed by the President. The Secretary of the Treasury and the Director of Defense Mobilization participate in all Council actions, while the Chairman, Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the Director of Central Intelligence regularly attend Council meetings.

The Council staff work is performed under the direction of a civilian executive secretary by permanent Council employees and officials detailed from the participating departments and agencies. The principal staff unit of the Council is the senior staff composed of eight officials designated by the President based on nomination respectively of the Secretaries of State, Defense, and Treasury, the Director of Defense Mobilization, the Director for Mutual Security, the Chairman of the National Security Resources Board, the Joint Chiefs of Staff, and the Director of Central Intelligence. During fiscal year 1952 a reporting unit was established upon the direction of the President to keep currently informed on the status of all national security programs and to make status reports as required by the President or the Council.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Chairman of the National Security Resources Board advises the President concerning the Nation's security resources potential in the event of war including such policies and programs as are essential to the maintenance of a strong security resource position. An increased amount is provided for these functions in 1954.

The agencies responsible for defense mobilization programs will increasingly emphasize forward mobilization planning during 1954. While some reorganizations in this area may prove desirable, the functions which are provided for in this appropriation must be carried on at an adequate level. Funds appropriated to the Board for the current fiscal year are available only through April 30, 1953, and a supplemental appropriation of $125,000 is anticipated to provide funds for the last 2 months of the fiscal year.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The mutual security program embodies military, economic, and technical assistance to allied countries of the free world. The fiscal year 1953 program represents the second year of unified activity under the Mutual Security Act of 1951, as amended. The United States contribution to this program takes six principal forms: (a) Military end-items produced in the United States; (b) training of foreign military personnel to assure effective use of the matériel furnished; (c) military end-items procured in Europe under the offshore procurement program; (d) defense support in the form of imports to sustain the military buildup; (e) economic and technical assistance in underdeveloped areas; (f) contributions to United Nations and other international agencies for mutual security programs of a multilateral nature.

1. Europe (title I)—(a) Military assistance.—Matériel and technical training are provided to friendly countries to assist them in raising and strengthening their military forces. The greatest portion of this aid takes the form of military end-items such as planes, ships, guns, and tanks. In order to assure proper utilization and maintenance of United States equipment in the program, training is also furnished to selected individuals in the armed forces of the recipient countries. That assistance which is given to member countries of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization is directly related to the force goals agreed upon by NATO.

Funds available under title I military assistance also are utilized to make contributions to international organizations, both military and civilian. Payments represent the United States share of operating costs of NATO and a small payment for participation in the International Materials Conference.

(b) Control act expenses.—This program was established by the Mutual Defense Assistance Control Act to deter exports of strategic materials and equipment to countries threatening world peace. Staff in the Office of the Director for Mutual Security engaged in this activity coordinate the related economic defense efforts of United States agencies.

(c) Escapees.—Supplementary care and maintenance is provided for certain refugees from behind the iron curtain and assistance is rendered for their permanent resettlement.

(d) Administration.—The programs described herein are administered (within policy guide lines established by the Director for Mutual Security) by the following agencies: Department of Defense, Department of State, and Mutual Security Agency. Facilities and personnel of various other agencies are also utilized in carrying out various technical assistance programs, such as agriculture, mining, and other specialized fields. Included for administration in fiscal year 1953 are the funds transferred to the Mutual Security appropriations by the Federal Bureau of Investigation for security investigations to be carried out by the Civil Service Commission.

(e) Economic and technical assistance—(1) Country aid.—The necessity for accelerated rearmament of the West has forced the countries of Western Europe to undertake larger defense programs than their recuperating economies yet can sustain without assistance. Defense expenditures of the 12 European NATO countries and Germany (in the case of the latter, occupation costs) have increased from the equivalent of $6 billion in fiscal year 1950 to $7.8 billion in 1951, $11.3 billion in 1952, and an estimated $13 billion in 1953.

The United States economic aid to the NATO countries is now allocated on the basis of defense commitments undertaken by these countries. In collaboration with the Department of Defense, military production programs are being developed for each country, integrating national procurement schedules with NATO requirements and United States offshore procurement. In addition, a small amount of aid is required for economic purposes for non-NATO European countries.

(2) Technical assistance.—The principal objective of this program is to increase European industrial and agricultural productivity. The technical assistance program is one means used to promote and stimulate free and competitive trade practices, to encourage the development and strengthening of free labor union movements, and to further the development of European dependent overseas territories. This program will continue on the basis of specific requests for the services of United States technicians, for study and training of Europeans in the United States, and for scientific and technical information. Local currency costs of projects, borne by participating countries, will considerably exceed dollar costs on the basis of past experience.

(3) Basic materials development.—Funds for this program are used in European countries, their dependent overseas territories, and other countries which have important sources of raw materials. The funds are employed for projects designed to increase the production and flow of basic materials in which deficiencies or potential deficiencies in supply exist among nations receiving United States assistance.

The program of materials purchases or advances of funds repayable in materials to the United States is being administered in fiscal year 1953 by the Defense Materials Procurement Agency. Local currency from the United States portion (10 percent) of the counterpart generated from economic assistance to European countries will be made available for projects administered both by the Mutual Security Agency and the Defense Materials Procurement Agency.

(f) Assistance to Spain.—Such economic, technical, and military assistance as may be approved by the President will be provided.

2. Near East and Africa (title II)—(a) Military assistance.—The military assistance programs for Greece and Turkey are to be continued to maximize the military potential of these countries and to give particular attention to new requirements arising from their participation in NATO plans. Military assistance also is authorized to be provided other Middle East countries.

(b) Economic and technical assistance—(1) Bilateral technical cooperation.—This program is designed to assist the governments in the underdeveloped areas of the world (American Republics and South Asia, as well as the Near East and Africa) in their efforts to eliminate or reduce the handicaps to economic development. Programs are aimed at achieving balanced economic growth with an emphasis upon the early increase in food supply.

(2) Contributions to United Nations Relief and Works Agency for Palestine Refugees.—The Palestine Refugee Agency continues relief operations and finds homes and jobs for refugees. Since May 1950, it has provided subsistence rations for over 850,000 refugees, prevented serious outbreaks of epidemic diseases, provided employment for many thousands of refugees on useful public-works projects, supported a primary school program for refugee children, and provided technical training.

(3) Relief and resettlement of refugees entering Israel.—Direct relief is being provided in the form of consumer goods and for purchasing equipment for the implementation of long-term economic development projects in such fields as agriculture, industry, housing, transportation, power development, and public health.

3. Asia and Pacific (title III)—(a) Military assistance.—Military assistance in the area of eastern and southeastern Asia will continue to provide matériel and training designed to aid in the preservation of national independence and maintenance of security in the countries near the Communist-controlled mainland of China.

(b) Economic and technical assistance—(1) Special economic and technical assistance.—Funds are provided to countries in the Far East in varying proportions for (i) technical assistance mainly in the fields of agriculture, public health, transportation, education, public administration, and emergency war relief and rehabilitation; and (ii) economic assistance for development and to support military assistance programs.

(2) Bilateral technical cooperation.—Programs for bilateral technical cooperation in South Asia are identical to those described in title II.

(3) Basic materials development.—These funds are used in Far East countries for the same purpose as described in title I.

(4) Exchange of student program.—Funds are provided to defray the expenses of selected citizens of China and Korea to study or teach in accredited colleges, universities, and other educational institutions in the United States. In fiscal year 1953, grants will be made to approximately 523 students and 108 professors, teachers, and research specialists.

(5) Contributions to United Nations Korean Reconstruction Agency.—This Agency was established to undertake a comprehensive posthostilities program to meet the problems of relief and rehabilitation in Korea. For this purpose, the United Nations has approved a program of $250 million toward which the United States has pledged $162.5 million. In view of the continued uncertainty about the cessation of hostilities, however, Congress has appropriated only $51,452,642. The balance has been authorized for appropriation and for transfer from Army supplies should the military situation permit the Agency to assume greater responsibilities in fiscal year 1953.

4. American Republics (title IV)—(a) Military assistance.—The military assistance program for South American countries provides for the continued maintenance of equipment on hand and for limited additional equipment to eliminate matériel deficiencies of forces to be employed under a hemispheric defense plan developed multilaterally by the Inter-American Defense Board. In addition, for a number of the countries whose economic condition makes it possible, reimbursable military assistance will continue under the Mutual Defense Assistance Act of 1949.

(b) Economic and technical assistance—Bilateral technical cooperation.—Programs for bilateral technical cooperation are identical to those described in title II.

5. Interregional activities (title V)—(a) Movement of migrants.—These funds are for the United States contribution to the Provisional Intergovernmental Committee for the Movement of Migrants from Europe, an international organization established in December 1951 to facilitate the movement of surplus populations from countries in Western Europe to countries affording resettlement opportunities overseas. The Committee's plan of operations currently calls for the movement of approximately 100,000 European migrants in calendar year 1952 and 120,000 migrants in calendar year 1953.

(b) Ocean freight voluntary relief packages.—Voluntary nonprofit relief agencies continue to receive reimbursement of ocean freight charges on supplies shipped to countries which have concluded relief agreements. Ocean transportation charges are also paid on relief packages sent by parcel post from individuals in the United States.

(c) Multilateral technical cooperation.—The United Nations Expanded Program of Technical Assistance and the Technical Cooperation Program of the Organization of American States assists governments of underdeveloped countries in economic development programs. The aid is largely in the form of demonstration and pilot projects in agriculture, health, education, public administration, social welfare, etc., to which the recipient governments make substantial contributions, and the provision of fellowship study and training for their nationals.

(d) Contributions to United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund.—These funds are authorized for contributions to the United Nations International Children's Emergency Fund through December 31, 1953. Emphasis has shifted from an emergency feeding and relief program to long-range maternal and child-health and welfare programs in the underdeveloped countries of Asia, Africa, and Latin America.

BUSINESS-TYPE STATEMENTS

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Under section 304 (b) of the Defense Production Act of 1950, designated agencies are authorized, with Presidential approval, to incur obligations of $2.1 billion largely for the purpose of making loans and procuring critical materials in furtherance of the defense effort. The obligations are financed by borrowings from the Treasury. The 1951 amendments to the act permit commitments in excess of $2.1 billion so long as ultimate costs do not exceed this amount. Programs undertaken must be certified as essential to the national defense by either the Defense Production Administrator, the Secretary of Agriculture, or the Administrator of the Reconstruction Finance Corporation.

As of September 15, 1952, certifications of borrowing authority were as follows:

Defense Materials Procurement Agency.....	$698,571,000
Reconstruction Finance Corporation.....	454,000,000
Department of Agriculture.....	61,000,000
Department of the Interior.....	16,000,000
Export-Import Bank.....	65,000,000
Total.....	1,294,571,000

Of the remaining $805,429,000 of the $2.1 billion authorized, $570,429,000 is expected to be certified by June 30, 1953, and $235 million by June 30, 1954.

Defense Materials Procurement Agency.—Borrowing authority in the amount of $698,571,000 had been certified as of September 15, 1952, to finance programs for the expansion of the productive capacity and supply of defense materials covering mining, processing, production, procurement, and research development programs. The amount certified includes $100,000,000 for working capital and $598,571,000 for the probable ultimate net cost as defined in section 304 (b) of the Defense Production Act of 1950, as amended, of which $39,000,000 is for the machine tool pool order and equipment installation programs and $559,571,000 for mineral and metal programs.

The exclusive rubber procurement program carried out by this Agency was terminated June 30, 1952, and the program will be liquidated in fiscal year 1953.

In addition to the above, the Agency certifies direct loans to be made by the Reconstruction Finance Corporation or Export-Import Bank and participates in determinations with respect to the issuances of accelerated tax amortization certificates; and has been delegated the responsibility for the basic materials development program which had been previously carried on by the Economic Cooperation Administration and its successor, Mutual Security Agency, in certain countries in Europe, the Near East, and Africa.

Department of Agriculture.—The purchase and resale of agricultural commodities, except forest products, are carried out by the Commodity Credit Corporation, which is reimbursed for net costs involved. The Production and Marketing Administration has been delegated the responsibility for certifying loans to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for increasing plant capacity to process or store agricultural commodities, except forest products. An allocation of $4,000,000 was made to the Reconstruction Finance Corporation for this purpose.

During the fiscal year 1952, programs to increase supplies of castor beans and kenaf fiber have been continued and expanded and new programs initiated to assure supplies of long staple cotton and cottonseed. During fiscal year 1953, it is anticipated that these programs will be continued.

Net realized losses on purchase and resale operations during fiscal year 1952 were $1,137,679 and are estimated at $10,387,554 during the fiscal year 1953.

Department of the Interior.—Certifications have been limited to the exploration and development of strategic and critical minerals and metals for which an allocation of $16 million has been made to the Defense Minerals Exploration Administration.

Thus far, 357 exploration projects had been approved in which the Government's share of expenditures totals $10,750,060 against a total cost of $18,072,807. Additional projects to be financed by the balance of the $16,000,000 already allocated are expected to number 200 with a total valuation of $4,000,000.

Reconstruction Finance Corporation.—Under the authority provided by section 304 of the Defense Production Act, a total of $454,000,000 has been allocated to the Corporation. Of this amount, $411,000,000 has been allocated for loans of the types provided for by section 302 of the Defense Production Act. Lending activity during fiscal years 1951, 1952, and 1953 are summarized below:

	1951 actual		1952 actual		1953 estimate
	Number	Amount (in millions)	Number	Amount (in millions)	Number	Amount (in millions)

Commitments.....	17	47	71	129	85	205
Loans.....	17	7	101	59	201	149

On June 30, 1952, a commitment of $40.8 million was made against the allocation of $43 million for purchase of refined tin.

Export-Import Bank of Washington.—Credits subject to the provisions of section 302 of the Defense Production Act of 1950, as amended, for the production abroad of essential materials are authorized only upon receipt by the Export-Import Bank of a certificate of essentiality from the relevant defense agency. This permits the financing of essential projects with which are associated risks precluding assistance by the Bank under the provisions of its own act. Allocations of borrowing authority totaling $65 million for this purpose have been approved by the Defense Production Administration. Under this authority, credits totaling $539,760 were authorized during fiscal year 1952 for the production in Latin America of sisal and zinc for the stockpile. It is anticipated that the remaining $64,460,240 will be obligated in fiscal year 1953, principally for the production of copper, cobalt, and manganese ore.

Administrative expenses.—Beginning with fiscal year 1953, the administrative expenses which are incident to carrying out the defense expansion programs described above are being financed from the borrowing authority. Allocations of borrowing authority for these expenses are made as new programs are certified and placed into operation. The funds are controlled through apportionment of specific amounts for such expenses.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Section 111 (b) of Public Law 472, Eightieth Congress, as amended, authorizes the Director for Mutual Security to issue industrial investment (including forward contracting) and informational media guarantees up to $200,000,000 to stimulate the flow of private capital into projects abroad which further the purposes of that law. This authority was supplemented by section 520 of the Mutual Security Act of 1951 (Public Law 165), which makes guarantee funds available for investment in any country eligible to receive assistance under the Mutual Security Act. In addition to the $200,000,000 borrowing authority, net fees collected increase funds available for obligation. By the end of fiscal year 1953, it is expected that unused guarantee authority will be $124,519,146.

Industrial investment and forward contracting guarantees.—By the end of fiscal 1952 a total of $37,978,917 had been issued, of which $33,715,462 were outstanding. Of the amount outstanding, $32,188,062 were against the risks of inconvertibility of local currency receipts from investments; $1,277,400 were against the risk of loss by expropriation and confiscation; and one guaranty for $250,000 covered forward contracting for the furnishing of capital-goods items and related services.

From the inception of the guarantee program until July 1, 1952, no disbursements had been made under any of these guarantees and a total of $622,619 in fees had been collected.

The increase in guarantees expected to result from the Mutual Security Act of 1951 (Public Law 165, sec. 520) which extended the use of guarantee funds for investment in any area in which assistance is authorized under the act, has not yet been fully realized because of difficulties encountered in instituting this program in new areas.

Informational media guarantees.—Guarantees up to $10,000,000 may be issued in any fiscal year against the nontransferability of funds in connection with American investments in enterprises producing or distributing informational media. As of July 1, 1952, a total of $13,073,817 informational media guarantees had been issued, of which $3,816,191 were outstanding. Fees totaling $199,684 had been collected and disbursements of $6,611,602 had been made.

The Mutual Security Act of 1952 (Public Law 400, sec. 536) stated that the authority to make informational media guarantees should be fully continued and be exercised after June 30, 1952, by any department or agency of the Government designated by the President. Executive Order 10368 dated June 30, 1952, so designated the Department of State. The Director for Mutual Security will make available to State in fiscal year 1953 the sum of $13,816,191, $3,816,191 of which represents the outstanding commitments as of June 30, 1952, and $10,000,000 the maximum new guarantees that may be issued in any one fiscal year under the present law.

THE INSTITUTE OF INTER-AMERICAN AFFAIRS

[Submitted under the Government Corporation Control Act]

NOTE.—The estimate of appropriation and expenses for 1954 is included in the item for "Mutual security" under proposed legislation.

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION

The objectives of the Institute of Inter-American Affairs are to further the general welfare of the American Republics by carrying out cooperative technical assistance programs. In addition to funds provided by the United States through the Institute, the participating countries contribute to the cooperative programs.

The major activities of the Corporation are conducted in accordance with the terms of agreements entered into with the governments of the other American Republics. These agreements provide for program operation by a cooperative service, which is a part of the appropriate ministry (e. g., health, agriculture, education) of the host government and is headed by the chief of the Institute's field party. Both the cooperating republic and the Institute contribute funds, materials, services, and facilities.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAMS AND FINANCIAL REVIEW

Net expenses in 1952 were about $17.9 million and are estimated at $22.3 million for 1953. The portion of the increase which is not attributable to continuation of activities at their attained going rates lies mainly in the technical fields of public administration and government services where additional country programs are being initiated.

The Institute has authority to operate until 1955 (act of Sept. 3, 1949, Public Law 283), and the funds for its 1952 and 1953 programs are derived from the mutual security appropriation. An indication of the Institute's 1954 program plans will be submitted at a later date.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Commission manufactures fissionable materials and atomic weapons; conducts research and development aimed at improved weapons, more efficient production of fissionable materials, generation of useful power from atomic energy, and protection of military and civilian personnel against hazards arising from atomic energy operations; and disseminates unclassified technical information to encourage scientific and industrial progress.

The program is administered in the field through 10 major offices; most of the Commission's activities are carried on in Government-owned facilities by industrial concerns and educational institutions, operating under contracts. Coordination with the armed services is achieved through the military liaison committee of the Department of Defense.

Obligations for operating expenses in 1954 total $1,157,262,000 of which $999,173,000 represents 1954 operating costs. The remaining $158,089,000 is for other obligational authority required for increases in inventories, working capital, and unliquidated obligations which are related to work to be performed subsequent to 1954, and for reimbursable costs. Operating costs in 1954 are expected to be 22 percent greater than in 1953 and 67 percent greater than actual costs in 1952. The upward trend reflects increased procurement of raw materials, the start-up of new production facilities for fissionable materials and weapons, and some expansion in research and development.

1. Source and fissionable materials.—Uranium ores and concentrates are processed into feed materials, from which plutonium is synthesized in the reactors now operating or under construction at Hanford, Wash., and Savannah River, S. C., or from which the fissionable isotope uranium 235 is extracted in existing and projected plants at Oak Ridge, Tenn., Paducah, Ky., and Portsmouth, Ohio. New foreign sources of uranium will contribute substantial tonnages in 1954, and production from domestic sources will continue to expand. New facilities for producing feed and fissionable materials will provide sharply increased output at lower unit processing costs. Emphasis will continue on development of new equipment and processes to increase yields and improve the quality of products.

2. Weapons.—This program encompasses the production of weapons; the development, design, and testing of new weapon types; and the storage, maintenance, and custody of stockpiled weapons. The number of technical personnel employed at the principal weapon development centers, the Los Alamos Scientific Laboratory and the Sandia Laboratory in New Mexico, will continue to increase. New production installations and expanded facilities at existing installations will be in operation, and weapon tests are planned to be conducted, as developments may warrant, at the test sites in Nevada and at Eniwetok.

3. Reactor development.—New reactor designs are being developed to produce fissionable materials at lower unit cost, to propel naval vessels and military aircraft, and to generate electric power. Two land-based prototype reactors for propulsion of a submarine are under construction, and development of aircraft reactors will continue during 1954. An experimental reactor is being operated to explore the practicability of "breeding," that is, producing more fissionable material in a reactor than is consumed. A reactor to test materials began operation in 1952. Greater emphasis is being placed on developing reactors for generation of electric power. Several groups of industrial concerns are also engaged, at their own expense, in the study of reactors which could be built and operated by private industry for this purpose, and additional companies are planning to participate in this work.

Work on specific reactor designs constitutes about 80 percent of the scientific and technical effort in reactor development; the remainder covers work, applicable to many reactor designs, on the development of materials, components, and systems for heat transfer, shielding, and chemical processing; operation of the experimental facilities at Idaho; and conduct of a school of reactor technology for scientific and engineering personnel in both Government and industry.

4. Physical research.—This activity provides for studies and experimental investigations in physics, chemistry, and metallurgy required by the Commission to reach its objectives. The Commission's activities employ unusual materials for which the nuclear, as well as the physical and chemical, properties need to be determined accurately. These materials are used at temperatures and radiation densities which are outside the range of previous industrial experience.

Approximately two-thirds of the cost of physical research is incurred for work carried on in Commission laboratories, and one-third is for research contracted to some 100 universities and other independent institutions. Minor amounts are provided for isotope distribution and the operation of a computing facility.

5. Biology and medicine.—The Commission's primary concern in this activity is to evaluate the extent of radiation and other atomic energy hazards; to prescribe adequate protective measures against radiation in atomic energy operations; and to provide related information to other Government agencies responsible for civilian and military defense. Research is conducted on such problems as the radiation and toxic effects of materials used and produced; the effects of ionizing radiation on living organisms; and flash burns and other phenomena of nuclear explosions. Roughly two-thirds of the research is carried out at a dozen Commission laboratories, and the remainder is supported at approximately 160 universities, colleges, and hospitals. The development by industry of instruments for detecting and monitoring radiation is actively encouraged.

Radiation sources are used in Commission hospital research facilities for the study and treatment of cancer, and for this purpose radioisotopes are furnished to other qualified users at a small fraction of their cost. The use of radioactive materials in other medical, biological, and agricultural research is also stimulated.

6. Community operations.—The Commission operates the towns of Los Alamos, N. Mex., Oak Ridge, Tenn., and Richland, Wash., which are expected to have a total population of 77,500 in 1954, a 16 percent increase over 1952, and provides limited services at other locations. In 1954 the net cost of these operations is slightly less than in 1953 and 1952.

7. Program direction and administration.—General management, executive direction, technical supervision of program operations, the negotiation and administration of contracts, and other related activities performed by Commission personnel will require an increase in the number of employees in 1954, as the scope of the total program continues to expand. The costs incurred for these functions will represent 4.1 percent of total operating costs, compared with 5.1 percent in 1952.

8. Security investigations.—The Atomic Energy Act of 1946, as amended, requires background investigations of those persons proposed for access to "restricted data" of the atomic energy program. In prior years the funds for security investigations were provided in the regular appropriations to the Federal Bureau of Investigation. However, Public Law 298, 82d Congress, provides for a division of investigative caseload between the United States Civil Service Commission and the Federal Bureau of Investigation and requires that the funds for background investigations of personnel be provided in appropriations to the AEC. The total number of cases to be referred to the two investigative agencies is estimated at 101,500 for 1954 compared with 97,500 for 1953.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Although obligations in 1954 decrease sharply from 1953, expenditures for plant and equipment in 1954 will exceed those in 1953. This growth in expenditures will result largely from continued construction work on the new facilities for the production of uranium 235, plutonium, and weapons, for which $2,804,200,000 was appropriated in July 1952 for the major portion of a plant expansion program. Included in these facilities are large additions to plutonium capacity at Hanford, Wash., and to uranium 235 capacity at Oak Ridge, Tenn., Paducah, Ky., and the new site at Portsmouth, Ohio. Work will continue also on the construction of plutonium facilities at Savannah River, S. C., authorized in 1951, for which $320,000,000 is required in 1954 in addition to $1,180,000,000 previously appropriated.

In addition, $311,000,000 will be obligated for projects for the expansion of production facilities for which funds were appropriated in the Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1953. The balance of $209,371,000 is for other construction projects and equipment. Total obligational requirements for plant and equipment are offset in part by $404,000,000 previously appropriated which will be applied against 1954 needs. The projects other than Savannah River for which funds will be obligated include facilities for fissionable materials production, weapons production and development, and reactor development; experimental reactors for the propulsion of naval vessels or the production of power and plutonium; and plant improvements needed to realize potential gains in efficiency throughout the Commission's many large production plants and research laboratories. A total of $34,916,000 is required for equipment not included in construction, including laboratory equipment, process equipment, and shop tools.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

As the central personnel agency of the Government, the Civil Service Commission holds competitive examinations, provides qualified persons to fill vacancies in the competitive service, and determines the character and suitability of applicants for employment. It also administers the Classification Act of 1949 and the civil service retirement system under the act of 1920, as amended.

1. Examining, placement, and veterans' preference.—Most appointments in the competitive Civil Service will be made under the open competitive merit system through examinations to be held by the offices of the Commission and its Boards of Examiners. Veterans are aided in securing the benefits to which they are entitled under law. The increase is to bring more appointments under the competitive examining procedure.

OBLIGATIONS BY ACTIVITIES

For paying the normal cost of the United States share to the retirement fund—1952, $140,137,000; 1953, $183,268,000; 1954, $176,139,000.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Government's normal contribution for 1954 is based on an estimated average employment during 1954 of 1,700,000 employees covered by the act, at the rate of 2.78 percent on an average salary of $3,805.

For fiscal year 1954, a separate appropriation is being requested to cover the interest on the unfunded accrued liability of the United States to the fund. In previous years the interest has been included with the Government's normal cost in a single appropriation.

OBLIGATIONS BY OBJECTS

11 Grants, subsidies, and contributions—1952, $140,137,000; 1953, $183,268,000; 1954, $176,139,000.

ANALYSIS OF EXPENDITURES

Obligations incurred during the year (total expenditures out of current authorizations)—1952, $310,000,000; 1953, $321,450,000; 1954, $176,139,000.

Payment to Civil Service Retirement and Disability Fund (Interest), Civil Service Commission—

(Indefinite appropriation, general account)

Payment to the civil-service retirement and disability fund (interest): For payment to the "civil-service retirement and disability fund," as a part of the liability of the United States, such amount as shall be determined by the Secretary of the Treasury to be equivalent to interest for the next preceding fiscal year (at the highest current annual rate received on the greater portion of the investments of the fund) on the amount of the unfunded accrued liability of the United States to the fund as of July 1, 1952, as determined by the Civil Service Commission.

Estimate 1954, *$192,015,000

* Estimate is for activities previously carried under "Payment to civil service retirement and disability fund (normal cost), Civil Service Commission." The amounts obligated in 1952 and 1953 are shown in the schedule as comparative transfers.

OBLIGATIONS BY ACTIVITIES

For paying the interest on the unfunded liability under the retirement fund—1952, $169,863,000; 1953, $138,182,000; 1954, $192,015,000.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Provision is made for the payment of 4 percent interest for the fiscal year 1953 on the Government's accrued liability to the fund. The liability as of July 1, 1952, was $4,800,366,000.

The apparent increase reflected in the above schedule for fiscal year 1954 results from the fact that the amounts appropriated for "Payment to civil service retirement and disability fund" for 1952 and 1953 were insufficient to provide for both the Government's normal cost and the total interest on the accrued liability for those years. The amounts shown in the above schedule as comparative transfers are the differences between the normal cost and the total amounts appropriated for 1952 and 1953 and represent the amounts allocable to interest from those appropriations.

OBLIGATIONS BY OBJECTS

11 Grants, subsidies, and contributions—1952, $169,863,000; 1953, $138,182,000; 1954, $192,015,000.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The 1953 appropriation provides funds for these activities through April 30, 1953, when the existing stabilization authority expires. The Budget assumes extension of this authority and additional requirements for 1953 are included under a supplemental proposed for later transmission at the end of this chapter. The 1954 requirements are included in a supplemental appropriation under proposed legislation carried in the chapter "Funds appropriated to the President."

1. Office of the Economic Stabilization Administrator.—This office develops general economic stabilization policies for the guidance of the constituent agencies, and reviews, coordinates, and approves the programs developed to carry such policies into effect.

2. Office of Price Stabilization.—In 1953 price-control measures will continue to be directed to those areas of the economy where inflationary pressures are greatest and controls will continue to be relaxed where such action will not affect the general level of prices. The agency has inaugurated the posting of ceiling prices in retail establishments wherever practicable.

3. Office of Rent Stabilization.—Rent ceilings are established and enforced. The Defense Production Act of 1950, as amended, terminated rent controls on September 30, 1952, in all but certified critical defense housing areas unless communities under control as of September 30 took affirmative action requesting extension. Action continuing controls was taken in communities covering about 70 percent of rental units formerly under control. Major workload items for the 10 months, July 1952 through April 1953, as compared with all of fiscal year 1952, are as follows:

WORKLOAD

Type of action	1952 actual	1953 estimate	1954 estimate
First rents.....	73,802	61,000	-----
Tenants' complaints.....	249,097	174,000	-----
Compliance actions.....	146,959	109,000	-----
Landlords' petitions.....	2,082,243	1,208,000	-----
Eviction cases.....	429,853	284,000	-----
Settlements for repayment to tenants.....	$4,125,135	$3,020,000	-----
Payments to U. S. Treasury.....	$667,028	$453,000	-----

4, 5, 6, and 7. Wage Stabilization Board, Salary Stabilization Board, Railroad and Airline Wage Board, and National Enforcement Commission.—These organizations establish and enforce wage and salary controls. In July 1952 the National Enforcement Commission was created by the Administrator to serve in a quasi-judicial capacity in determining to what extent sanctions should be imposed upon employers for violations of wage regulations. The function had previously been performed within each of the wage control agencies.

Program emphasis is on prompt disposition of petitions for wage and salary increases which are not covered by self-administering regulations, and on the conduct of enforcement program. Proposed wage and salary increases are reviewed in the light of published standards. Investigations are conducted to establish facts needed in making wage and salary decisions, in developing regulations, and in the conduct of enforcement activities.

FEDERAL CIVIL DEFENSE ADMINISTRATION

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

This Administration is responsible for preparing national plans and programs for the civil defense of the United States, and the dissemination of civil defense information. It provides coordination and guidance to the States and their political subdivisions in the development of local defense plans, and makes financial contributions toward these programs. It also stockpiles, at strategically located points, supplies and equipment necessary to supplement existing local resources after an attack.

This estimate will provide for substantial advancement of the stockpiling program, and continuation of the matching of State contributions to provide emergency supplies and equipment required at target areas, and a start on a matching program for protective shelters in congested areas.

FEDERAL CIVIL DEFENSE ADMINISTRATION—Con.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Provision is made for technical guidance to the States and operation of educational, supply, communication, and attack warning programs to develop and maintain an effective system of civil defense.

1. Communications.—Civil defense communication channels linking States and localities are planned, and criteria and specifications developed. A secure communication system linking States with the Federal Government and agencies of the Government to each other is provided. Classified communication installations are operated.

2. Supply service.—Reserve stocks of medical supplies, emergency water supply equipment, and other items not normally found in American cities in sufficient quantity to cope with a civil defense emergency are stored in sites, strategically located throughout the country.

3. Training.—Methods and techniques for training civil defense workers are devised and made available to State and local civil defense organizations. Two training schools are operated: (a) The National Civil Defense Training Center, which provides (1) training to key State and local civil defense officials in civil defense planning and organization, and (2) technical training to selected individuals who, upon return to their communities, establish local training programs; (b) the Western Training School provides technical training only. Total enrollment in the 2 schools will be approximately 1,500 in fiscal year 1953 and 1,500 in fiscal year 1954.

4. Technical guidance.—Substantial progress has been made in the establishment of organizations for civil defense planning in each State and major Federal agency. These organizations are provided advice on technical problems and recommended ways to minimize damage to persons and property, and organizing, training, equipping, and utilizing forces to control and recover from damage.

5. Health and welfare.—Plans are developed to mobilize medical and welfare personnel of local communities in event of a civil defense emergency, and to establish emergency hospitals, first-aid stations, and mass care centers. The needs for Federal stockpiling for medical supplies and equipment to augment local resources are determined and procurement is supervised.

6. Public information.—Information on individual and family protection and participation in organized civil defense is disseminated to the general public. Advice and guidance is given to States and localities in developing public information programs. Planning for dissemination of public information and instructions in the emergency period is developed.

7. Research.—Arrangements are made with other Government agencies and private contractors to pursue research on civil defense problems. In 1954 effort will be concentrated on the effects of and defenses against biological, chemical, and radiological warfare, and on research pertaining to shelter construction.

8. Attack warning.—Engineering and supervision of the attack warning system to bring audible warning to the public is provided. This system consists of leased lines from air defense control centers to 175 key points throughout the Nation. The number of key points will be increased to approximately 195 in 1954. Procurement of warning devices and their placement and installation in localities is supervised.

9. Executive direction.

10. General administration.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Commission regulates interstate and international wire and radio communication.

An increase of $1,591,540 is proposed for 1954, principally (1) to handle the substantially increased workload in processing applications for new television stations, and (2) to strengthen radio-monitoring and enforcement activities including the establishment of new monitoring and direction-finding facilities.

1. Common carrier activities.—The Commission approves existing and proposed rates and practices of common carriers, proposed mergers and acquisitions of properties, extensions and reductions in services, construction of facilities, and applications for use of radio in communications services.

2. Applied technical research and frequency allocation.—Radio wave characteristics, equipment capabilities, and other technical matters are studied in relation to the allocation and assignment of frequencies for best utilization of the radio spectrum. The increase proposed will provide for (a) work on technical problems which have accumulated during the last few years and (b) implementation of frequency agreements reached at the Extraordinary Administrative Radio Conference, Geneva, 1951.

3. Field engineering and monitoring activities.—Field staff inspects radio stations, conducts operator examinations, monitors the radio spectrum, collects engineering data, and locates lost ships and aircraft and illegal sources of radio emission. The proposed increase is primarily for the establishment of two new monitoring stations and for placing secondary monitoring stations on 24-hour operation.

4. Safety and special radio services.—Aviation, police, marine, amateur, and other nonbroadcast uses of radio are licensed and regulated. The increase is to take care of rapidly growing workloads owing partly to the defense program. Pertinent data are summarized below:

5. Broadcast activities.—Broadcasting stations, including standard (AM), frequency modulation (FM), and television (TV), are licensed and regulated. The increase is proposed to handle a greatly increased workload, primarily in the field of television. Pertinent data are shown in the following table:

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Service, through mediation and conciliation, assists in the prevention or settlement of labor-management disputes affecting interstate commerce and defense production in industries other than rail and air transportation.

1. Mediation and conciliation of labor disputes.—In the past year, the facilities of the Service were made available in approximately 20,000 labor-management disputes, involving more than 14,000,000 employees. In addition to aiding the settlement of specific disputes, the Service makes a general contribution to the improvement of labor-management relations by working to secure a greater degree of mutual understanding between management and labor in the period between contract negotiations. The increase of $300,000 will finance (a) the increased cost in 1954 of staff hired during 1953, (b) a small staff of traveling mediators to aid mediators in the field in settling disputes, and (c) regional counterparts of the National Labor-Management Panel to advise the Service in the field.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Federal Power Commission administers the Federal Power Act and Natural Gas Act and has additional duties under other acts relating to Federal power development.

1. Licensing of non-Federal hydroelectric projects.—Licenses are issued to private, State, and municipal interests for proposed and existing hydroelectric projects affecting public lands and streams subject to Federal jurisdiction; construction and operation of such projects are inspected; and the cost of construction is determined. Pertinent data are:

Description	1952 actual	1953 estimate	1954 estimate

Annual income to Government from licenses.....	$1,660,646	$1,588,712	$1,618,569

2. Regulation and surveys, electric power industry.—Regulation covers the transmission and sale for resale of electric energy in interstate commerce and the rates, accounts, depreciation practices, certain security issues, disposition of properties, mergers, and the interconnection and coordination of facilities of public utilities subject to the Commission's jurisdiction. Statistics and other information about the electric utility industry are gathered and published. An increase in funds is proposed to expedite the handling of requests for rate increases and to keep current the collection of electric power requirements and supply data. Pertinent data are:

3. Regulation and surveys, natural gas industry.—Regulation covers the transportation and sale for resale of natural gas in interstate commerce and the rates, accounts, and depreciation and depletion practices. Certificates of public convenience and necessity are issued to natural gas companies subject to the jurisdiction of the Commission. Statistics and other information about the natural gas industry are gathered and published. An increase in funds is proposed primarily to cope with the rapidly increasing requests for rate adjustments. As of June 30, 1952, suspended cases awaiting final action totaled $104 million per year, and by August 31, 1952, had reached $166 million. An increase is also provided to process increasing numbers of applications for construction of pipeline facilities. Other pertinent data are:

Number of natural gas companies.....	142	155	160

4. Investigations relating to Federal river development projects.—Studies are made of river basins and individual projects proposed by the Departments of the Army and Interior to determine possibilities for conservation, development, and utilization of potential power resources. Review and approval are required of certain proposed rates for sale of power from such projects. Information on

Only 19.9 million kilowatts out of a potential 106 million kilowatts of hydroelectric energy in the United States were developed as of December 31, 1951. In fiscal year 1952, 125 studies were carried on, and it is estimated that action can be taken on 115 of a potential 160 cases in 1953 and on 120 of an additional 170 in 1954.

5. International Joint Commission.—This covers participation of the Federal Power Commission in the International Joint Commission which adjudicates controversies between the Governments of the United States and Canada or nationals of the two countries, principally over boundary waters, and conducts investigations as directed by the two Governments.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Commission seeks to maintain effective competitive conditions and to prevent the development of monopolistic and unfair trade practices, thus promoting high levels of production.

1. Antimonopoly.—Monopolistic restrictions of output, boycotts, corporate mergers and acquisitions, and other monopolistic practices and conspiracies which restrain trade or tend toward monopoly are prevented; economic data are gathered about business organization and conduct, particularly concerning monopoly and related problems; and supervision is provided over the registration and operation of associations of American exporters engaged solely in export trade. An increase in funds for investigations and litigation is requested in 1954 to cope with the mounting backlog of merger cases that has accumulated since the amendment of section 7 of the Clayton Act in December 1950, and to deal effectively with monopolistic practices which have developed incident to the defense mobilization program. It is proposed that a pilot study be undertaken in 1954 of how the consumer's dollar is divided between manufacturers and distributors, and how the manufacturer's sales dollar is divided between labor, material, and other expenses. The study will be designed to meet the needs of business, labor, farm, and consumer organizations, and of Government agencies for such information.

2. Antideceptive practices.—False and misleading advertising and other unfair or deceptive practices are prevented by corrective action of the Commission; manufacturers, distributors, and consumers are protected from the evils of misbranding and nondisclosure of fiber content with respect to manufactured wool products; consumers and merchants are protected from deceptive and unfair competition resulting from misbranding, false or deceptive advertising, and false invoicing of furs and fur products; and affirmative aid is provided to business for maintaining effective competition through industry trade practice conferences.

3. Executive direction and management.—These also include the adjudicatory functions of the Commission.

4. Administration.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The General Accounting Office settles claims by or against the Government; audits the financial transactions of Government agencies; audits Government corporations, audits and settles fiscal officers' accounts; renders legal decisions relating to Government fiscal matters; conducts investigations relating to the receipt, disbursement, and application of public funds; develops, prescribes, and evaluates accounting systems on a Government-wide basis; and performs other related and necessary functions. During the fiscal year 1952, refunds and collections in the amount of $55,724,940 were made through the audit, investigative, and claims activities of the General Accounting Office.

1. Office of the Comptroller General.—The Comptroller General serves Congress by presenting to it reports on matters relating to public funds, with recommendations and advice. The scope and variety of legislative reports and services to congressional committees continues to broaden, and the number to expand.

2. Office of the general counsel.—In addition to preparing decisions and reports, the general counsel and his staff participate in conferences with legislative and administrative officials of the Government on the legality or propriety of proposed obligations and expenditures, the sufficiency of proposed legislation, the desirability of new legislation for particular purposes, and like matters. A total of 11,997 legal matters of all types was handled during the fiscal year 1952. This total represents an increase of 288 over the number of legal matters handled in the fiscal year 1951.

3. Office of investigations.—This activity comprises (a) inspections at irregular intervals of most of the larger Federal installations and activities throughout the country; (b) investigations of fraudulent transactions, suspected fraud, or other serious irregularity; and (c) surveys of particular subjects of Federal expenditure on a broad and sometimes Nation-wide basis. The work is carried on in the field and at the spot where it can be best applied in the interest of the Government.

4. Accounting systems division.—The major work efforts of the Accounting Systems Division will continue to be the cooperative work in the development of accounting systems and improvements in the agencies of the Government. This work is carried out on a day-to-day consultative basis with accounting and management representatives of the individual agencies, and is in furtherance of the objectives of the joint program for improving accounting launched by the Comptroller General with the Secretary of the Treasury and the Director of the Bureau of the Budget.

5. Claims division.—All justiciable claims by or against the United States are settled, unless exclusive jurisdiction is specifically conferred upon another agency by law. During 1952, the number of claims settled was 433,496.

6. Transportation division.—This activity audits freight and passenger transportation payments for the account of the United States and the settlement of claims involving transportation charges. Through the efforts of the General Accounting Office, over $458,000,000 has been collected during the past 12 years in the transportation audit.

7. Division of personnel.—The establishment of the Division of Audits and the resultant reduction in force, reassignment of employees, and position classification work constituted the most significant personnel management activities during the fiscal year 1952. Progress on the work performance standards program was necessarily retarded due to the changes in organization; however, over 60 percent of the employees are now covered by approved standards as compared to 50 percent in 1951. During the fiscal year 1952, the staff of the Division of Personnel was reduced and the personnel ratio to total office employees increased from a ratio of 1 to 115 to 1 to 135.

8. Division of audits.—This division was established during 1952 by consolidating the old audit division, the corporation audits division, the postal audit division, and the reconciliation and clearance division. Several fundamental changes in policies and concepts have been placed into effect during the past year to improve the audit. Basically these were: (1) broadening of the training and experience of employees who are specialists in particular phases or types of audit so that they may effectively participate in the comprehensive audit program, (2) reorganization of the centralized audit on an agency or activity basis with emphasis on the selective audit approach, (3) establishment of a more realistic audit program in the Military Establishment, particularly in regards to its procurement program, and (4) increasing the number of agencies under comprehensive or site audit as rapidly as possible.

9. European branch.—In July 1952, a European branch of the General Accounting Office was established with headquarters in Paris, France, to perform the audit, investigative, legal, and other functions of the General Accounting Office in the European area, including the Near East and North Africa. Suboffices will be established within the geographic jurisdiction of the European branch as the work progresses and the need therefor arises.

10. Office of the chief clerk.—The chief clerk is responsible for property management and housekeeping work which encompass reproduction and duplication, procurement, storage and issue, distribution of mail, and messenger and labor services.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Commission regulates common carriers engaged in interstate and foreign commerce, including railroads, motor carriers, water carriers, pipelines, and contract carriers by motor vehicle and water.

An increase of $1,080,500 is proposed for 1954 principally for highway safety work, valuation of railroads and pipelines, and disposition of formal proceedings in rate and operating authority cases.

1. Applications, complaints, and other proceedings.—This work consists of regulating rates, granting operating authorities, approving abandonment of or extensions of railroad lines, financial reorganizations, and rate agreements between carriers.

2. Investigation, litigation, legal advice, and compliance.—Uniform systems of accounts are formulated and policed for all types of carriers; studies are made of operating costs and analyses prepared in relation to rate structures; assistance is rendered in the enforcement of statutes and regulations affecting transportation and carriers; briefs and arguments are prepared in suits to set aside orders of the Commission; examinations are made to ascertain that motor carriers and freight forwarders are adequately insured; and surveys are conducted of motor carriers' operating practices to reduce accidents and to promote safety on the public highways.

3. Collection and analysis of accounting and statistical data.—Statistics are compiled from carriers' reports and studies made of operating, financial, and other problems of transportation agencies which are essential to performance of the Commission's duties.

4. Supervision of rate publications.—Common and contract carriers' tariffs are examined for compliance with Commission's tariff circular rules, and under certain conditions authority to publish rates on less-than-statutory notice is granted.

5. Railroad car service.—A field staff works directly with carriers and shippers in handling problems related to car service in the transportation of property by railroad.

6. Valuation of railroads and pipelines.—This work consists of keeping inventory and cost records current and developing elements of value which are used in setting up depreciation reserves, determining costs of service, and approving financial reorganizations.

7. Administration.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Committee (NACA) conducts scientific research in aeronautics devoted almost entirely to problems of military aviation but having applications to commercial aviation as well. The research is carried on mainly at its three major laboratories and two auxiliary flight stations, supplemented by research sponsored at scientific and educational institutions and other Government agencies. Close coordination with the aeronautical programs of the Department of Defense is maintained through military representation on the NACA and its subcommittees, and NACA representation on the aeronautics and guided missiles committees of the Research and Development Board of the Department of Defense. Most of the research is directed toward obtaining basic scientific and engineering data for continued improvement in the design of military aircraft, missiles, and their power plants.

1. Aerodynamic research.—This research seeks to develop the design of aircraft and missiles which can perform effectively in the critical transonic and supersonic speed ranges and at the low speeds of take-off and landing. Data obtained from actual flight tests of high-speed piloted and pilotless aircraft are correlated with wind-tunnel results and theoretical studies. The increased funds are to staff several newly completed specialized research facilities of considerable size and to carry on intensified research in other facilities used in the solution of the most urgent aerodynamic problems.

2. Power plants research.—The research under this head centers on the newer forms of aircraft and missile power plants, such as turbo-jet, ram-jet, turbo-propeller, and rocket engines. The increase in funds is to staff newly constructed propulsion research facilities and to permit an expansion of effort in several critical fields of research.

3. Aircraft structural research.—In 1954 increased emphasis will be placed on structural problems resulting from aerodynamic heating, increased aerodynamic and ground handling loads, thinner wings, and the novel configurations of modern high-speed aircraft. The increased funds are also required to staff structural research facilities coming into initial operation during the year, and to permit expanded flight research activity at the High-Speed Flight Station.

4. Operating problems research.—Continuing studies now under way on aircraft icing, flight through turbulent weather, and the causes and prevention of fires in aircraft are of vital importance to civil aviation as well as to the operation of military aircraft.

5. Headquarters management and coordination.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The work of the NACA requires the continuing modernization of its research facilities and the construction of certain additional facilities for conducting research beyond the capabilities of existing equipment.

1. Aerodynamic research.—The 1954 estimates provide for modification of two existing wind tunnels each at the Langley and Ames Laboratories to increase their usefulness for high-speed aerodynamic research, for one new small wind tunnel at the Langley Laboratory for research at very high speeds, and for improvements to electrical substation facilities, also at the Langley Laboratory.

2. Power plants research.—The 1954 program includes a large rocket-engine research facility at the Lewis Laboratory and the replacement of heat accumulator apparatus used in tests at the Wallops Island Station.

3. Aircraft structural research.—The proposed modification of an existing tunnel at the Langley Laboratory, although required primarily for aerodynamic research, will increase the capacity of this tunnel for structural research.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Funds were made available in the Deficiency Appropriation Act, 1950, for the construction of three large supersonic wind tunnels at laboratories of the NACA as authorized by the Unitary Wind Tunnel Plan Act of 1949. These tunnels are to be used for the development, primarily by industry, of military aircraft and missiles.

1. Aerodynamic research.—This will provide for continuing the construction of two supersonic aerodynamic tunnels, one each at the Langley and Ames Aeronautical Laboratories.

2. Power plants research.—This will provide for continuing the construction of a supersonic propulsion tunnel at the Lewis Flight Propulsion Laboratory.

OBLIGATIONS BY ACTIVITIES

Planning—1954, $175,000.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The National Capital Planning Commission and its partner agency, the National Capital Regional Planning Council, were established by Public Law 592, Eighty-second Congress, approved July 19, 1952. The new Commission succeeds the old National Capital Park and Planning Commission. The planning activities of the former Commission were financed from the District of Columbia budget. To obtain maximum economy and coordination of planning policies and programs, this appropriation provides for a common planning staff to serve the Commission and the Council.

Special projects of the Commission in 1954 will include (a) review and recommendations on the District of Columbia's proposed long-range capital improvements program and related regional highway proposals, (b) comprehensive replanning of the problem areas of the original city and analysis of basic conditions governing such planning, and (c) revision of District of Columbia zoning regulations in cooperation with the Zoning Commission. Projects of the Regional Planning Council are expected to include the initial work on regional land use and transportation plans and an analysis of Federal developmental programs in the nearby counties. In addition to the foregoing special projects, the continuing activities include (a) preparation and amendment of the comprehensive plan for the National Capital; (b) reports on Federal and District of Columbia land acquisition and major construction projects; (c) reports on zoning amendment petitions, transfers between agencies of jurisdiction over land, highway plan changes, street and alley closings, sale of public land, and other such projects.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The National Capital Planning Commission (successor to the National Capital Park and Planning Commission) acquires land on behalf of the United States for parks, parkways, and recreation purposes in the District of Columbia and its environs.

1. George Washington Memorial Parkway.—Land is acquired along the shores of the Potomac River above and below Washington from Great Falls to Mount Vernon, one-half of the cost of which is borne by the local jurisdictions. Obligations through 1953 will complete acquisition of the lower Virginia section, 35 percent of the upper Virginia section, and 75 percent of the upper Maryland section. No progress has been made on the lower Maryland section. The 1954 program calls for extension of the upper Virginia section to the extent that the State of Virginia and Fairfax County are prepared to contribute matching funds and completion of the upper Maryland section.

2. Extension of National Capital park system into Maryland.—Land is acquired in cooperation with the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission for extension of the metropolitan park system into the Maryland environs. The system now includes units of varying length in the valleys of Cabin John Branch, Little Falls Branch, Rock Creek, Sligo Creek, Northwest Branch, Paint Branch, and Anacostia River. The 1954 program includes six proposed units which are in critical danger of being destroyed through private real-estate subdivision. Heretofore the United States has contributed one-third of the cost of such units and has advanced the remaining two-thirds of the cost for 8 years without interest. For the 1954 program, it is proposed that Federal participation be limited to the one-third contribution, which is the minimum participation provided by law.

3. Park, parkway, and playground system in the District of Columbia.—Land is also acquired in the District of Columbia, with all expenditures being repaid to the United States Treasury by the District of Columbia. Acquisitions are part of the Commission's comprehensive plan for the park, parkway, and playground system of the National Capital.

Obligations incurred.....	8,263,202	9,007,150	9,802,000

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Board resolves representation disputes in industry and remedies and prevents unfair labor practices by employers and unions. The estimate does not include funds for representation elections in the building construction industry or for "last offer" elections in national emergency disputes because these elections have not been required to any extent in recent years.

1. Field investigation of cases and informal disposition or preparation for formal processing.—Charges of unfair labor practices and petitions for elections to resolve representation disputes are investigated in the regional office in which they are filed. Failing settlement, dismissal, or withdrawal of these cases, they are prepared for public hearing. About 87 percent of the unfair labor practice cases and 73 percent of the election cases are closed without the need for public hearing or further formal action.

Salaries and Expenses, National Labor Relations Board—Continued

2. Trial examiner hearing of unfair labor practice cases.—Trial examiners conduct public hearings which are the basis of the findings and recommendations set forth in intermediate reports. In fiscal year 1952, 344 reports were issued; for 1953, the estimate is 386; for 1954, 550.

3. Board adjudication of cases.—In unfair labor practice cases, if no exceptions are filed within 20 days of issuance of the trial examiner's intermediate report, it takes effect as a Board order. Exceptions are filed to approximately 80 percent of the intermediate reports and are referred to the Board for decision. In contested representation cases the Board may either order an election to determine the choice of bargaining representative or dismiss the case.

Unfair labor practice.....	256	328	508

4. Securing of compliance with Board orders, including enforcement through court orders.—If the parties do not voluntarily comply with the Board's orders, the Board must request the courts to enforce its decision. Most of these contested decisions involve unfair labor practices; in the last 2 years there has been a sharp rise from 60 to 80 percent in number of these taken to the courts. In 1952, 195 Board decisions of all kinds required court litigation; for 1953, the estimate is 262; and for 1954, 325.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Railroad employee grievances resulting from the application of contracts may be brought for adjustment to the 36-man Board composed of an equal number of carrier and union representatives who are paid by the parties. The Board is organized into four quasi-independent divisions having separate jurisdiction over employees in four different groups of crafts.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Foundation is responsible for developing a national policy for the promotion of basic research and education in the sciences, for evaluating scientific research programs undertaken by agencies of the Federal Government, for supporting basic research, for awarding graduate fellowships, and for fostering the interchange of scientific information. The Foundation does not itself operate any research laboratories.

The Foundation is expected to become the principal agency of the Government for the support of basic research and for the award of graduate fellowships in the sciences, giving due consideration to the requirements of other Federal agencies for the support of basic research directly related to their statutory functions. The total appropriation recommended amounts to $15,000,000, the maximum now allowed by basic law. This represents an increase of $10,250,000 as compared with the current fiscal year. The statutory ceiling on the Foundation's appropriations should be removed. The increase proposed for 1954 is more than offset by reductions in the justifiable requests of other agencies supporting basic research and awarding fellowships, particularly the Department of Defense and the Public Health Service.

1. Research policy development, and services.—National science policy is being developed through studies of: (a) the impact of scientific research and development on educational institutions and industry; (b) the present status of research in specific scientific fields; and (c) research and development conducted or supported by the Federal Government. The Foundation will formulate and help carry out a Government-wide program of collection and dissemination of information on the supply and demand for scientific and engineering personnel.

2. Research support.—Basic research in the mathematical, physical, biological, medical and engineering sciences is being given increased support, principally through grants to educational and other research institutions for specific projects of outstanding merit.

3. Training of scientific manpower.—To increase the supply of trained scientific personnel, the estimate provides for approximately 1,620 graduate fellowships, primarily predoctoral, to be awarded for the academic year 1954–55. There is also a limited program designed to improve the quality of teaching in individual scientific fields.

Payment to railroad retirement account—1952, $767,800,402; 1953, $683,524,469; 1954, $694,852,000.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The railroad retirement system is supported by taxes on carriers and their employees established at a level designed to support the system on an actuarially sound basis. Appropriation of an annual premium, in an amount equal to the taxes collected, is made to this account for payment to the railroad retirement account (trust fund). This appropriation is made in an indefinite amount, with payments to the trust fund being made currently, equal to the taxes (less refunds) actually collected. Effective with fiscal year 1953, this appropriation was changed from an annual indefinite to a permanent indefinite authorization.

The amount of $18,656,682 recommended for rescission consists of the net overappropriations or overpayments made to the railroad retirement account from the general Treasury through June 30, 1951. These resulted from the following: The railroad retirement legislation contemplates that appropriations therefor will be equal to the taxes collected. Prior to June 30, 1951, the annual appropriations were in definite amounts which were based on estimated tax collections. Because of variations between estimated collections and actual collections, overpayments and underpayments were made to the railroad retirement account from time to time. Further overpayments resulted from (1) payment of interest on the overpayments already mentioned; (2) failure to take into account the fact that tax refunds and interest thereon were paid from the general Treasury; and (3) availability to the account of amounts appropriated, but not used, for administrative expenses. The proposed rescission will result in receipt by the account of an amount equal to the net taxes collected in connection with the program for the entire period prior to June 30, 1951. For periods subsequent to June 30, 1951, this adjustment is made currently and automatically by appropriation of an indefinite amount equal to the net taxes collected.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Railroad Retirement Board administers the federally operated railroad retirement system, financed by employer and employee taxes. This appropriation is for that portion of the administrative expenses of the Board required in the operation of this program, and is derived from the railroad retirement account. The retirement system provides employees' annuities for age and disability, spouses' annuities, survivor benefits, and lump-sum death benefits.

1. Maintenance of accounts of employee earnings.—Eligibility for benefits and the amount of benefits are based on compensation reported by employers and recorded by the Board in individual accounts of earnings. The workload of maintaining these records fluctuates with the level of employment in the railroad industry, rates of turn-over, and similar factors. This activity is operated jointly with a similar requirement under the railroad unemployment insurance program and the costs are shared on a measured basis.

2. Processing and certification for payment of initial claims.—Claims for age and disability annuities, spouses' annuities, survivor benefits, and lump-sum payments are adjudicated and certified to the Treasury for initial payment. The claims load tends to increase each year as more railroad workers are forced to seek retirement because of age or disability, and as more spouses of retired employees and more survivors of deceased employees become eligible for benefits.

Claims dispositions.....	96,784	117,877	129,150

3. Monthly recertification of awarded claims.—Benefit payments must be authorized each month for those persons on the rolls who continue to remain eligible. The number of beneficiaries on the rolls will continue to increase until the program matures.

Total number of monthly payments.....	5,323,502	6,200,000	6,500,000

4. Hearings and appeals.—Individuals whose claims for annuities or benefits are disallowed or who dispute the award have the right of appeal to the appeals council, and subsequently to the Board itself.

Appeals.....	181	250	300

5. Actuarial services.—Actuarial studies and estimates are required by the Railroad Retirement Act to determine the adequacy of the tax rate to establish and maintain a sufficient reserve to meet all future payments. A number of new studies are being inaugurated under the provisions of Public Law 234, approved October 30, 1951.

6. General administration.—Except for administrative activities supported by and concerned with the retirement program exclusively, the cost of general administration is shared between the retirement and the railroad unemployment insurance programs on a measured basis.

3. Renegotiation operations.—The Regional Boards processed 731 cases in fiscal year 1952 and it is estimated that 3,250 will be processed in 1953 and 10,000 in 1954.

In fiscal year 1953, the estimates were based on 15 cases per professional man-year. Fiscal year 1954 estimates are based on 20 cases per professional man-year.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Commission seeks to protect the interests of the public and investors against fraud in buying and selling securities.

1. Administration of full disclosure provisions of the securities laws.—Provision is made for securing compliance with the statutory standards of disclosure in offerings of securities registered with the Commission for public sale and in related periodic reports. It is proposed to add personnel for speedier processing of registration statements, and other documents and to reduce backlogs.

2. The prevention and suppression of fraud in securities transactions.—Investor losses due to fraud are prevented or minimized by prompt action where frauds are suspected, through periodic inspection of the accounts of broker-dealer firms, and by surveillance of trading on stock exchanges and in the over-the-counter markets. Provisions are made for a moderate expansion of investigative and inspection facilities.

3. Supervision and regulation of securities markets.—National securities exchanges, including over-the-counter markets, are regulated.

4. Regulation of public utility holding companies.—This regulation extends to such matters as the financing of holding companies and their subsidiaries, acquisitions of utility securities and assets, certain dividend payments, solicitation of proxies, intercompany transactions, servicing arrangements, accounting practices, and the geographic integration and corporate simplification of holding company systems. At June 30, 1952, there were 40 holding company systems comprising 437 utility companies subject to regulation by the Commission with aggregate assets of $13,665,000,000. The expansion program in both the electric and natural-gas industry, which requires financing at a near record level, is expected to continue in 1954.

5. Assistance to courts in reorganization of bankrupt corporations.—Independent expert assistance is provided in proceedings under chapter X of the Bankruptcy Act. On June 30, 1952, there were 73 cases pending.

6. Preparation of operational and business statistics.—Statistical and other data are prepared to provide the Commission and the staff with information needed to administer the securities laws and to produce certain financial data from information filed with the Commission as a part of the over-all Government statistical and economic program.

7. Executive and staff functions.—Three additional positions are provided for the Office of the General Counsel to care for legal matters incident to the expanded work program.

8. Administrative services.—The proposed increases are for servicing the thousands of documents filed each year with the Commission and to provide improved facilities for furnishing the public with information regarding securities registered with the Commission.

The Selective Service System, through the action of over 4,000 local and appeal boards registers, classifies and forwards men for induction in the Armed Forces. It defers from induction those whose civilian employment or training is found necessary to the national health, safety, or interest. It develops programs for civilian work in lieu of induction for conscientious objectors. The reduction for 1954 is based on the estimate of a lower number of inductions than in 1953.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Small Defense Plants Administration carries out a program to aid and guide small business.

The 1954 requirements for these activities are included in a supplemental appropriation under proposed legislation carried in the chapter "Funds appropriated to the President."

1. Procurement assistance.—This includes joint determination with the military departments and other procurement agencies of individual contracts to be awarded to small plants and the issuance of certificates of competency to small business having facilities and credit resources adequate to assure performance. Other major activities include efforts to increase utilization of small-plant facilities by subcontracts from large prime contractors and assistance in the formation of production pools.

2. Financial assistance.—Small business is aided in obtaining loans from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation where a fund of $100,000,000 has been authorized for this purpose. Surveys and studies are carried out with regard to the credit, business standing, and productive ability of each applicant, and a recommendation is made to RFC concerning the loan.

3. Materials and equipment assistance.—Aid is given small firms in obtaining a fair share of controlled materials and equipment by representing them before National Production Authority and Defense Production Administration committees and boards and by distributing information concerning the availability of materials and equipment on the open market.

4. Production and management service.—Small businesses are assisted in conversions to defense or essential civilian production, and inspection of plants is made to determine adequacy of facilities for defense production. Pamphlets and brochures are prepared for the use of small-business firms to help them solve problems of management or production.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Research, investigations, and reports on international trade, tariffs, and commercial policies.—The Commission assembles and interprets economic data relating to industry, commodities, and foreign trade for formulating governmental policy. This work consists largely of (a) conducting investigations bearing on tariff and other restrictions on imports; (b) supplying factual data on specific commodities and industries as the basis for consideration of concessions by the United States in trade agreements, participating in their negotiations, and reporting on their operations; and (c) performing a continuous analysis of economic and technical information.

A moderate increase is recommended for investigations related to trade agreements. Extensions and modifications of the agreements and requests for reductions of the tariff concessions provided under the agreements have increased to the point where the Commission needs additional staff to provide adequate analysis in the limits of time imposed by law.

2. Executive direction and administration.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Tax Court reviews determinations of tax deficiencies made by the Commissioner of Internal Revenue and decides whether there is deficiency or overpayment in income, estate, gift, and unjust enrichment taxes and in cases founded on claims under excess profits statutes. The Court also adjudicates claims for processing tax refunds, and redetermines excessive profits on contracts renegotiated by the Federal Government.

A continued substantial increase is expected in the number of new tax cases to be filed by taxpayers during the fiscal year 1954. Additional funds for new positions and other expenses are required to enable the Court to dispose of the greater volume of cases.

The following tabulation indicates the actual and the expected growth in the volume of work of the Court:

This appropriation covers the administration and operation of all programs administered by the Veterans' Administration except for construction activities and operation of canteens.

The appropriation of $921,100,000, proposed for 1954, represents a net increase of $46,257,740 over the 1953 requirements of $874,842,260, including an estimated supplemental appropriation of $18,960,000 to cover costs of administering the Veterans' Readjustment Assistance Act of 1952 and additional requirements of the medical programs. In this program and performance statement, effect has been given to the 1953 supplemental appropriation. The supplemental is not shown in the obligation and expenditure schedules.

Principal increases are proposed for—

Medical services:
Hospital and domiciliary services	$27,276,528
Outpatient services	13,126,293
Nonmedical administration:
General administration and contact	1,000,000
Vocational rehabilitation and education	7,846,000

Principal decreases are proposed for—

Nonmedical administration:
Insurance	$4,534,000
Readjustment allowance	1,137,000

The increase in the hospital and domiciliary programs arises from the opening of new hospitals and an increased number of patients in Veterans Administration hospitals. The increase in the out-patient program is due to increased dental fee-basis workloads.

The increases in nonmedical administration are attributable to costs of administering the Veterans' Readjustment Assistance Act of 1952.

The estimated decrease in cost of operating the insurance program is due to savings in personnel realized from the consolidation of district offices, improved methods and procedures, and a decrease in the number of policies in force. The decrease in the readjustment allowance program reflects the completion of this program. The

This provides for all compensation, pensions, and allowances, including emergency officers' retirement pay and annuities.

The major portion of the increases requested is a result of the enactment of Public Laws 356, 357, and 427, Eighty-second Congress, which generally increase benefits, and add a new group of claimants who were previously excluded because of excessive income. It is anticipated that a supplemental appropriation of approximately $237,573,000 will be required for fiscal year 1953. In this program and performance statement effect has been given to the 1953 supplemental appropriation. The supplemental is not shown in the obligation and expenditure schedules.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

These benefits to veterans apply to the cost of subsistence, tuition, supplies and equipment needed for courses of training; guaranty, claims and property acquisitions, and cost of loans; and the payment of readjustment allowance to World War II veterans who are still eligible. Benefits included under Public Law 550, Eighty-second Congress, for education and training allowance and loan guaranty payments are also included. No funds have been appropriated for the benefits under Public Law 550 for fiscal year 1953 and present estimates indicate that there will be a supplemental requirement of $206,058,000 in fiscal year 1953. In this program and performance statement, effect has been given to the 1953 supplemental appropriation. This supplemental is not shown in the obligation and expenditure schedules.

The forecast of the number of veterans in training under Public Law 346 estimates a 51-percent decline in fiscal year 1953 from fiscal year 1952 and a reduction of 60 percent in fiscal year 1954 under fiscal year 1953; however, the number of veterans in training under Public Law 550 is expected to average 185,000 during fiscal year 1953 and 475,000 during fiscal year 1954. This will result in an over-all decrease of 36 percent in fiscal year 1953 and a 9-percent decrease in fiscal year 1954 from fiscal year 1953.

2. Loan guaranty.—Loan forecasts are based on current monthly trends and the assumption that construction of housing units will continue at an annual rate of approximately 1,000,000 units.

3. Readjustment allowances.—The payment of benefits for this purpose will be negligible and no funds are requested for this purpose.

1. Burial allowances.—The increase for funeral and burial expenses of deceased veterans forecast for 1954 is based on the upward trend apparent for the last several years.

2. Vocational rehabilitation for disabled veterans.—Average monthly training load was 54,253 during fiscal year 1952. It is estimated on the basis of past trends that the monthly average number of veterans in training will be 34,000 in fiscal year 1953 and 34,500 in fiscal year 1954.

3. Housing grants for disabled veterans.—This assistance in acquiring suitable housing is provided to veterans with specified permanent and total service-connected disabilities. Of the estimated 4,500 eligible, 4,128 have established their basic eligibility as of June 30, 1952. Of these,

2,555 had made formal application for a grant and 2,520 applications have been approved.

Present trends indicate a supplemental requirement of $1,361,000 for 1953.

Under the act of July 1, 1948, the Philippine Government is authorized to receive grants for (1) the construction and equipping of veterans' hospitals, in an amount not to exceed $22,500,000, and (2) the medical care and treatment of certain veterans in the Philippines, at not to exceed $3,285,000 per annum for 5 years.

It is estimated that a supplemental appropriation of $1,423,500 will be required in fiscal year 1953 for medical care and treatment of veterans on account of increased costs of hospitalization and a larger number of veterans eligible for such care.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

In addition to the railroad retirement program, the Railroad Retirement Board administers an unemployment and sickness insurance system, paying unemployment, sickness, and maternity benefits to qualified railroad workers, and operates an employment service program for the purpose of finding jobs for unemployment benefit claimants and of assisting railroads to fill their manpower needs. The administrative costs of this system are provided through a permanent appropriation of 0.2 percent of taxable payroll to this fund. As of June 30 of each year, any sum in this fund in excess of $6,000,000 is transferred to the railroad unemployment insurance account in the unemployment trust fund (45 U. S. C. 361).

1. Maintenance of accounts of employee earnings.—The amounts of insurance payments for unemployment, sickness, and maternity are based upon individual records of earnings. The principal workload is the processing of compensation items which is carried on simultaneously with a like requirement under the retirement program, the costs being shared proportionately between the two programs.

2. Processing and certification for payment of unemployment insurance claims.—This embraces the work of paying unemployment benefits to unemployed railroad workers. Individual claims for unemployment compensation are filed locally and certified for payment through the several regional offices of the Board. The number of claims for unemployment compensation fluctuates widely due to economic changes affecting the railroad industry.

3. Processing and certification for payment of sickness and maternity claims.—Unlike unemployment claims, these claims are filed by mail and certified for payment through the regional offices of the Board. The volume of claims for sickness is relatively stable.

4. Employment service activities.—These are operated by the Board for the purpose of finding jobs for unemployment benefit claimants and of assisting railroads to fill their manpower needs.

5. General administration.—Except for certain basic activities solely supported and concerned only with this program, general administration costs are shared between this program and the retirement program on a measured basis.

REVOLVING AND MANAGEMENT FUNDS

ATOMIC ENERGY COMMISSION

Revolving Fund, Defense Production Guarantees, Atomic Energy Commission—

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Guarantees are given on loans made by private sources to finance construction or operation of defense production facilities. Loan may be purchased by the Government if necessary to keep financing in effect. Revenues from guarantee fees and interest on purchased loans are used to pay administrative expenses. Advances from appropriations available for procurement may be made to this fund for its temporary use. Net earnings are retained to meet possible future losses (Defense Production Act of 1950, sec. 301).

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, security investigations performed at the request of other departments and agencies of the Government (Public Law 375 approved June 5, 1952). An appropriation of $4,000,000 was made to the fund in 1952 to provide working capital.

Because work on some investigations will be started in one fiscal year and completed in another, work in process will be recognized as an asset of the fund. Organizational expenses (including training costs and annual leave assumed on transfer of personnel to the program) are also included in the work in process inventory. Such expenses will be recovered through fees charged.

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION

The Bank is authorized by the Export-Import Bank Act of 1945 (12 U. S. C. 635) as amended, "to aid in financing and to facilitate exports and imports and the exchange of commodities between the United States or any of its Territories or insular possessions and any foreign country or the agencies or nationals thereof." In carrying out its objectives the Bank is guided by the policy of supplementing and encouraging rather than competing with private capital, and generally requires that the loans be made for specific purposes and offer reasonable assurance of repayment. The Bank makes every effort to secure a maximum of private capital participation in its credits.

In addition to financing out of its own funds the development abroad of sources of essential materials needed in the United States for defense purposes and for industry, the Bank performs functions under the Defense Production Act of 1950, as amended, with respect to loans made for the development of foreign sources and the production abroad of essential materials for the stockpile, and under the Mutual Security Act of 1952 with respect to foreign assistance loans and guarantees. The Bank does not use its own funds for these latter activities, but operates under allocations from the Defense Production Administration and the Mutual Security Agency. The management of the Bank is vested in a board of directors consisting of four full-time members appointed by the President with Senate confirmation, and the Secretary of State, ex officio.

On October 3, 1951, the Congress increased the limit of lending authority as measured by loans and commitments outstanding at any one time from $3.5 billion to $4.5 billion to enable the Bank to authorize new credits for production of strategic materials and for essential economic development abroad. At the same time the authority to borrow from the United States Treasury was increased from $2.5 to $3.5 billion.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAMS

General foreign trade.—In fulfillment of its basic purpose of facilitating and assisting both the export and import trade of the United States the Bank extends: (a) Credits for development projects abroad, generally those requiring American services and installation of American machinery which contribute to the permanency of the foreign trade of the United States by increasing the economic stability of the other nations of the free world;

(b) Credits for the development and expansion of foreign sources of strategic and critical materials essential to the defense stockpile and United States industry in general;

(c) Credits for the purchase by other countries of United States staple commodities such as raw cotton.

Significant examples of economic development credits authorized during fiscal year 1952 are two for development and expansion of electric power facilities in Brazil and

EXPORT-IMPORT BANK OF WASHINGTON—Con.

Loans From Treasury, Export-Import Bank of Washington—Con. the Philippines, amounting to $41 million and $20 million, respectively, and two for expansion of railroad facilities in Brazil, totaling $15.6 million. The Brazilian power loan went to the Brazilian Electric Power Co., a subsidiary of the American and Foreign Power Co., representing investments by many American stockholders.

Commodity credits of $173 million extended during fiscal year 1952 were for purchase of United States cotton by textile industries of friendly nations, this sum being equal to approximately 12.6 percent of the 1952 season's exports. Also during fiscal year 1952, a credit of $10 million to the Federal Republic of Germany was authorized for the purchase of United States tobacco.

UNDER DEFENSE PRODUCTION ACT

Notes in the amount of $60,935 were issued by the Export-Import Bank and outstanding as of June 30, 1952. These notes are repayable from funds collected on the related defense loans. It is anticipated that interest income on these loans will cover operating expenses and any losses pertaining thereto.

Payments into general fund of U. S. Treasury.—Payments made by Export-Import Bank into the United States Treasury as miscellaneous receipts, representing profits from the Bank's regular lending activities as well as its auxiliary mutual security and defense operations, are shown in the following schedule:

OPERATING RESULTS AND RETAINED EARNINGS

Out of the net profits the Bank is currently paying a $20 million dividend a year to the Treasury, equal to 2 percent on its capital stock of $1 billion. The remainder of the net profit, ranging from $31.8 to $35.1 million a year for fiscal years 1952 to 1954, is added to the accumulated retained earnings of the Bank, estimated to amount to $335 million at the end of 1954, which will be available for future contingencies.

FINANCIAL CONDITION

Total assets of the Bank, which were $2,358 million at the beginning of fiscal year 1952, are estimated at $2,661 million at the end of fiscal year 1954. This is largely represented by an increase in the loans carried in the Bank's portfolio. The total investment of the United States Government in the Bank is estimated as of June 30, 1954, at $2,615.6 million, consisting of $1,255.7 million of interest-bearing notes, a loan participation of $4.4 million by the United States Treasury in lend-lease liquidation, $1 billion of non-interest-bearing capital stock, and $355.5 million of retained earnings.

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION

Under its lending authority, the Corporation may make or participate in loans to (a) business enterprises, including railroads and air carriers; (b) financial institutions; (c) political subdivisions of States and Territories; and (d) the victims of disasters. Loans and commitments made subsequent to June 30, 1947, under this authority, are limited to $993,097,000 outstanding at any one time.

The Corporation also makes loans for (a) defense production (Defense Production Act of 1950, as amended, and Executive Orders 10161 and 10281); (b) small defense plants (sec. 714, Public Law 96, 82d Cong.); and (c) civil defense (Federal Civil Defense Act of 1950). Loans and commitments for defense production loans are limited to amounts allocated by the President, and those for small defense plants and civil defense to $100 million and $250 million, respectively.

Lending activities are financed from $100 million of capital stock issued to and held by the Secretary of the Treasury, retained earnings to the extent of $250 million (after reasonable reserves for losses), and borrowings from the Treasury as needed. All earned surplus in excess of $250 million and reasonable reserves for losses is required to be deposited in the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAMS

During the present emergency loans are restricted to those which contribute directly to the defense program or which provide for essential civilian activities.

Business enterprises.—Loans to business enterprises constitute the major portion of the Corporation's lending program. Estimates of activity for fiscal years 1953 and 1954 are compared with 1952 experience in the following summary:

[Millions of dollars]

Commitments.....	$108.9	$143.2	$138.0
Disbursements.....	72.3	157.3	101.4
Outstanding at end of year:
Loans.....	365.7	424.5	409.7
Commitments.....	188.6	118.5	99.4

Data in the foregoing table do not include banks' shares of loans made by RFC in cooperation with banks. It is the policy of the Corporation to encourage bank participation in loans.

The authority under which RFC may make loans upon the recommendation of the Small Defense Plants Administration expires June 30, 1953. Loans and commitments outstanding were $4.0 million on June 30, 1952, and are estimated to be $10.3 million on June 30, 1953.

Railroads.—The improved financial position of the Nation's railroad companies, combined with receptive markets for railroad securities, has halted the demand for loans of this type. Continuation of these conditions is anticipated for the period covered in the budget estimates. It is estimated that the Corporation's portfolio of railroad loans will be reduced from $83.1 million on June 30, 1952, to $70.6 million by the close of fiscal year 1954.

Financial institutions.—Activity in this field has been nominal during recent years, and the current economic outlook precludes any new activity in the fiscal years 1953 and 1954. The Corporation's portfolio of loans and security purchases in connection with financial institutions is being reduced as rapidly as conditions permit. Preferred stock, notes, and debentures of banks and trust companies held by RFC amounted to $54.8 million on June 30, 1952. It is anticipated that these holdings will be reduced to $51.8 million by June 30, 1954.

Public agencies.—No increase is anticipated in the volume of loans over that experienced in the fiscal years 1951 and 1952. Loan authorizations are estimated at $40.0 million for fiscal year 1953 and $5.0 million for 1954.

Disaster relief.—The volume of loans and commitments outstanding on June 30, 1952, was $20.9 million. Approximately 75 percent of this amount represents loans made in connection with the Missouri Valley floods of 1951. The Corporation's portfolio of disaster loans and commitments is estimated to be $17.7 million at the close of fiscal year 1954.

Foreign governments.—The Corporation does not have authority to make new loans to foreign governments. The only outstanding loan is that made to the Republic of the Philippines. The amount of the loan outstanding on June 30, 1952, was $54.0 million. Repayments of $6.0 million annually are scheduled on this loan.

Civil defense.—The first loans authorized under the authority contained in the Federal Civil Defense Act of 1950 were approved during fiscal year 1952. Activity under this program is not expected to increase over the current rate. Disbursements are estimated at $3.0 million and $3.6 million for fiscal years 1953 and 1954, respectively.

Housing mortgages.—In the liquidation of the RFC Mortgage Company, pursuant to Public Law 132, Eightieth Congress, the Corporation acquired assets amounting to $1.1 billion. These assets were in the form of mortgages insured by FHA or guaranteed by the Veterans Administration. At the end of fiscal year 1952, this portfolio had been reduced to $74.9 million through sales and principal repayments. It is estimated that the portfolio will be further reduced to $60.8 million by the end of fiscal year 1954.

ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES

Administrative expenses consist of salaries and related costs of supervisory and operating personnel together with rental costs of office space. These expenses are estimated at $10.1 million in 1954, as compared to $11.4 million authorized for fiscal year 1953.

FINANCING OPERATIONS

In 1954 the lending program will require borrowings of $172 million, of which $159 million will be repaid during the same year. In 1953, borrowings of $147 million will be required; $159 million will be repaid.

Dividends of $12.3 million and $7.8 million, representing the results of 1952 and 1953 operations, respectively, will be paid to the Treasury in 1953 and 1954.

OPERATING RESULTS

A comparison of income and expense for the Corporation's lending program is provided in the following table:

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION

The Corporation has the responsibility for the operation and liquidation of certain assets it acquired as a result of its activities during the last war. This responsibility consists of two broad functions: (1) Production activities, consisting of operation of the synthetic rubber, tin, and abaca programs; and (2) purely liquidation activities, encompassing orderly disposition of holdings acquired in connection with wartime programs.

The production and liquidation programs are financed with funds arising from the operation and liquidation of these programs in accordance with the Government Corporations Appropriation Act of 1949. To the extent that funds realized from these programs exceed requirements, they are deposited in the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAMS

Production programs

In connection with the current preparedness program, the Corporation is continuing certain production activities initiated during World War II.

Synthetic rubber.—The Corporation operates all rubber-producing facilities owned by the Government, and is also authorized to finance research and development work in fields related to synthetic rubber production. Based on anticipated industry requirements in 1954, production is estimated at 735,000 long tons at a cost of $249.2 million. This compares with production of 660,000 long tons costing $223.6 million projected for fiscal year 1953.

Capital expenditures estimated for fiscal year 1954 amount to $30 million, principally for converting petroleum butadiene plants to use of Dow catalyst. This conversion is a major step in reaching the objective of attaining sufficient low-cost petroleum butadiene capacity to produce 860,000 long tons annually of GR-S rubber. The $36.2 million capital expenditures projected for fiscal year 1953 are to complete the conversion-to-cold-rubber program and capacity expansion, as well as for various process improvements and plant equipment replacements.

Tin.—The tin program in fiscal years 1953 and 1954 will make a major contribution in meeting the Nation's industrial and stockpile requirements for this metal. Based on existing purchase agreements, and capacity production at the Texas City tin smelter, 66,800 tons of refined tin will be purchased and produced in fiscal year 1953 and 54,600 in 1954. It is anticipated that all will be sold either to industry or the national stockpile.

Capital expenditures contemplated are $1.1 million in fiscal year 1953, mainly for completion of plant improvements started in 1952. In 1954, capital expenditures are forecast at $0.6 million for replacement of smelter equipment and various process improvements.

Abacá fiber.—All abacá fiber produced on the Corporation's Central American plantations is stockpiled for the defense programs. Production is estimated at 33.7 million pounds in 1954, as compared to 31.8 million pounds projected for 1953. The increased level in 1954 results from farm rehabilitation effected in 1952-53.

Capital expenditures of $3.3 million and $1.6 million have been estimated for fiscal years 1953 and 1954, respectively, for acreage expansion authorized by Public Law 683, Eighty-first Congress. These amounts cover costs of projects presently under way which will add about 5,950 acres to present cultivations. No additional acreage expansion is provided for in the 1954 estimates.

Liquidation programs

Liquidation of World War II activities.—Assets remaining under this program at the end of fiscal year 1954 will amount to $21.5 million. This compares with $30.6 million as of June 30, 1952, and $24.4 million estimated for June 30, 1953.

Of the amount still unliquidated at June 30, 1954, $8.6 million is represented by plants, equipment, and related facilities under long-term lease.

ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES

Administrative expenses consist of salaries and related costs of personnel engaged in the supervision and control over these programs, together with rental costs of office space. These expenses are estimated at $3.2 million in 1954, as compared to $3.3 million authorized in 1953.

FINANCING OPERATIONS

Payments of $50 million and $125 million, representing the proceeds from production and liquidation programs, will be made to the Treasury in fiscal years 1953 and 1954, respectively.

OPERATING RESULTS AND RETAINED EARNINGS

The operating results of the Corporation's production programs are summarized in the following table:

Tennessee Valley Authority Fund—*BUSINESS-TYPE STATEMENTS*PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION

The Tennessee Valley Authority is a wholly owned Government corporation whose primary purposes are to develop the Tennessee River system for navigation, flood control, and power; to provide munitions for national defense; to develop new and improved fertilizers; and to further the development of the Tennessee Valley's agricultural, forestry, industrial, and other resources.

TVA's programs are financed by appropriations and by proceeds from its operations, principally the sale of power and fertilizer materials. Appropriations cover expenses of navigation and flood control operations, research on fertilizer and munitions, resource development, and most capital plant additions. Proceeds (referred to in the financial statements as corporate funds) are used to finance power operations and the manufacture and distribution of fertilizers. Section 26 of the TVA Act, as amended, provides for payment into the Treasury of the United States of such proceeds as in the opinion of the TVA Board are not required for these purposes.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAMS

TVA has three major programs (1) navigation, flood control, and power; (2) fertilizer and munitions; and (3) resource development. These activities are inter-related in both planning and execution. They are conducted to enable the people of the Tennessee Valley to make full and effective use of the area's resources by methods which encourage the enterprise of individual farmers and businessmen, and which strengthen their State and local institutions and agencies.

As shown in statement A following this narrative, the 1954 program would be financed by $254,355,000 of appropriated funds; $179,700,000 provided by operations, principally from the sale of power and fertilizer products; and a $13,791,000 decrease in Treasury cash. The total of $447,846,000 to be applied under the 1954 program consists of $302,813,000 for acquisition of assets, $119,745,000 for operating expenses, and $25,288,000 for retirement of borrowings and payments to the United States Treasury.

NAVIGATION, FLOOD CONTROL, AND POWER PROGRAM

A major objective of the TVA Act is the unified development and use of the Tennessee River system for navigation, flood control, and power. As of June 30, 1952, the total investment in facilities serving these purposes was $902,393,341, and was allocated as follows: navigation, $140,288,100; flood control, $166,459,447; and power, $595,645,794. Principal facilities are a system of 24 major dams, 22 major hydroelectric generating stations, 10 navigation locks, 7 major fuel-electric generating stations, and a power transmission network of more than 8,200 circuit-miles.

Acquisition of assets.—Expenditures in 1954 for assets serving navigation, flood control, and power are estimated at $299,775,000, of which $280,101,000 represents new obligations ($243,477,000 from appropriated funds and $36,624,000 from corporate funds) and $19,674,000 is for the liquidation of prior year obligations.

SUMMARY OF ESTIMATED OBLIGATIONS*Projects contributing to power supply:

Projects approved and under construction will increase the rated generating capacity of the TVA system, including plants of the Aluminum Company of America and Cumberland basin plants of the Department of the Army, from 3,859,910 kilowatts at June 30, 1952, to 9,576,385 kilowatts in the winter of 1955-56. The 1954 budget provides for attaining a rated capacity of 10,447,385 kilowatts by the end of 1956. The gross capability of all the generating units during the winter of 1956-57, assuming median water conditions, will be about 10,831,000 kilowatts. Capacity requirements at that time are expected to be about 10,500,000 kilowatts. This figure is made up of an estimated peak load of 9,600,000 kilowatts, including provisions for expected load growth, plus allowances for scheduled maintenance, for a reasonable minimum operating reserve to take care of unforeseen machine outages, system regulation, and the effects of draw-down of storage reservoirs. The proposed system will provide a small reserve of about 3 percent for additional national defense and other load developments which may occur before this new capacity can be completed.

To achieve this increase in capacity, TVA proposes to begin construction in 1954 of 810,000 kilowatts of new generating capacity, and assumes that 36,000 kilowatts at the Cheatham project on the Cumberland River will be installed by the Department of the Army before the end of 1956. The new TVA capacity is planned to include one additional unit at Kingston steam plant (180,000 kilowatts), one additional unit at John Sevier steam plant (180,000 kilowatts), and two units at a new steam plant (450,000 kilowatts). The estimate of $52,321,000 for transmission facilities includes $16,915,000 to be financed from appropriated funds and $35,406,000 to be financed from corporate funds.

Two major items are included in the estimate of $1,858,000 for additions and improvements at completed projects. An estimate of $665,000 for malaria control construction provides primarily for completion of permanent shoreline improvement work in Gunterville and starting similar work in Kentucky reservoir. An estimate of $794,000 is included for replacing the operating mechanisms of the 58 spillway gates at Wilson Dam; the total job will cost about $1,000,000 and will be completed in 1955.

The estimate of $568,000 for navigation facilities includes $252,000 for continuation of design work for a new navigation lock at Wilson Dam, $86,000 for navigation channel improvements and $230,000 for other navigation facilities. The existing Wilson locks constitute the worst bottleneck on the Tennessee River. The estimate for investigations for future projects provides for the planning of additional power and multipurpose facilities in the Tennessee Valley.

Navigation operations.—Improvements on the Tennessee River system provide a 9-foot channel from the mouth of the river to Knoxville, Tenn., a distance of 650 miles. The Tennessee Valley is thereby linked with the 6,000-mile inland waterways system extending from the Great Lakes to the Gulf of Mexico. The public is making increased use of the navigation channel. In 1933 freight movements on the Tennessee amounted to only 32,600,000 ton-miles, most of it the short haul of local products. In calendar year 1951 this ton-mile figure had increased eighteenfold. Direct savings in transportation costs to shippers in 1951 were about $8,000,000.

TVA's job in navigation consists of (1) providing adequate facilities on the river; (2) encouraging and assisting private development of terminal facilities and barge line services; and (3) working with shippers, carriers, and others in developing full use of the river. As shown in statement B, the net expense of navigation operations was $2,670,453 in 1952 and is estimated at $2,747,000 in 1953 and $2,822,000 in 1954.

Flood control operations.—The dams on the Tennessee River and its tributaries provide 11,720,000 acre-feet of storage for flood control at the beginning of the flood season. At Chattanooga, one of the Valley's major flood problems, the system has saved over $45,000,000 in flood damage. Communities and agricultural land below the mouth of the Tennessee on the lower Ohio and Mississippi Rivers are also benefited. When high flows occur in the Tennessee River, the TVA system is able to reduce flood heights at Cairo, Ill., from 2 to 3½ feet, and its operation is an important factor in the planning of the Mississippi River levees between Cairo and the mouth of the Red River.

Program activities include collection and analysis of flood data; studies to improve operations of the existing system; studies of potential projects which could affect flood control on the Tennessee River system; and technical advice and assistance to State and local governments to encourage their assumption of responsibility for solution of local urban and rural flood control problems. As shown in statement B, the net expense of flood control operations was $2,261,218 in fiscal year 1952 and is estimated at $2,370,000 in 1953 and $2,502,000 in 1954.

Power operations.—TVA power operations are confined to generation and transmission of power and sales at wholesale to local distribution systems and to certain industries and Government agencies requiring large amounts of power. As of June 30, 1952, power was distributed by 146 local public agencies to more than 1,225,000 ultimate consumers. The installed capacity of the system was 3,859,910 kilowatts, including plants of the Army and the Aluminum Co. of America operated as a part of the TVA system. Total system input in fiscal year 1952 was nearly 23,500,000,000 kilowatt-hours and is estimated at about 27,500,000,000 kilowatt-hours for 1953 and about 37,400,000,000 kilowatt-hours for 1954.

Net income from power operations (before interest charges) was $25,839,447 in 1952 and is estimated at $17,964,000 for 1953 and $36,403,000 for 1954. The return on power investment in 1952 was 4.7 percent. A return of less than 3 percent is expected in 1953, reflecting the record low streamflow during the first half of the year. In 1954, assuming average streamflow conditions, the return on the investment is expected to be about 4 percent—the average experienced over the 19 years of TVA's power operations. Below-normal streamflow conditions in the latter part of 1953 or in 1954 would reduce substantially the net income projected.

FERTILIZER AND MUNITIONS PROGRAM

Chemical laboratories at Wilson Dam, Ala., and production facilities at Wilson Dam, Ala., and Columbia, Tenn., form a center of research for the development of new or improved fertilizers and processes for their manufacture. Use of the facilities for national defense takes precedence over other uses.

Acquisition of assets.—The estimate of $1,773,000 provides for completing construction of nitric phosphate production facilities started in 1953; for prospecting and acquisition of phosphate lands; and for construction work necessary to complete process developments under way and permit continued operation of present facilities. The nitric phosphate facilities will demonstrate to industry an important combination fertilizer process which does not draw upon scarce sulfur supplies.

Fertilizer and munitions development.—Appropriated fund expense in 1954 is estimated at $2,529,000 and covers the cost of research on products and processes, basic agronomic research, and farm test-demonstrations. Corporate fund expense (the cost of manufacturing and distributing fertilizer and munitions) is estimated at $16,321,000. Income from the sale of fertilizer and munitions is estimated at $21,215,000. After provision for depreciation, total expense is estimated at $20,134,000 and net income at $1,081,000.

Research on products and processes consists of (1) exploratory tests, background research, and applied research at the laboratory level; and (2) process development. The latter includes technical and economic evaluation of research results; development of unit operations; design, construction, and operation of pilot plants; improvement of design features and operating procedures of demonstration or large-scale plants; and preparation of engineering and economic studies to facilitate application of the findings by other agencies and industries. Knowledge gained in fertilizer research is applied also to the related field of munitions. Continued attention will be given to processes for the manufacture of high-analysis combination fertilizers and to other processes that do not require scarce sulfuric acid. Expenditures for these activities in 1954 are estimated at $1,315,000.

The 1954 estimate of $224,000 for basic agronomic research covers laboratory, greenhouse, plot, and field tests to determine under controlled conditions the relative efficiency of TVA fertilizers. This work is carried out in cooperation with State experiment stations in the seven Valley States and four other States.

Estimated direct cost of fertilizer production and distribution is $15,678,000 for 1954, compared to the 1953 estimate of $15,753,000. Income is estimated at $21,014,000 in 1954 and $20,399,000 in 1953. TVA builds and operates large-scale manufacturing units to serve one or more of the following purposes: (1) To demonstrate the technical and commercial feasibility of a new or improved fertilizer process and to encourage its adoption by industry; (2) to supply fertilizers for test-demonstration use on practical farms; (3) to produce new fertilizers in quantities sufficient for widespread introduction to farmers; (4) to produce fertilizers needed to aid the achievement of improved systems of fertilization and of national agricultural production goals; and (5) to supply munitions materials for national defense. Fertilizers produced in excess of amounts required for farm test-demonstrations and other TVA programs are sold to farmers through cooperative and industry distributors for uses designed to improve systems of fertilization. The distributors furnish TVA data concerning fertilizer distribution costs and farmer acceptance. Estimated fertilizer production in 1954 is as follows: Concentrated superphosphate (48 percent P205), 145,000 tons; calcium metaphosphate (62 percent P205), 40,000 tons; fused tricalcium phosphate (27 percent P205), 40,000 tons; and ammonium nitrate (33.5 percent N), 195,000 tons.

Farm test-demonstrations will be conducted in 25 States in 1954 with an estimated 3,450 farms participating. Expense is estimated at $1,074,000 ($883,000 from appropriated funds and $191,000 from corporate funds). Income from farmer payments for fertilizer is estimated at $191,000. Major objectives of the program are introduction to farmers of TVA's experimental fertilizers and demonstration of their effective uses. Another objective relating specifically to the Tennessee Valley is the improvement of agriculture, forestry, and watershed-stream-flow relationships.

RESOURCE DEVELOPMENT PROGRAM

The 1954 estimate for resource development is $2,627,000 ($2,607,000 from appropriated funds and $20,000 from corporate funds), compared to the 1953 budget of $2,488,000.

The estimate of $250,000 for agricultural resource development provides for economic analyses of Valley agriculture, soil surveys, agricultural engineering research and demonstrations, research on forage crops and animal industry, and agricultural development in problem areas.

The aim of the forest resource development program is to develop full production and use of the Valley's forest resource consistent with the needs of watershed protection. The 1954 estimate of $654,000 provides for research and demonstrations in forest management, reforestation, forest protection, and wood utilization.

The major purpose of TVA's program of tributary watershed development is to assist State and local governments in taking initiative and responsibility for resource development in small tributary watersheds. The 1954 estimate of $719,000 provides for research to determine the effects of changes in land use on the quality and behavior of water in the streams; continuation of demonstrations under way in the Chestuee and Beech River watersheds; and for surveys and reports to acquaint States and local groups with the nature of their watershed problems and suggest what might be done about them.

An estimate of $8,000 for mineral resource development provides for continuation of a cooperative regional minerals laboratory demonstration.

To aid in obtaining the fullest public use of its multi-purpose reservoirs, TVA carries on cooperative work in fish and game, stream sanitation, and recreation. These activities have stimulated the efforts of state and local agencies and have helped to resolve conflicts among the various uses of the reservoirs. The 1954 estimate is $286,000.

The 1954 estimate for industrial development assistance is $33,000. Requests for technical assistance are received from businessmen, from State and area development agencies, from communities, and from Federal defense establishments. Research is carried on to provide current data on local factors affecting industrial locations and to evaluate the effects on the region of specific types of industrial development.

Topographic mapping expenditures are estimated at $300,000 for 1954. A substantial portion of the time of TVA's mapping organization is being devoted to reimbursable mapping for the Department of the Army.

The 1954 estimate for analysis of regional business and government activity is $147,000. Data on current actions of local business and local government, and information on the regional economy and its trends are necessary in the planning and execution of the TVA program.

GENERAL SERVICE ACTIVITIES

Acquisition of assets.—An estimate of $1,265,000 for general facilities covers routine replacement of transportation, office, and other equipment used generally throughout TVA activities. A substantial portion of the estimate is for purchase (mostly replacements) of trucks and other heavy mobile equipment.

Reimbursable services.—The 1954 estimate of $12,052,000 covers services furnished at the request and expense of other agencies. Major items included are operation of a classified defense facility; mapping services for the Army, the United States Geological Survey, and the Department of Agriculture; and construction of a bridge across Chickamauga Dam for the Public Roads Administration and the State of Tennessee.

ADMINISTRATIVE AND GENERAL EXPENSES

Administrative and general expenses as recorded and reported by TVA are those expenses which are common to all of TVA's organizations and functions. They consist primarily of costs of administration and management services which have been centralized in the interest of economy and convenience. These expenses are distributed to the various programs and projects and are included in the program estimates shown on statement A. A summary of the expenses and the distribution are shown in schedule B-5. The 1954 estimate is $4,412,000, compared to the 1953 budget of $4,221,000. Increased estimates for administrative and general expenses are necessary to meet the increased administrative workload associated with the expanded power construction and operations program.

FINANCING OPERATIONS

Funds applied to financing.—Payments to the Treasury scheduled for 1954 include $5,000,000 for retirement of bonds held by the Treasury, an additional payment of $15,000,000 against the investment in the power program, and $5,288,000 from miscellaneous receipts originating in programs other than power.

As of June 30, 1952, the total interest-bearing investment was $39,000,000 and consisted of bonds sold to and held by the United States Treasury. After budgeted repayments of $5,000,000 in 1953 and $5,000,000 in 1954, the balance outstanding as of June 30, 1954, will be $29,000,000.

Schedule C-1, "Repayment of investment in power program," summarizes the status of repayments of the Treasury's investment in power program assets under the provisions of title II of the Government Corporations Appropriation Act, 1948.

Funds provided by financing.—The 1954 estimate of $268,146,000 consists of the requested appropriation of $254,355,000 and a decrease in Treasury cash of $13,791,000 resulting from the liquidation of commitments incurred in prior years.

OPERATING RESULTS AND RETAINED EARNINGS

Statement B summarizes the estimated income and expenses of the various TVA programs. The major source of income is the power operations program. Income from power operations in 1954 is estimated at $144,301,000, an increase of $38,620,000 over 1953. Power expenses are estimated at $108,491,000 in 1954, compared to $88,397,000 in 1953. Net power income is estimated at $35,810,000 in 1954, compared to $17,284,000 in 1953. Cumulative net income from power operations is estimated at $260,240,574 by the end of 1954. The estimated net expense of other programs in 1954 is $6,924,000 and the cumulative net expense by the end of 1954 is estimated at $154,037,634.

Direct Loans to Veterans and Reserves, Veterans Administration—Con.

(38 U. S. C. 694L, m; 12 U. S. C. 1747l (o)). Public Law 139, Eighty-second Congress, extended the authority to make loans to June 30, 1953.

The fund has authority to borrow from the United States Treasury for its capital requirements. This authority was increased to $277,977,603 by Public Law 325, Eighty-second Congress. Interest is payable at rates determined by the Secretary of the Treasury. Interest at 1% percent was paid during fiscal year 1952 and at 2 percent during fiscal year 1953.

Proceeds of the sale of loans and repayments of loans are available for making additional loans. Expenses of appraisals and foreclosures are met from interest income.

Retained earnings are expected to reach $10,726,657 by June 30, 1954.

Not later than June 30, 1954, all sums in the fund and all moneys received thereafter in repayment of loans will be deposited into the Treasury except the amount determined to be necessary for purposes of liquidation.

Administrative expenses are borne by the appropriation, "Administration, medical, hospital and domiciliary facilities."

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund is used to guarantee premiums becoming due on commercial private life-insurance policies held by servicemen while they are in service and for 2 years after discharge. The Government guarantees the repayment of any indebtedness not liquidated by the insured himself, but any payment by the Government becomes a debt owed the Government by the insured (50 U. S. C. 510-590; 50 U. S. C. App. 464). A rescission of $1,000,000 of the present $2,203,000 capital of the fund will be proposed during 1953.

Expenses of this activity are borne by the appropriation "Administration, medical, hospital and domiciliary services."

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The laws enforced by the Administration are designed to protect consumers against adulteration and misbranding of foods, drugs, cosmetics, therapeutic devices, and caustic poisons. Control is exercised through factory and warehouse inspections and examinations of articles entering interstate commerce or offered for importation.

An increase of $63,000 is proposed for 1954, primarily for studies to improve sampling techniques, and investigations into illegal sale of dangerous drugs without prescriptions.

1. General enforcement operations.—Inspections of domestic plants and examinations of interstate shipments are planned according to the relative incidence and seriousness of probable violations. This involves about 80,000 manufacturers, shippers, and warehouses. In addition, about 55,000 drug stores are subject to the prohibition against sale of dangerous drugs without prescriptions. Violations are reported to the Department of Justice with appropriate recommendations for seizure or other court action. For less serious violations, informal warnings are given and many corrections are effected without resort to court action. Voluntary compliance with the law is promoted by every proper means. Standards of identity, quality, fill of container, and tolerances for poisonous substances in foods are promulgated after investigations and formal hearings. All enforcement operations, both import and domestic, are necessarily restricted and are performed on a highly selective basis.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Affiliated with Howard University as the teaching hospital for the university's medical school, this hospital furnishes patient care and trains physicians at the undergraduate level, nurses, and other professional and technical personnel.

Operation of the hospital is financed by receipts from pay patients, reimbursements from the District of Columbia and nearby counties for care of indigent residents, and a direct appropriation. A net increase of $335,250 proposed for 1954 is primarily for two nonrecurring major renovation projects.

1. Maintenance and operation, in-patient services—The decline in patient load reflects a drop in the District of Columbia indigent patient load.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This university, primarily for the education of Negroes, consists of an undergraduate college, a graduate school offering the master's degree, and eight professional schools. Federal funds provide approximately 56 percent of the operating costs.

Obligations for 1954 are estimated to be $5,167,764, of which $2,750,000 are appropriated funds. This is an increase of $75,000 as compared with 1953. Principal increases are proposed for (1) repairs to the boilers in the heat, light, and power plant which serves Howard University and Freedmen's Hospital, and (2) installation of wiring equipment and transformer vaults for conversion of electric current furnished Freedmen's Hospital.

1. General administration.—The university is administered by a private board of trustees and staff of officers.

2. Resident instruction and departmental research.—The staff carries on instructional and research activities. During the school year 1951–52, an equivalent of 3,440 full-time students attended the university. Full-time equivalent enrollments for 1952–53 and 1953–54 are estimated at 3,140.

3. General library.—The library serves the needs of 10 schools and colleges, and supervises, in part, the professional collections on the campus.

4. Operation and maintenance of the physical plant.—The plant consists of over 40 buildings on the 59 acres of campus.

5. Auxiliary enterprises and noneducational expenses.—Dormitories, dining halls, cafeteria, book stores, and athletic program are largely self-supporting.

PUBLIC HEALTH SERVICE

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The Service attends to the Federal interest in safeguarding public health by: Providing grants-in-aid and technical and consultative services to States for such public health services as the prevention and control of disease, and hospital planning and construction; conducting scientific research and investigations in biology and medicine; enforcing foreign and interstate quarantine regulations; collecting and disseminating information on health problems; and providing medical and hospital care for legal beneficiaries. To perform these major functions the Service is organized into four bureaus: The National Institutes of Health in the research and investigations area; the Bureau of State Services in the Federal-State cooperative health program area; the Bureau of Medical Services in the medical care, hospital, and foreign quarantine area; and the Office of the Surgeon General in the area of administration, formulation of general policy and planning.

C., ch. 6A) (hereinafter referred to as the Act), and other Acts, including expenses for active commissioned officers in the Reserve Corps and for not to exceed one thousand five hundred commissioned officers in the Regular Corps; as follows: (Labor-Federal Security Appropriation Act, 1953.)

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

In fiscal year 1952, there were 182,000 cases of syphilis reported in the United States and 254,000 cases of gonorrhea. These figures indicate that the decline in the number of cases reported, which began in 1947, is continuing. The policy of concentrated activity among known high-prevalence groups and around defense industry and military areas will be continued in 1954 in an effort to maintain the present rate of decline.

1. Grants to States for general venereal-disease control, case finding, and treatment.—The decrease estimated for 1954 reflects the declining incidence and the discontinuance of in-patient treatment made possible by improved treatment techniques permitting treatment of venereal diseases on an out-patient basis.

2. Direct operations—(a) Clinical and laboratory research.—Research activities are directed toward the development, standardization, and improvement of diagnostic tests, developing more efficient therapy for stages of syphilis which do not respond to current therapy, and toward artificial means of producing immunity.

(b) Technical assistance to States.—Assistance is rendered to States and localities through technical consultation, statistical services, development of cooperative techniques of case finding and treatment, preparation of scientific information, and in the conduct of field studies and demonstrations.

(c) Administration.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Grants to States for general health.—Grants are made to assist the States in supporting local health services and providing basic health services, such as public-health nursing, laboratory services, vital statistics, sanitary engineering, and control of communicable diseases.

2. Direct operations—(a) Technical assistance to States.—Assistance is rendered to the States through consultative services, the conduct of training programs, and the conduct of special studies of chronic diseases and impairments.

(b) Vital statistics.—Statistical data are collected, analyzed, and disseminated on births, deaths, stillbirths, illnesses, marriages, and divorces. The proposed increase in 1954 is required to reduce the backlog of work which by end of fiscal year 1953 will result in a 12-month delay in release schedules.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This program supplements and supports the activities of States and localities in the control of the basic essentials of individual and community life—air, water, food, and shelter.

1. Industrial hygiene.—Assistance is provided Federal, State, and local agencies and industry in preventing and controlling occupational hazards and diseases, including research and investigation on injurious and objectionable chemical, physical, and biological agents.

2. Environmental research activities.—This includes the basic and applied research and investigations into environmental health problems carried on at Cincinnati, Ohio. The estimate provides for an expanded program of research and for the services and maintenance required for operation of the Environmental Health Center building which will open in 1953.

3. Water-supply and water-pollution control.—This consists of technical assistance to States, other public bodies, and industry; development of comprehensive river-basin programs; and field studies and research for the purpose of reducing water pollution. A national summary report and summary reports for 15 regions covering the Nation have been completed. Of a total of 260 detailed basin reports, 22 have been completed, 60 will be completed in 1953, and 120 are scheduled for completion in 1954.

4. Radiological health services.—These services consist of the collection, analysis, and dissemination of information about, and research into, the hazards of handling and disposing of radioactive substances and the training of personnel to assist in the solution of radiological public-health problems.

5. General sanitation activities.—Consultative and technical assistance in sanitation problems concerning water, milk, shellfish, and other foods are furnished to State and local authorities. Compliance with interstate quarantine regulations is obtained through inspections and the development of sanitation guides and standards.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The seven research institutes of the National Institutes of Health are the National Cancer Institute, the National Institute of Mental Health, the National Heart Institute, the National Institute of Dental Research, the National Institute of Arthritis and Metabolic Diseases, the National Microbiology Institute, and the National Institute of Neurological Diseases and Blindness. Funds are provided by this appropriation and by separate appropriations for each of the above institutes.

The total of all institute appropriations requested is $70,000,000, an increase of $11,197,000, compared with 1953. The increase is principally for additional support of research in universities and other nonprofit institutions and for the Clinical Center and related activities which will operate in 1954 on a full-year basis although the hospital will not utilize the total bed capacity.

This appropriation finances research in various basic problems in public health, medical, biological, and chemical research not included in the seven institute appropriations mentioned above.

1. Grants for research and training.—These grants are made to medical schools and other institutions for research and to individuals for research training purposes. The 1953 funds are supporting 478 research projects and 63 research fellowships. In 1954, the increase in research grant funds will support an additional 27 research projects. Fellowships will be supported below the 1953 level.

2. Direct operations—(a) Research.—The research services provided centrally for all institute research programs are financed through reimbursements from each institute's appropriation. The additional costs shown for 1954 over 1953 are all to meet increased service requirements relating to the expanded joint laboratory-clinical research program to be conducted in connection with the new Clinical Center.

(b) Other direct operations—(1) Review and approval of research and training grants.—Funds are provided directly by this appropriation for administration of the research and training grant program. (2) Administration.—This subactivity is financed through reimbursements from the several institute appropriations. These operations comprise the over-all program direction and central administration of the total program of the National Institutes of Health. All additional costs in 1954 over 1953 are required in connection with the operation of the Clinical Center and related workload.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Grants—(a) Grants for research and training.—These grants are made to medical and dental schools and other institutions for research projects and to individuals for training purposes. Funds for 1953 are supporting approximately 430 research projects, 178 research fellowships, 139 stipends to graduate physicians for specialized graduate training, and teaching grants to each of 79 4-year medical schools and to each of 50 dental and 2-year medical schools. The estimate provides an increase for grants to medical schools and other institutions for construction of research facilities.

(b) Grants for detection, diagnosis, and other control services.—Funds are provided to States and Territories on a formula basis for strengthening State and local clinical and educational services.

(c) Grants for special control projects.—Grants are made to local health agencies, universities, hospitals, and nonprofit professional organizations to develop, initiate, or establish improved types of cancer control techniques and devices.

2. Direct operations—(a) Research.—Research is conducted in biology, biochemistry, biophysics and radiology, general medicine and surgery, pathology, chemotherapy, and epidemiology. The increase in 1954 over 1953 is to operate, on a full-year basis, a broader clinical research program through utilization of the Clinical Research Center facilities.

(b) Other direct operations.—These operations include consultative services to States and other organizations, review of applications for research grants, fellowships, and teaching stipends, and general program direction and administration.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Grants—(a) Grants for research and training.—These grants are made to medical schools and other institutions for research projects and to individuals for training purposes. The 1953 funds are supporting approximately 114 research projects, 74 fellowships, 175 graduate teaching grants, 589 training stipends, and undergraduate teaching grants in 40 medical schools. In 1954, the increase in funds will support an additional 50 research projects, 26 graduate teaching grants, and 111 graduate training stipends. The estimate also provides an increase for grants to medical schools and other institutions for construction of research facilities.

(b) Grants for detection, diagnosis, and other preventive and control services.—These grants are made to the States and Territories to initiate and expand mental health programs.

2. Direct operations—(a) Research.—Research, laboratory and clinical, is conducted in chemistry, physiology, morphology, neuropsychiatric studies (including narcotic and barbiturate addiction), socio-environmental studies, and experimental and clinical psychology. The increase in 1954 over 1953 provides for the continuing development of the clinical investigations program through utilization of the Clinical Research Center facilities and a small increase for laboratory research.

(b) Other direct operations.—These operations include review of applications for grants; promotion of training; consultative services to States; demonstrations and field studies in developing preventive and out-patient services; and general program direction and administration.

1. Grants for research and training.—These grants are made to medical schools and other institutions for research projects and to individuals for training purposes. The 1953 funds are supporting approximately 140 research projects, 36 research fellowships, 20 traineeships, and 6 training grants. In 1954, an increase is requested in grants for research, teaching and training, and construction of research facilities.

(b) Other direct operations.—These operations include review of applications for research grants and fellowships, and general program direction and administration.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Public-health methods and reports.—This program is primarily concerned with studies of public health practice and economics, and with health trends. It includes (1) interpretation of data which have been collected by the Service, by other Federal, State; or local government agencies, or by nongovernment agencies, to identify and evaluate current and future health problems and needs, to measure the available facilities, health personnel, supplies and organizations against those needs, and to provide a factual foundation for public health programs; (2) trans- lation of these data into forms useful to other Federal, State, and local government and nongovernment organizations; (3) development and testing of methods of measuring the incidence of illness and the costs of public health services and the provision of advisory service in these areas to other government and nongovernment organizations; and (4) publishing of Public Health Reports, the official journal of the Public Health Service.

2. International health activities.—These activities consist of (1) developing and presenting the United States position on international health matters, coordinating the technical work involved in fulfillment of United States commitments, and providing United States representation at international conferences and meetings on health matters; (2) serving as a clearing house within the Federal Government for information on health conditions and needs in other countries.

3. Management and central services.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The 1950 appropriation act provided $100,000 for developing plans and specifications for the erection of a dental research building on the grounds of the National Institutes of Health in Bethesda, Md. This would be a separate building, in addition to the principal building for the Clinical Center. Review of space requirements of the National Institutes of Health has indicated that the needs of the National Institute of Dental Research can be accommodated within the total space now in existence or under construction. It is proposed, therefore, to postpone this building project indefinitely.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Bureau administers the federally operated old-age and survivors insurance program as set forth in title II of the Social Security Act of 1935, as amended. The program provides partial protection to workers and their families against the economic hazards of old age and death. Tax contributions from employers, employees, and the self-employed are deposited in the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund, out of which benefit payments and administrative costs are paid.

Public Law 590, Eighty-second Congress, enacted July 18, 1952, amended the Social Security Act by (1) raising benefit payments, (2) providing wage credits for members of the Armed Forces serving after July 25, 1947, and prior to January 1, 1954, and (3) increasing the work clause from $50 to $75 per month. As a result workloads will be substantially increased in both 1953 and 1954 and will continue at a higher level in subsequent years. However, funds for the processing of the additional workloads in 1953 will be included in a supplemental Budget request.

1. Maintenance of accounts of employee earnings.—Eligibility for insurance benefits and the amount of benefits are based on wages reported by employers and self-employed individuals and recorded by the Bureau in individual accounts of earnings. The volume of work is not subject to internal control by the Bureau, but instead depends upon economic conditions, especially the level of employment. Although the workload has become relatively stabilized, it will continue to grow gradually each year as the level of employment increases.

Earnings items received—1952, 218,437,560; 1953 estimate, 225,400,000; 1954 estimate, 232,024,000.

2. Development, determination, and certification for payment of claims for insurance benefits.—Claims for insurance benefits are received from prospective beneficiaries in the Bureau's field offices. When a claimant's rights to benefits have been established, the Bureau authorizes the Treasury Department to pay the initial benefit. The higher level of claims in 1954 reflects the more liberalized provisions contained in the 1950 and 1952 amendments to the Social Security Act, and the gradually increasing number of eligible persons reaching age 65.

Total program.....	1, 361, 364	1, 614, 200	1, 694, 000

3. Recertification monthly of awarded claims.—The beneficiary roll requires constant revision so that checks may be mailed promptly each month to beneficiaries whose entitlement continues and checks discontinued when entitlement ceases. The number of beneficiaries on the rolls will increase sharply in 1953 and 1954, and thereafter grow larger for many years until the program reaches maturity.

Benefit payments to beneficiaries under the program continue to rise with the increasing number of persons on the roll and the higher average benefits.

4. Hearings and appeals.—Individuals whose claims for benefits are disallowed have the right to appeal. The expense of holding hearings before referees, and reviewing the decisions are charged to this activity. The workload, while not large, is significant in protecting the individual's rights.

Limitation or estimate (obligations incurred)—1954, $1,500,000.

OBLIGATIONS BY ACTIVITIES

Purchase of land, preparation of plans and specifications, and for construction—1954, $1,500,000.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Funds requested for expenditure from the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund are for beginning construction of an office building, including acquisition of land and preparation of plans and specifications, to house the central establishment of the Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance. Space presently occupied, located in six scattered buildings in Baltimore, Md., and one building in Wilkes-Barre, Pa., are totally inadequate and restrictive to the extent that many costly operating practices have had to be adopted. This expenditure is designed as an economy measure which would conserve the assets of the trust fund, since the savings in rentals and operating costs to be secured through properly designed space would be substantially more than the annual amortized cost of the new building. This expenditure will not involve any charge against general revenues.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Grants for old-age assistance, aid to dependent children, aid to the blind, and aid to the permanently and totally disabled are made to States that have plans for these programs approved by the Federal Security Agency. Fifty-three jurisdictions, including all the States, the District of Columbia, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands, have approved plans for old-age assistance; 52 jurisdictions have plans for aid to dependent children; and by 1954 it is anticipated that 52 jurisdictions will have approved plans for aid to the blind and 47 jurisdictions will have approved plans for aid to the permanently and totally disabled, the new category for which Federal grants were made available under the Social Security Act amendments of 1950, Public Law 734, Eighty-first Congress. Under the Social Security Act amendments of 1952, Public Law 590, Eighty-second Congress, additional Federal funds were made available to all jurisdictions, except Puerto Rico and the Virgin Islands, by raising the maximum on the amount of the payments in which the Federal Government shares and by changing the formula for computing the Federal share. The maximums on individual assistance payments subject to Federal participation were raised from $50 to $55 per month in the adult categories; and for aid to dependent children, from $27 for the first child, $18 for each additional child, and $27 for a needy adult relative with whom any dependent child is living, to $30, $21, and $30, respectively, per month. The Federal share in the adult categories was increased from three-fourths of the first $20 of the average monthly assistance payment to four-fifths of the first $25, plus one-half the remainder; and in aid to dependent children, from three-fourths of the first $12 of the average monthly assistance payment per recipient, including the needy relative, to four-fifths of the first $15, plus one-half the remainder. These changes, which became effective on October 1, 1952, and expire on September 30, 1954, will be in effect for the entire fiscal year 1954, in contrast to only three-quarters of the fiscal year 1953.

For 1954, the total amount of Federal, State, and local expenditures for assistance and administration is estimated at $2,338,490,000, of which $1,350,000,000 represents the Federal share. The appropriation request of $1,340,000,000 is $10 million less than the estimated Federal share, because the States will have available for expenditure $10 million, representing the Federal share of collections and adjustments for prior years. The appropriation for public assistance grants for 1953 was $1,000,000,000; based on the most recent program trends, it is estimated that a supplemental appropriation of $340,000,000 will be necessary. The need for a supplemental appropriation for 1953 is due in part to the additional cost of the 1952 amendments and in part to the fact that the amount appropriated for 1953 would have been insufficient to meet the Federal share of the cost of these programs even under the former basis of Federal financial participation.

Of the total Federal share for 1954, $917,500,000 is for old-age assistance, $318,640,000 for aid to dependent children, $35,522,000 for aid to the blind, and $78,338,000 for aid to the permanently and totally disabled. Program detail supporting these estimates is given below.

1. Payments to recipients.—The average monthly number of recipients, average monthly payment per recipient, total expenditures for assistance payments, and percent from Federal funds, by program, for the fiscal year 1954 are estimated as follows:

Program	Average monthly number of recipients	Average monthly payment per recipient	Expenditures for assistance payments from Federal, State, and local funds
			Amount	Percent from Federal funds
(a) Old-age assistance.....	2,498,000	$49.85	$1,494,304,000	58.6
(b) Aid to dependent children.....	1,722,000	24.30	502,135,000	58.5
(c) Aid to the blind.....	99,000	53.75	63,855,000	52.0
(d) Aid to the permanently and totally disabled.....	198,000	51.85	123,196,000	57.3

2. State and local administration.—The grants to States include 50 percent of the administrative costs that are found by the Federal Security Agency to be necessary for the proper and efficient administration of the State public assistance programs. State and local personnel engaged in the administration of these programs is estimated to number about 44,000 in 1954. Total salaries and other expenses for administration for the four programs combined are estimated at $155,000,000, of which the Federal share at 50 percent is $77,500,000. The estimated distribution of total costs by program is as follows:

Program	Amount (Federal, State, and local funds)
Old-age assistance.....	$85,000,000
Aid to dependent children.....	50,000,000
Aid to the blind.....	4,600,000

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Grants to States are provided for (1) maternal and child-health services, (2) crippled children's services, and (3) child-welfare services. The $32,600,000 estimated for 1954, together with unexpended balances from prior year appropriations, should enable the States to maintain their programs at about the 1953 level.

1. Maternal and child-health services.—The States must provide matching funds for one-half of the amount appropriated; the remainder is not matched and is distributed to the States on the basis of financial need of each for assistance in carrying out its plan. During 1954, the States will give particular attention to programs for premature babies, children with sight or hearing losses, school health services, and reducing the excessive maternal and infant mortality in several States.

2. Crippled children's services.—The States are required to provide matching funds for half of the amount appropriated; the remainder is not matched and is distributed to the States on the basis of the financial need of each for assistance in carrying out its plan. The estimate provides for continuation of special programs for children with such conditions as epilepsy, cerebral palsy, congenital heart disease, rheumatic fever.

3. Child-welfare services.—Grants aid States to establish, extend, and strengthen, especially in rural areas and other areas of special need, child-welfare services for the protection and care of homeless, dependent, and neglected children, and children in danger of becoming delinquent, and for the return of run-away children to their homes in other States. States are required to pay a part of the cost of such services, but the share is not specified.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund finances the provision of certain supplies, services, and equipment to programs of the Service. It is reimbursed from the appropriations supporting the programs benefited (42 U. S. C. 231). Currently, the supply depot at Perry Point, Md., serving primarily the Public Health Service hospitals, is the only operation financed by the fund. During 1954, it is proposed to bring under the fund similar operations at Bethesda, Md., serving the National Institutes of Health. An appropriation of $200,000 is requested to provide necessary working capital for these added operations.

The principal of the fund presently consists of $250,000 in appropriations and $707,326 in donated assets. This would increase to $450,000 in appropriations and $1,807,326 in donated assets under the proposal to add the National Institutes of Health operations.

BUSINESS-TYPE STATEMENTS

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Federal credit unions are cooperative associations organized for the purpose of promoting thrift and creating a source of credit for provident and productive purposes for their members. Beginning with fiscal year 1954, fees paid by Federal credit unions will defray operating costs of the program. In 1954, the Bureau is converting to a business-type budget. However, because the new supervision fee collected annually does not become available for operating expenses until the latter part of the fiscal year, the Bureau will require additional working capital until it can accumulate sufficient available funds to permit it to be self-financing as well as self-supporting. Hence there is included in the 1954 budget an appropriation request for additional working capital to be repaid with interest over a period of years.

The Bureau carries on three major activities: (1) Investigating and chartering new Federal credit unions; (2) supervising and guiding both new and established Federal credit unions, including making periodic examinations of their financial condition and operating practices; and (3) giving administrative direction to the foregoing activities.

Statistics relating to the activities of the Bureau in fiscal 1952 and estimates for 1953 and 1954 are shown below:

PROPOSED FOR LATER TRANSMISSION

Salaries and expenses, Office of Education (under existing legislation, 1953).—A supplemental estimate of $289,000 is included for 1953 to enable the Office of Education to carry out its responsibilities under the Veterans Readjustment Assistance Act of 1952.

ANALYSIS OF EXPENDITURES

Proposed supplemental appropriation		$289,000
Unliquidated obligations, start of year			$18,000
Unliquidated obligations, end of year		18,000
Expenditures are distributed as follows:
Out of current authorizations		271,000
Out of prior authorizations			18,000

Payments to school districts, Office of Education (under existing legislation, 1953).—An appropriation in the amount of $40,000,000 has been provided for the fiscal year 1953 for "Payments to school districts" under Public Law 874, approved September 30, 1950. Total requirements are estimated at $64,000,000 for that year. A supplemental estimate of $24,000,000 for 1953 is therefore proposed for later transmission.

Hospitals and medical care, Public Health Service (under existing legislation, 1953).—Public Law 411, Eighty-second Congress, directs the Surgeon General to make payments to the Territory of Hawaii for the care and treatment of persons afflicted with leprosy. On the bases of current operating costs and patient loads, a supplemental estimate of $642,000 will be required to finance the program through 1953.

Salaries and expenses, Bureau of Old-Age and Survivors Insurance, Social Security Administration (trust account) (under existing legislation, 1953).—Public Law 590, Eighty-second Congress (social security amendments of 1952), enacted July 18, 1952, provided for a number of changes in the Social Security Act, as amended. The principal changes were (1) an increase in the benefit formula of $5, or 12½ percent, whichever was larger, an increase in the minimum benefit payable to retired workers, and an increase in the maximum family benefit requiring the recomputation of the benefits of all individuals on the rolls September 1, 1952; (2) an increase in the retirement test from $50 to $75 a month; (3) credits for military service at $160 per month after July 25, 1947, and prior to January 1, 1954; and (4) the freezing of benefit rights for periods during which an individual was permanently and totally disabled. This latter provision, however, was suspended pending further action by Congress, leaving to the Bureau the task of making preliminary arrangements with the States as to the administration of this provision should it become effective and of supplying information to those covered by the system.

The effect of these amendments has been to increase the workloads of the Bureau substantially in 1953 and subsequent years. An increase of $4,360,000 for 1953 in the limitation upon the amount which may be expended from the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund for salaries and expenses is proposed for later transmission.

Grants to States for public assistance, Social Security Administration (under existing legislation, 1953).—A supplemental request of $340,000,000 is anticipated for 1953. The need for additional funds is due in part to the 1952 amendments which increased the Federal share of assistance payments.

CURRENT AUTHORIZATIONS

INTRODUCTORY STATEMENT

The Administration serves as the Federal Government's central agency for providing and controlling general "housekeeping" services including provision of office and general-purpose space and related services, supplying common-use commodities and equipment, custody of archival and semipermanent records, and promotion of effective management of real property, personal property, and records. Program operations in these three fields of management are grouped under three services, Public Buildings Service, Federal Supply Service, and the National Archives and Records Service. A fourth service provides procurement and custody of a stockpile of critical materials and foreign-aid procurement. Program operations are performed largely through 10 field offices.

Basic operations of the Administration are provided for in three "Operating expenses" appropriations, administrative support for which is provided for in an "Administrative operations" appropriation. Special and emergency programs such as construction of buildings, operation of supply warehouses, stockpiling of critical materials, provision of space for emergency agencies, and other operations are provided for in separate appropriations.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This appropriation provides for basic operations of the Administration which deal with acquisition, operation, and utilization of general-purpose space, and the maintenance, custody, management, and disposal of real property.

The appropriation request for 1954 of $121,000,000 is an increase of $19,953,970 over 1953. The increase is primarily the result of (1) inclusion of buildings management services previously performed for other agencies on a reimbursable basis; (2) partial restoration of previous level of buildings management, maintenance, and operation services; (3) improvement of the usefulness of depreciated buildings; and (4) preservation of industrial plants.

1. Buildings management.—Provision is made for management, operation, maintenance, and protection of 102,513,000 square feet of Government-owned and leased space, including repairs for 41,309,000 square feet of Government-owned space in the District of Columbia and adjacent area; operation of joint-use communication services; and other related buildings services. Additional requirements over 1953 result from (1) provision for 2,196,000 square feet of space previously leased and operated on a basis of reimbursement from other agencies; (2) improvement of the usefulness of depreciated buildings in the District of Columbia; and (3) partial restoration of previous levels of buildings maintenance and operation services.

2. Real property acquisition and utilization.—General purpose space is assigned and controlled and, where necessary, space is acquired by lease. Real property reported excess to the needs of Federal agencies is screened for further economical Federal use and, if not usable, is declared surplus. Sites acquired for future construction of Federal buildings are utilized and leased pending construction, real property is appraised, and real property management practices of Federal agencies are examined and improvements prescribed. Increased space utilization analyses and surveys proposed in 1954 will cover 100,000,000 square feet. Past experience indicates that these will save far more than the cost. The present objective is to reduce Nation-wide average office space occupancy from 103 to 101 square feet per person and nonoffice space to minimum requirements for agencies' program operations. The aggressive space utilization program has produced annual savings of $16.2 million through 1952.

3. National industrial reserve.—In cooperation with the defense agencies, a reserve of Government-owned industrial plants, machine tools, and industrial equipment is maintained. Protection and maintenance is estimated to be required on 19 plants as compared with 15 in 1953 and on 8,062 tons of machine tools as compared with 6,862. In addition, necessary layaway reprocessing at 16 plants is provided for 1954.

4. Surplus property management and disposal.—Real property declared surplus to the needs of Federal agencies is sold, leased, exchanged, or otherwise disposed of. It is estimated that $33 million will be covered into the Treasury from this activity in 1954.

5. Public utilities management.—Government-wide use of public utilities services, equipment, and rates are studied; contracts are renewed or renegotiated; and the Government is represented before Federal and State regulatory bodies to obtain utilities services at minimum cost. Provision is made for 1954 to extend these studies to cover new areas where the resulting savings will be many times the additional cost.

6. Buildings design and supervision.—All programs involving design, construction, and remodeling of buildings are centrally supervised by a nucleus technical staff.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Repairs, renovations, and improvements are made to 5,445 federally owned buildings outside the District of Columbia which were acquired at a cost of approximately $1,000,000,000 and contain over 104,000,000 gross square feet of floor space.

1. Minor repairs and improvements.—Normal minor repairs costing less than $25,000 each are made. Increasing age of the buildings and other factors have created a backlog of needed repairs. For 1954 it is proposed to restore this program to at least the pre-Korean level.

2. Major repairs and improvements.—Major renovations and improvements costing more than $25,000 each are made to selected buildings. The program for 1954 provides for some 70 projects at an average cost of $71,400 each.

3. Post-office work-space improvements.—A new program for improving working conditions in post-office work space is proposed following proof of resulting increases in economy and efficiency in postal operations from a pilot project at Richmond, Va. The preliminary program contemplated by the Post Office Department involves improvement of some 12,000,000 square feet of such space, and it is proposed to improve 4,000,000 square feet in initiating the program in 1954.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This appropriation provides for basic operations of the Administration for the establishment on a Government-wide basis of efficient personal property management practices by prescribing inventory levels, standardization of quality, sizes and types of commodities purchased, and effective utilization of Government-owned property, and by providing contracts for volume purchases, freight traffic rate and routing services, and related operations. Increases over 1953, mainly for expanding property utilization, inspection, and traffic practices, are predicated upon demonstrable over-all savings to the Government in excess of the operating costs.

1. Supply management.—Policies, regulations, procedures, and instructions for improving the management of supplies and equipment by civilian agencies are developed and their application and installation coordinated through on-site surveys. Performance for 1954 provides for 66 surveys with installation of improved practices and frequent check-ups, as compared with 33 surveys programmed for 1953.

2. Supply schedule contracting.—Term contracts are established for volume purchasing against which agencies can place individual orders, at uniform price advantages, for commodities and services of common-use, wherever this method is advantageous to the Government.

3. Personal property utilization and disposal.—Personal property declared excess to the needs of Federal agencies is screened to achieve maximum utilization within the Government and obviate new purchases. The residue is either assigned for donation to State institutions or sold as surplus. Resulting economies are far in excess of costs. For 1954 provision is made to handle an estimated increase of $93 million of excess property due to shifts in agencies' programs, obsolescence, and improved supply management practices, and to reduce the backlog from $69 million at the end of 1953 to $61 million.

4. Commodity specifications.—Satisfactory standards of quality and other characteristics of common-use commodities are established by developing standard specifications for mandatory use in the Federal supply system. For 1954 provision is made for 600 new or revised specifications; tire testing is restored to a full year's operation to secure the maximum savings in tire purchases; and provision is made for accelerating standardization of types and sizes thus reducing the number of items to be stored and simplifying procurement.

5. Commodity cataloging.—Provision is made for cataloging the supply items of this agency and for coordinating its efforts and those of other civilian agencies with the Defense Supply Management Agency.

6. Supply schedule and excess property inspection.—Delivery of commodities of specified standards is ensured by lot and plant inspections, laboratory tests, and analysis of samples prior to acceptance. Inspections of equipment declared excess by other agencies are made to determine the exact nature and condition in order to foster effective utilization.

7. Traffic management.—To achieve economies in transportation of property, data on rates, classifications, packing and consolidations are furnished to civil agencies. For 1954 it is proposed to expand the level of service in the field offices in order to increase the coverage from 47 percent of the $400,000,000 annual civilian agency freight bill to 71 percent, with estimated savings of $5.7 million compared with $3.8 million in 1953.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This appropriation provides for the operation of the Nation-wide supply system whereby common-use commodities and services are sold to agencies at cost, from stores stock or by direct delivery, whichever is more economical. Costs of goods and services are initially financed from the revolving general supply fund, subject to reimbursement by the ordering agencies. Sales for 1954 are estimated at $218,200,000 as compared to $166,360,000 in 1953 and $129,375,717 in 1952. The increase programed in 1954 over 1953 reflects the progressively greater use of these supply facilities by the Department of Defense. While total sales in 1954 are 31.2 percent over 1953, operating costs increase a smaller percentage due to increased volume and operating improvements. Savings through volume purchasing, consolidated warehousing, and repair and motor pool services, are estimated at $25,620,000 in 1953 and $37,030,000 in 1954.

1. Direct order purchasing.—Commodities are procured for replenishment of store stocks and for direct delivery to agencies on a decentralized basis to increase participation of local and small-business firms, to reduce transportation costs, and to expedite deliveries. For 1954 it is estimated that line items purchased will increase by 31.2 percent over 1953 to maintain adequate inventory levels. Direct-delivery line items are estimated to increase 17.2 percent.

2. Stores operations.—Stocks of common-use commodities are received, warehoused, and sold at cost to agencies through a Nation-wide decentralized system of stores depots. While the increase in line items on stores sales for 1954 over 1953 is estimated at 20.7 percent, operating costs increase only 16.1 percent.

3. Direct order inspection.—Delivery of commodities of specified standards is insured by inspections at contractors' plants or General Services Administration stores depots, laboratory tests, and analyses of samples prior to acceptance. Compared to a 47-percent increase in workload over 1953, the cost of inspection increases only 34.3 percent.

4. Space and related costs.—It will be necessary to lease additional space to warehouse the expanding inventory and incur related nonrecurring expenses of alterations, improvements, and moving of stocks and equipment.

5. Equipment maintenance.—Supervision is provided over equipment pools and maintenance facilities operated under the general supply fund. Direct operating expenses of pools and facilities are financed from that fund and are recovered from agencies or activities utilizing the services.

6. Administrative operations.—Accounting, auditing and reporting, budget and personnel administration, stock control, legal, compliance, internal housekeeping, and business services are provided for the foregoing activities. Compared to an increase of 31.2 percent in sales over 1953, the increased cost of these services is only 13.6 percent.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This appropriation provides for basic operations of the Administration which deal with management of the Government's archives and records, including custody and administration of permanent records in the National Archives and of other noncurrent records in Federal records centers, surveillance of records management programs of Government agencies, and filing and publication of Federal laws and regulations. Increases for 1954 are mainly for administering an additional 750,000 cubic feet of records in Federal records centers and for the repair and rehabilitation of valuable paper and motion-picture records in the National Archives.

1. Records management.—Assistance is given to Federal agencies in improving records management practices through on-site surveys; promulgation of Government-wide policies, regulations, procedures and instructions, and technical advice. In 1954, scheduling the backlog of existing records for disposal will be completed; emphasis will be placed on the maintenance, organization, and use of records; and controls will be established over the creation of records.

2. Records centers.—Records of Federal agencies which must be retained for a period of time, but are not needed for current reference, are brought into and administered in records centers until disposal. By the end of 1953, eight regional records centers will be in operation and it is proposed to establish two more in 1954 to complete the organization of one center in each region. For 1954 it is proposed to administer 2,450,000 cubic feet of records, an increase of 750,000 cubic feet over 1953.

3. Microfilming records.—Permanent records selected because their contents must be preserved, but not necessarily in their original form, are microfilmed and the originals destroyed. For 1954 it is proposed to microfilm 13,600 cubic feet of records as compared with 3,620 in 1952 and 3,500 programmed for 1953. The program for 1954 will release some 13,400 cubic feet of valuable space in the Archives Building.

4. National Archives.—The permanently valuable records of the Government are selected, arranged, cataloged, preserved, and serviced in the Archives of the United States.

5. Federal Register.—The daily issue of the Federal Register, the Code of Federal Regulations, the United States Government Organization Manual, the slip laws, and the United States Statutes at Large are published within fixed deadlines.

6. Roosevelt Library.—Manuscripts, books, pictures and other historical materials received from Franklin D. Roosevelt and his contemporaries are preserved, cataloged, and serviced.

7. Nitrate film conversion.—Provision is made for initiating a program for preservation of historically valuable motion-picture film, which is rapidly deteriorating, by converting from the present chemically unstable nitrate base to a safety acetate base. The program for 1954 contemplates conversion of 3,000,000 running feet of film which is about one-third of the total requiring conversion at the expense of the National Archives and Records Service.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Basic operations under this appropriation include (1) policy direction for and coordination of all programs of the General Services Administration; and (2) accounting, auditing and reporting, budget and personnel administration, legal, compliance, information, and internal house-keeping services for activities under the three regular "Operating expenses" appropriations and under other miscellaneous funds where these services are not otherwise provided. Increases in 1954 are mainly to eliminate backlogs from 1953 and to provide services for the expanded operating programs on a current basis.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Refund and rebate payments due World War II contractors are made upon approval of claims presented under the Revenue Act of 1943 and the Renegotiation Act of 1951, as amended. The total program is estimated at some 3,800 claims with estimated payments of $45.7 million. Funds already made available leave some $9,000,000 to be appropriated for 1954, depending upon the actual rate and amounts of certifications by the Bureau of Internal Revenue and determinations of the Tax Court of the United States.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Under a total authorization of $40,000,000, sites are acquired and drawings and specifications prepared for future construction of public building projects. As a result of the international situation, the program is now limited to acquisition of sites and design of defense-connected projects and those needed to meet critical civilian requirements. Acquisition of 415 sites was authorized under the original program. As of June 30, 1952, 67 sites had been acquired and commitments made for 35 additional sites. The program contemplates (1) acquisition of three additional sites in fiscal 1953 and two in fiscal 1954, leaving 308 sites for future consideration, and (2) completion of design of 14 high-priority projects, leaving 446 for future determination.

REVOLVING AND MANAGEMENT FUNDS

Construction Services, Public Buildings, General Services Administration—

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Work performed in the acquisition of Federal building sites, preparation of drawings and specifications for the construction, remodeling, renovation, repair, and improvement of buildings, and the supervision of construction activities are financed through reimbursement from funds appropriated, transferred, or advanced to the General Services Administration (60 Stat. 259).

During 1952 the surplus of $225,624 on June 30, 1951, was decreased by $101,057 by reducing charges to individual projects and programs, leaving a surplus of $124,567 as of June 30, 1952. Reduced charges in 1953 will eliminate the surplus and thereafter subsequent adjustments will hold reimbursements as close as possible to actual expenses.

BUSINESS-TYPE STATEMENTS

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Purchase of materials and services required by the various Federal agencies and the District of Columbia, through a Nation-wide system of supply centers, is initially financed by the General Supply Fund which is reimbursed on a sales-at-cost basis by the agencies to which the services and materials are sold (41 U. S. C. 7a-c). Expenses for operating the fund are provided for under the appropriation "Expenses, General Supply Fund."

The estimates for 1953 and 1954 provide for increased use of the supply centers by the military establishments. Actual goods and services sold for 1952, and estimates for 1953 and 1954 follow:

1954 estimated..	111,700	103,300	1,525	1,675	218,200

The investment of the United States Government in the fund is $44,593,733, of which $44,000,000 represents direct appropriations and $593,733 donated assets. During 1952

$1,100,000 was appropriated for replacement of losses of inventory and equipment resulting from flood damage to the Federal Supply Center, Kansas City, Kans. This capital is utilized to provide adequate stocks of common-use items required by the agencies. It is also utilized to purchase administrative and operating equipment for use in carrying out the fund's objectives, subject to recovery by amortization charges to the using activities.

Any surplus arising out of the fund's operation, as determined by General Accounting Office audit, must be returned to the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts. Earnings from prior years' operations now on hand will be returned to the Treasury by the end of 1954, the payment next year being estimated at $500,000.

Buildings management fund (under existing legislation, 1953).—Under authority of Public Law 522, Eighty-second Congress, this fund will have been established and put into operation as of January 1, 1953. It will bring together in one place the financing of the large buildings-management operations of General Services Administration thereby facilitating comprehensive analysis of the entire operation; advance planning of fund, personnel, property, and other requirements; reduction and simplification of accounting practices and cost determinations. ## PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Office of the Administrator supervises and coordinates the housing programs and functions of the constituent units of the Agency and exercises direct responsibility for housing research; liquidation of public works advance planning; programming of defense housing and community facilities; slum clearance and urban redevelopment; loans for Alaska housing, college housing, and prefabricated housing; provision of housing and certain community facilities in critical defense housing areas under commitments made prior to June 30, 1953; and maintenance and disposition of certain Lanham Act public works; and secondary mortgage market activities of the Federal National Mortgage Association. The Administrator is also responsible for the management and disposition of publicly financed war and veterans housing constructed under the Lanham and related acts, operating responsibility for which has been delegated to the Public Housing Commissioner.

The total appropriation requested is $4,550,000. This represents a decrease of $56,000 compared with the amount appropriated for 1953. The appropriation request reflects continued progress in the programming of slum clearance and urban redevelopment and proposes a modest expansion in the housing research program. The expansion of these activities partially offsets substantial decreases in liquidating functions such as the programming of defense housing and community facilities and the liquidation of public works advance planning. Funds for administrative expenses for Alaska housing and housing loans for educational institutions, formerly appropriated under this head, are proposed to be authorized for 1954 under the head “Housing loan programs.”

1. Agency-wide program coordination and supervision.—Provision is made for coordination and general supervision of the programs and activities, and for staff assistance and services to the National Housing Council, of which the Administrator is chairman.

2. Housing research program.—Research is conducted in five major areas: (1) Capital cost of housing; (2) building codes and regulations; (3) residential design and construction practices; (4) housing credit and finance; and (5) market analysis and statistics. Provision is made for a limited resumption of contract research activities following sharp restrictions on this function in 1952 and 1953.

3. Public works advance planning.—Under the first and second planning programs, interest-free repayable advances were made for financing the cost of surveys, engineering investigations, and plans preliminary to the construction of local public works. Authority to make new advances has expired for both programs. Workloads involved in liquidation consist chiefly of completion or cancellation of approved project applications, and collection of advances outstanding on projects put under construction by local communities.

4. Programing of defense housing and community facilities.—Workload involved in completion and liquidation consists of: (1) Supervising completions of public and private defense housing construction; (2) administering occupancy preference requirements for defense workers and military personnel; (3) planning and supervising the reprograming of temporary housing facilities, including disposition of trailers and other temporary or relocatable units; and (4) maintaining liaison with military and other local defense officials on housing and community facilities problems.

5-10. For detail of activities for slum clearance and urban redevelopment, Alaska housing, housing loans to educational institutions, loans for prefabricated housing, and maintenance and disposition of project properties, see business enterprise and revolving funds. For detail of the defense community facilities program, see statement following authorization language.

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION

The Association is authorized under title III of the National Housing Act to provide a secondary mortgage market for Federal Housing Administration insured mortgages. This purpose was broadened after World War II to permit the Association to purchase Veterans Administration guaranteed home and farm mortgages.

Subsequent amendments to the basic legislation materially changed and broadened the Association's responsibilities. In addition to its role of assistance in strengthening and stabilizing private home financing the Association has been called upon to play an increasingly important part in assisting in the realization of special Government housing policies. The Association currently is giving direct support to the Government's efforts to encourage production of critically needed defense, military, and disaster area housing.

The Administrator, Housing and Home Finance Agency, holds the Association's $21 million capitalization and may borrow from the Treasury not to exceed $3.65 billion outstanding at any one time for the purchase of mortgages.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAMS

It is estimated that approximately 86,300 mortgages amounting to $719 million will be purchased during 1954. Out of this total, it is estimated that approximately 42,500 mortgages amounting to $355 million will be purchased in critical defense, military, and disaster areas. The purchase of mortgages covering nondefense housing will be confined to the amounts available from sales, repayments, foreclosures, etc., and from funds held for purchase under commitment contracts previously issued for cooperative housing. These purchases are estimated at approximately 43,800 in number and amount to $364 million.

A vigorous effort will be made to increase sales from an estimated $100 million in 1953 to $208 million in 1954. Emphasis will be placed on offering as large a number of mortgages as possible to local investors in areas in which the housing covered by such mortgages is located.

The heavy volume of purchases in 1954 and the smaller volume of sales will result in an increase in the amount of the association's mortgage portfolio from approximately $2,566 million at end of 1953 to $2,962 million at end of 1954.

It is estimated that there will be outstanding commitments of $631.9 million and an unused purchase authorization of $56.1 million at end of 1954.

Administrative expenses.—As a consequence of the increased workload attributable to the larger average mortgage portfolio, the special effort to be made to increase sales and a slight increase in the amount of mortgage purchases, there will be an increased requirement for administrative expenses. The increase reflected in the estimates, however, amounts to only 12.6 percent compared to an increase in the mortgage portfolio of 19.3 percent. The total estimated need for 1954 will be $4,760,000 as compared with $4,225,500 available for 1953.

FINANCING OPERATIONS

At the time of the transfer of the Federal National Mortgage Association from the Reconstruction Finance Corporation to the Housing and Home Finance Agency, the Administrator borrowed from the Treasury the sum of $1,127,718,313 to pay for the assets so transferred ($21 million of which covered the Association's capital stock and paid-in surplus).

There follows a table setting out the subsequent borrowings from the Treasury and repayments to the Treasury for 1951, 1952, 1953, and 1954 together with the total amount of the notes due at the end of each fiscal year.

	1951 actual	1952 actual	1953 estimate	1954 estimate
Borrowings from U. S. Treasury.....	$432.2	$513.9	$541.0	$463.1

Total notes due, end of fiscal year.....	1,549.0	2,037.9	2,528.1	2,916.2

The amounts available for repayments and dividends are of course contingent upon the estimated earnings of the Association. The estimated earnings for 1953 and 1954 have been calculated upon the assumption that the Association will continue to pay only 2 percent interest on its borrowings.

Dividends to United States Treasury.—In addition to principal repayments shown above the Association has periodically declared dividends to the United States Treasury from net earnings. Actual and projected dividends for the 3 years covered by the budget are as follows:

OPERATING RESULTS AND RETAINED EARNINGS

Net income for 1952 from corporate operations (statement B) was $28.5 million as compared to an estimated net income of about $34.5 million for 1953 and $41.3 million in 1954.

Retained earnings were $33.8 million at the end of 1952 and are estimated at $36.8 million for 1953 and $44.1 million for 1954. These retained earnings are reduced early in the succeeding fiscal year by the amount of the dividend payments as shown above.

Because of the high volume of mortgage purchases in 1952 the Board of Directors originally established a reserve for contingencies in the amount of $5 million. However, because of favorable operating experience for that year, the Board reduced this reserve in June of 1952, to $2 million.

FINANCIAL CONDITION

The peak volume of mortgage purchasing will be reached in 1954. This is directly attributable to the provisions in Public Law 531 for aid to military housing and housing in critical defense and disaster areas. Because of these heavy mortgage purchases the loans receivable will be almost $2.6 billion at end of 1953 and $3 billion at end of 1954 as compared with $1.6 billion and $2.1 billion at end of 1951 and 1952, respectively.

Undisbursed commitments to purchase mortgages which amounted to $266.2 million on June 30, 1952, are estimated to be $791.5 million on June 30, 1953, and $631.9 million on June 30, 1954.

MORTGAGE PURCHASE AUTHORITY

The mortgage purchase authority of $2.75 billion proved to be inadequate during 1952 and over-the-counter mortgage purchasing was discontinued on April 1, 1952. The result was that the only mortgages purchased after that date in 1952 were those covered by commitment contracts or from "set-asides" for defense, military, and disaster area housing. Public Law 531, Eighty-second Congress, which increased the mortgage purchase authority of the Association to $3.65 billion was approved on July 12, 1952.

It is now estimated that the unused purchase authority will be $56.1 million on June 30, 1954, as compared with $292.4 million on June 30, 1953 and $415.8 million on June 30, 1952. (See statement C-1.)

The Alaska Housing Act (Public Law 52, 81st Cong.) authorized a $15 million revolving fund for loans to assist in developing housing in Alaska. The Housing Act of 1952 (Public Law 531) increased the revolving fund authorization to $20 million. Of this amount, a total of $19 million has been appropriated in stages, the last $4 million having been included in the Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1953.

The Alaska Housing Authority (an agency of the Territorial government) is responsible for direct operations under the loan program. The Administrator purchases bonds of the Authority to finance loans (otherwise generally unavailable in the Territory) for apartments and homes, and loans of not more than $500 each for the improvement of native dwellings in remote areas of the Territory.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAM

A smaller program of $4 million in loan commitments is projected for fiscal year 1954. Although the absolute need for housing will continue to be acute, the high volume of civilian and military housing construction in the past few years makes it necessary to estimate conservatively the future effective demand in the price ranges under which construction has been possible to date. The program forecast in these estimates could be greatly expanded if a solution could be found for reaching a somewhat lower income section of the potential market.

Loan disbursements, which lag substantially behind commitments due to the limited construction period, are expected to total about $9 million in the current year and $8 million in 1954. Although outstanding loan commitments will reach a peak of $17.3 million in the current fiscal year, heavy loan repayments in the two years will hold outstanding loan balances to a level of about $12 million.

Administrative expenses in fiscal year 1954 are estimated at $85,000 to be paid for the first time from earnings of the fund. They were formerly borne by the appropriation "Salaries and expenses, Office of the Administrator."

OPERATING RESULTS AND RETAINED EARNINGS

Interest earnings have been steadily rising with the volume of outstanding loans and are expected to exceed $300,000 in fiscal year 1954. Before the end of the current year, the reserve for losses created from interest earnings will reach a level considered to be adequate to meet foreseeable contingencies. A dividend of $250,000, representing the major part of the anticipated surplus at the end of fiscal year 1954, is to be declared to the Treasury.

Under title IV of the Housing Act of 1950, the Administrator makes long-term low-interest loans to certain types of institutions of higher learning as an aid in providing housing for their students and faculties by new construction or conversion of existing structures. For this purpose he may issue and have outstanding notes and obligations for purchase by the Secretary of the Treasury in an amount not to exceed $300,000,000. To reduce budgetary expenditures in a period of heavy defense outlays, usage of the borrowing authorization was limited to $40 million through fiscal 1952, to an additional $60 million in the current year, and to $50 million in the budget year.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAM

Up to the close of the 1952 fiscal year applications for over $88 million in loans had been filed. From inquiries connected with the application process, it was known that some $50 million in additional applications were being prepared. It is estimated that 150 preliminary loan applications will be received during fiscal 1954, and that 80 will be processed to full approval and loan agreement.

Loan disbursements in the current fiscal year are estimated at $22 million, leaving $71 million in undisbursed commitments on June 30, 1953. Based on a 15-month construction period, disbursements are expected to reach $40 million in fiscal 1954, leaving $87 million undisbursed loan commitments.

Administrative expenses: These are estimated at $450,000 in fiscal 1954, and will be for the first time from earnings of the fund. They were formerly borne by the appropriation "Salaries and expenses, Office of the Administrator."

FINANCING OPERATIONS

The acceleration of loan disbursements will raise Treasury borrowings by $21 million in the current year and to $40 million in fiscal year 1954.

OPERATING RESULTS AND RETAINED EARNINGS

The net margin, averaging about 1 percent, between the interest charged the educational institutions (2.76 on early contracts, and 3.01 at present) and the interest paid to the Treasury produces a net margin of $142,996 in fiscal 1953 and $556,011 in fiscal 1954. The latter figure is diminished by $450,000 in calculating net income since it is proposed that administrative expenses be authorized from the revolving fund rather than as a part of the appropriation of the Office of the Administrator for such expenses.

No recommendation is offered as to the disposition during the budget year of the $250,277 in retained earnings shown on statement C as of June 30, 1954. No formal reserves against losses have been projected in view of the extreme care taken to originate sound loans. After more experience with the program and a final decision on the necessity for loss reserves, consideration will be given to the declaration of a dividend.

Section 102 of the Housing Act of 1948 authorized loans to business enterprises for the production of prefabricated housing components or for large-scale site development. Public Law 139, Eighty-second Congress, added authority to make loans and commitments, up to $15 million outstanding at any one time, to preserve the capacity of the existing prefabricators to meet special types of defense housing needs such as mobile or portable housing. The latter authority will expire under present law on June 30, 1953. The budget program submitted herein contemplates elimination of the appropriation proviso which has limited new loan commitments under section 102 to the protection of the Government's interest in existing loans. This will permit continuance of a modest program of new loans within the limits of the authority transferred to the Administrator under Reorganization Plan No. 23 of 1950.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAM

The loans made under this program have been of several different types which may be generally classified as follows: (1) production loans to manufacturers; (2) marketing loans to assist manufacturers in distribution and erection of prefabricated housing through dealer-contractors; and (3) construction loans to contractors employing prefabricated housing on large-scale site development. Major efforts have been directed in the past two years to liquidation of a few developmental loans, but emphasis has shifted in the past year to marketing and construction loans. Under Public Law 139, loans have been exclusively of this type. The acceleration of loan disbursements and repayments in the fiscal years 1953 and 1954 shown on statement A reflects the final refinancing of original loans on an appropriately reduced level and emphasis on marketing loans with characteristically more rapid turnover.

Administrative expenses are estimated at $245,000 for fiscal year 1954, compared with a $225,000 limitation for the current year.

FINANCING OPERATIONS

Reduced fund requirements attendant on refinancing of the original loans and the shift to construction loans will permit repayment of $12 million in Treasury borrowings in the current year and $2 million in 1954.

Shortly after this program was transferred to the Housing and Home Finance Agency under Reorganization Plan No. 23, a capital deficit was established to cover probable losses in liquidation of certain loans then in actual or imminent default. In 1952 and 1953, substantial losses on these loans are shown on statement B. In accordance with section 9 of the Housing Act of 1952 (Public Law 531), the analysis of retained earnings reflects in 1953 and 1954 the cancellation of applicable Treasury borrowings, amounting to $3.4 million and $4.6 million, respectively. Earnings from other loans in the 2-year period will convert a $20,978 deficit on June 30, 1952, to a surplus of $35,693.

FINANCIAL CONDITION

Net loans receivable will decline from $19.6 million to $9.8 million in the 2-year period, following a heavy favorable balance of loan repayments and the charge-offs discussed in the preceding paragraph. A parallel reduction in Government investment from $24.3 to $10.3 million will occur as a result of the retirement and cancellation of borrowings.

Maintenance, etc., Defense Public Works, Office of the Administrator, Housing and Home Finance Agency—

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Rental and operating receipts of public works projects provided by Federal construction under the Lanham Act are used for maintenance and disposition expenses. The $60,000 of administrative expenses covers the costs of periodic inspections, negotiations for transfers and sales, and collection of the rentals mentioned above, plus over $300,000 in proceeds from sales and from local bonds held by the Government. Estimated net income in fiscal 1954 totals $261,031. Earnings of $4,685,000 were paid to the Treasury in fiscal 1952, and it is estimated that $250,000 will be paid in 1953 and $500,000 in 1954.

Title I of the Housing Act of 1949 provides for a program of slum clearance and community development and re-development. The act contains a borrowing authorization of $1 billion to finance advances of funds for the planning of local projects, temporary loans for the acquisition and clearance of land and preparation for re-use purposes, and long-term loans to refinance the local investment in portions of projects which are disposed of by lease. Title I also authorizes contracts for and appropriations totaling $500 million for capital grants to defray up to two-thirds of net project costs.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAM

Funding requirements are much heavier for projects in the development stage of land acquisition, demolition, and preparation of sites for new facilities according to the redevelopment plans, than in the earlier planning stage. In fiscal 1952, as shown on statement A, disbursement of $4.1 million in temporary loans was almost twice the amount for planning advances. By fiscal 1954 temporary loan disbursements are estimated at $20.0 million as compared with $5.6 million in planning advances. Moreover, it is assumed that 70 percent of project costs will be privately financed through local note issues backed by Federal loan commitments which in gross amount are estimated at nearly $200 million by the end of fiscal 1954.

Administrative expenses estimated at $2,185,000 are included in the estimate of expenses for the Office of the Administrator.

FINANCING OPERATIONS

Appropriations for capital grants are estimated at $20.0 million for 1954. This amount will complete the grant payments for an estimated 8 redevelopment projects, and provide partial payments as authorized by Public Law 370, Eighty-second Congress, on some 17 additional projects.

OPERATING RESULTS AND RETAINED EARNINGS

Net income to the program results solely from the interest differential on Federal loans. To allow for possible losses on planning advances, which under the act are secured only by funds becoming available for carrying out planned projects, no net income is being recognized until a reserve of $200,000 has been established.

PURPOSE AND FINANCIAL ORGANIZATION

The three-member Board supervises the Federal home loan bank system, the system of Federal savings and loan associations, and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation. Net administrative expenses of the Home Loan Bank Board are paid from assessments against the 11 Federal home loan banks, the Examining Division, and the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation.

ANALYSIS OF BUDGET PROGRAMS

The Board's budget is based on six activities.

1. Executive direction and staff services.—This includes formulation of basic policy and the furnishing of some staff services that are common to the Board and the Insurance Corporation.

2. Examination and supervision of Federal home loan banks.—The Board supervises and examines the operations of the Federal home loan banks. Expenses are met from assessments upon the banks.

3. Supervision of Federal and State-chartered insured institutions.—The financial condition and operations of each insured institution is analyzed and corrective action is instituted when warranted. Supervision of insured institutions operating under State charter is carried on under cooperative arrangements with the respective State authorities.

4. Chartering of Federal savings and loan associations and branches thereof.—Federal savings and loan associations are chartered and regulated. In the case of new organizations, the Board satisfies itself that proper standards are met before approving the charter. In addition, applications of State-chartered associations for conversion into Federal savings and loan associations are examined.

5. Fiscal and housekeeping services.—These consist of auditing; accounting; budgetary and financial reporting; internal budget control; fiscal organization and management; and general housekeeping and common operating services, including printing and reproduction work.

6. Examination of savings and loan associations.—Supervisory examinations are made of Federal savings and loan associations, State-chartered associations insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, and such uninsured member institutions of the Federal home loan bank system as are not examined by State examiners. Examinations are also made of institutions applying for insurance of accounts and for conversion from a State to a Federal charter when required by the Board. The costs of examinations and audits are assessed against the institutions examined. At the beginning of the fiscal year 1953, there were 3,097 insured institutions with total assets aggregating $17.8 billion.

ADMINISTRATIVE EXPENSES

The Board's estimated administrative expenses for the fiscal year 1954, payable wholly out of income derived from assessments and charges, amount to $775,000. This compares with $725,000 for the fiscal year 1953. These amounts exclude nonadministrative expenses of the Examining Division, which are shown separately.

FINANCIAL REVIEW

The Board is not incorporated and has no capital stock. Its assets consist of cash on deposit with the Treasurer of the United States and accounts receivable for the services which it renders. Its liabilities consist essentially of accounts payable.

HOME LOAN BANK BOARD EXAMINING DIVISION

PROGRAM HIGHLIGHTS

The Division conducts regular periodic and special supervisory examinations of all Federal savings and loan associations, of State-chartered savings and loan associations which are insured by the Federal Savings and Loan Insurance Corporation, and of noninsured member institutions of the Federal home loan bank system that are not subject to State supervision. When required by the Board, the Division also examines and analyzes the financial condition of institutions which apply for membership in the system for insurance of accounts or for conversion from a State to a Federal charter. In addition, insured institutions are required to have an audit; approximately 80 percent of the number of such institutions exercise their option of having the Division expand the scope of its examination to include such audit. The institutions examined bear the costs of examination, and the fees charged therefor are calculated to defray all of the operating expenses of the Division.
