Budget program.—The Public Housing Administration is responsible for administering both the low-rent public housing program and the liquidating emergency housing program. The two programs are administered by a single integrated organization. The Administration receives funds for administrative expenses from two sources: (1) An appropriation for costs relating to the low-rent public housing program, and (2) an allocation from the revolving fund (liquidating programs) for expenses incurred in the operation and disposition of the liquidating emergency housing program. Administrative expenses required to perform necessary functions under the housing programs are presented in consolidated form. Pursuant to authority contained in the Housing Act of 1948 (62 Stat. 1268), funds for administrative expenses of these two programs are consolidated in a single account, and expenses are distributed to the programs and activities on the basis of special surveys and analyses of employees' working time.

Activities conducted by the Administration fall into three main classes: development, management, and disposition. Administrative expenses, therefore, arise from the performance of these three functions.

1. Development.—The Administration incurs expenses in the course of assisting local housing authorities in project planning, working out architectural, engineering, and construction problems, analyzing proposed sites, helping in land acquisition, preparing cost estimates, and rendering similar advisory services. Development expenses in 1958 will relate solely to the low-rent public housing program, inasmuch as no further development activity will be conducted by the Administration with regard to the liquidating emergency housing program.

2. Management.—The Administration incurs expenses in the performance of such functions as conducting management reviews of active projects, analyzing and reviewing budgets submitted by the local housing authorities, making fiscal and occupancy audits, undertaking inspections to insure proper maintenance of properties, providing consulting engineering services, and making personal property audits. Management activity is largely devoted to the low-rent public housing program. The liquidating emergency housing program is diminishing as projects are removed from the workload.

The management workload for each program is as follows:

NUMBER OF DWELLING UNITS IN MANAGEMENT AT YEAR END

	1956 actual	1957 estimate	1958 estimate
Low-rent public housing program	418,309	429,111	450,749
Liquidating emergency housing program	47,895	6,763	-------
Total management	466,204	435,874	450,749

3. Disposition.—Expenses of disposition are limited to the liquidating emergency housing program and represent the cost of disposal of housing projects constructed during the war or subsequent to the outbreak of the Korean conflict.

Liquidation of the Government's interest in public war housing, defense housing, and veterans' reuse housing is proceeding rapidly. Actual and scheduled disposition in dwelling units is as follows: 61,184 in 1956, 41,132 in 1957, and 6,763 in 1958.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Agricultural Research Service conducts fundamental and applied research and demonstrations relating to the production and utilization of agricultural products, and those control and regulatory programs of the Department which involve enforcement of plant and animal quarantines, meat inspection, the control of diseases and insect pests of animals and plants, and related work.

1. Research—(a) Crops research.—Investigations are conducted to improve varieties of food, feed, fiber, and other plants and to develop new crops; to improve crop-production practices including methods to control plant diseases; to improve methods for control of harmful and utilization of beneficial insects affecting farm production; and to develop and test new chemical formulations for the control of crop pests. In 1958 nonrecurring funds for the construction of two laboratory buildings are eliminated, and increases are requested to strengthen research on methods for controlling destructive insects, to expand the plant disease warning service and research on plant disease organisms, and to staff the new National Seed Storage Laboratory.

(b) Farm and land management research.—Investigations are conducted to improve fertilizers, soil management, irrigation and conservation practices; to study hydrologic problems of agricultural watersheds; to determine the relation of soils to plant, animal, and human nutrition; and to apply engineering principles to improve efficiency and reduce costs of agricultural production. Production economics research is conducted on profitable adjustments in farming by type and size of farm; on efficiency in use of labor, equipment, land, and water; and on related economic problems. Increases are requested in 1958 for expansion of research on increased efficiency in water management in relation to irrigation; watershed hydrology; production economics; and engineering studies on handling new crops and on application of chemicals to control insects, diseases, and weeds. A portion of the increase would provide for research on soil and water, and economic problems of irrigation in the Upper Colorado River Basin and for the construction of facilities for sedimentation and soil salinity research.

(c) Livestock research.—Improved breeding, feeding, and management investigations are developed for farm livestock, poultry and domestic fur animals, as well as practical methods for control of diseases and parasites affecting them. The request for 1958 includes expansion and improvement of the dairy herd improvement and sire proving programs, the development of improved types of sheep for farms, and strengthening research on animal parasites. New buildings and facilities are also proposed at Dubois, Idaho, and Miles City, Mont., for range sheep and cattle investigations.

(d) Administration of payments to States, and Territorial research.—Research under Federal grant funds at each State agricultural experiment station is coordinated with the research conducted by other States and by agencies of the Department. The Secretary's responsibilities for the proper administration of these funds are financed by a direct appropriation ($222,200 for 1957) and 3 percent of the grant funds as provided by Public Law 352, approved August 11, 1955. Agricultural experiment stations are operated in Alaska, Puerto Rico, and the Virgin Islands.

(e) Home economics research.—Studies are made of human nutrition, household economics, and clothing and housing. Increases requested for 1958 are for expansion of research on problems of fat in human nutrition, and on serviceability and maintenance of clothing fabrics.

(f) Utilization research.—Chemical, physical, and biological studies are conducted to develop new and improved foods, feeds, drugs, fabrics, industrial chemicals, and other products from agricultural commodities, to improve commodity processing methods, to increase the use of byproducts, and to solve waste disposal problems. The 1958 request for funds recommends expansion of utilization research on grains, cotton, wool and mohair, fruits and vegetables, linseed oil, cottonseed oil and meal, and on animal fats.

2. Plant and animal disease and pest control—(a) Plant disease and pest control.—Provision is made (a) through port of entry inspection to exclude from this country destructive insects, plant diseases and nematodes that cause great damage to agricultural crops in other parts of the world; (b) to cooperate with States in eradicating or preventing spread of crop pests that become established in this country; and (c) to assist States in suppressing incipient and emergency outbreaks of crop pests when and where they occur. The Federal Insecticide, Fungicide, and Rodenticide Act and related provisions of Public Law 518 are administered and enforced. A decrease in 1958 of $4,080,000 in the contingency fund for the control of emergency outbreaks of insects and plant diseases is partially offset by increases to strengthen plant quarantine inspection service and regulatory work on pesticides. The volume of inspections, interceptions of unauthorized plant materials, export certificates issued, and other protective activities is indicated in the following table:

[In thousands]

	1955 actual	1956 actual
Inspections at ports of entry:
Airplanes	89	97

Foreign mail packages	3,254	3,138
Interceptions of unauthorized plant material	216	245
Export certificates issued	35	45
Plant containers certified for export	12,688	23,460

(b) Animal disease and pest control.—Programs are devised to exclude communicable diseases of foreign origin from this country; to prevent the spread of diseases through interstate shipments of livestock or distribution of impure or impotent veterinary biologics; to control and eradicate livestock diseases; and to maintain, through a marketing agreement with manufacturers and handlers, adequate supplies of hog cholera virus and serum for protection of swine. Increases requested for 1958 provide for strengthening the control of miscellaneous livestock diseases, the inspection and testing of veterinary biologics, and the construction of livestock inspection facilities at four ports of entry.

The acceleration of the brucellosis eradication program conducted under this appropriation is authorized under title II, section 204 (e), of the Agricultural Act of 1954, as amended. It provides that the program shall be financed by transfer of not to exceed $20 million for each of the years 1957 and 1958 from funds available to the Commodity Credit Corporation.

The volume of inspections and other protective activities is indicated by selected examples in the following table:

3. Meat inspection.—Federal meat inspection is required for all meat in interstate commerce and is conducted to assure a clean and wholesome meat supply for human consumption. The work includes inspection of animals, carcasses and meat, and meat-food products at various stages of handling and processing. Measures are enforced to insure informative labeling and meats imported or exported are inspected. The increase requested for 1958 would provide for additional inspectors to strengthen the meat inspection service, and related costs.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Funds are allotted to agricultural experiment stations of the land-grant colleges in the States, Hawaii, Alaska, and Puerto Rico for agricultural research, including investigations and experiments to promote a permanent and efficient agricultural industry and improvements in the rural home and rural life. The allotments are made primarily on the basis of prescribed amounts in the authorizing act and partly on the basis of need in specific areas to find solutions to agricultural problems. The States are contributing about $3 to $1 paid by the Federal Government.

The proposed increase is to strengthen the cooperative research program at the State, Territorial, and Puerto Rico agricultural experiment stations.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Eradication activities.—On August 1, 1952, an emergency was declared as the result of the spread of vesicular exanthema of swine. Chief means of spread of the disease is through feeding of uncooked garbage. Cooperative measures have been undertaken to eradicate the disease. To further eradication efforts, 46 States now have laws or regulations requiring the cooking of garbage fed to swine.

Funds for carrying out this eradication program have been transferred from other funds available to the Department. Corporate funds so used are subsequently repaid from specific appropriations for that purpose.

2. Research.—Foot-and-mouth disease research was initiated in 1955 on Plum Island, N. Y., in facilities made available to the Department of Agriculture by the Department of the Army. Additional facilities now being completed for occupation early in calendar year 1957 will permit the research work, which has been limited in scope, to be expanded to a full-scale program.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

On recommendation and approval of the Office of Defense Mobilization, investigations are made of the feasibility of developing domestic sources of supplies of any agricultural material or substitute for it determined by that Office to be strategic and critical.

1. Investigations of domestic production of vegetable tannins.—These studies aim at domestic production of crops from which materials for tanning leather can be derived, and development of methods of extracting such materials.

2. Development of a domestic source of castor oil.—Work on this strategic oil is devoted to developing improved varieties of castor beans adapted to mechanical harvesting and to improving equipment for growing and harvesting the crop.

3. Research on domestic production of strategic fibers.—This work centers on the domestic production of fibers that can be used for such purposes as lines and ropes on naval vessels and as substitutes for jute.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The primary function of the nationwide system of cooperative extension work is out-of-school applied education in agriculture and home economics. This educational activity takes research results, technological advancements, and situation and program facts of the Department of Agriculture, the State agriculture colleges, and experiment stations, and incorporates them into a national educational program. Its objective is to help people help themselves to attain greater efficiency in farming, marketing, and homemaking, thereby improving their economic status and their family and community life.

1. Payments to States, Hawaii, Alaska, and Puerto Rico.—Funds appropriated under the Smith-Lever Act, as amended, for payment to States, Hawaii, Alaska, and Puerto Rico are distributed on the basis of farm and rural population and on the basis of special needs. Funds appropriated under the Agricultural Marketing Act for educational work in marketing are distributed to the States, Hawaii, Alaska, and Puerto Rico on a matching basis under approved projects and on the basis of contracts with the States. Funds available to the States are used primarily for the employment of county extension workers who work with farm families, marketing agencies, and others by providing counsel and assistance in the application of improved methods of production, marketing, and family living. Work with youth is largely through 4–H Clubs. The proposed increase is to strengthen the extension program by providing a more personal approach in teaching the application of the results of research and advancing technology in the solution of farm and home problems; to intensify the rural development program geared to the needs of low-income and part-time farmers in disadvantaged agricultural areas; and to expand the extension marketing educational program.

2. Retirement costs for extension agents.—The amount proposed for 1958 is required to meet retirement costs of cooperative extension agents as authorized under Public Law 854, approved July 31, 1956.

3. Penalty mail.—Funds to cover the cost of penalty mailings of cooperative extension agents in the States are provided under this appropriation. The proposed increase is to cover the cost of penalty mailings for State extension directors.

4. Federal Extension Service.—The Federal Extension Service provides leadership, counsel, and assistance to the States and Territories in developing overall policies, programs, modern teaching methods, efficient use of available resources, evaluation of program, in-service training for extension personnel and administrative services. The Service also provides leadership and assistance to the States in planning and developing extension programs in agriculture, home economics, and marketing. The proposed increase is to strengthen the Federal Extension staff to enable it to carry out its responsibilities by providing national educational leadership for the Department and State extension services, and in administering the Federal laws governing extension work.

FOREST SERVICE

The Service carries on three primary functions: (1) Protection, development, and use of about 181 million acres of land in national forests in the United States, Alaska, and Puerto Rico; and management of land utilization projects covering about 7 million acres; (2) cooperation with States and private forest landowners to obtain better fire protection on approximately 431 million acres of forest lands and better forest practices on about 345 million acres of privately owned commercial timberlands, to encourage reforestation, and stimulate development and management of State, county, and community forests; and (3) research for all public and private forest lands and related ranges to improve protection from fire, insects, and diseases; to increase production of timber, forage, water, and other products; to develop better utilization and marketing of forest products; and to maintain a current inventory of forest resources through a nationwide forest survey. These primary functions include construction and maintenance of roads, and trails, control of forest pests, protection against floods, land exchange, and a number of cooperative projects.

FOREST PROTECTION AND UTILIZATION

Forest Protection and Utilization, Forest Service

The proposed increase relates to the use of all national forest resources which continues to increase with population and the expanding economy of the Nation. The estimates include a total of $11,500,000 for recreational facilities in the national forests for the first step of a program to provide adequate public-use facilities to meet present and projected future needs.

(b) Fighting forest fires.—This provides for employment of additional manpower and other facilities to suppress forest fires which cannot be controlled by the fire-control organization provided for under national-forest protection and management.

(c) Insect and disease control.—Activities to suppress and control destructive insects and diseases that threaten timber areas include two types of work carried on jointly by Federal, State, and private agencies:

(1) Surveys on forest lands to detect and appraise infestations of forest insects and infections of tree diseases and determination of protective measures to be taken.

(2) Control operations to suppress or eradicate forest insects and diseases, including the white pine blister rust.

(d) Acquisition of lands.—Funds are used to acquire lands to protect the watersheds of navigable streams and to increase the production of timber. There are now 70 national forest and purchase units in 32 States and Puerto Rico, within which the National Forest Reservation Commission has approved acquisition of lands. The present value of lands purchased to date is estimated at $200 million, which is more than twice their cost.

2. Forest research—(a) Forest and range management research.—Research is conducted at regional forest experimental stations and elsewhere to provide private and public land managers and owners with a sound basis for protection and management of timber, range, and watershed lands. Studies are conducted to maintain a sustained yield of products at the lowest possible costs; increase forage on rangelands for maximum production of livestock without damage to soil, watershed, or other values; assure maximum regular flow of usable water, and reduce flood and sedimentation.

(b) Forest protection research.—Research is conducted at the regional forest experiment stations and elsewhere to develop sound measures for the protection of forests from damage by fire, insects, and diseases. These investigations provide the technical basis for control and preventive measures, including predictions of fire danger.

(c) Forest products utilization research.—Studies are conducted at the Forest Products Laboratory and at the regional forest experiment stations to develop new and improved forest products, reduction and utilization of waste, and use of low-quality wood and unpopular species. They include studies to reduce costs of logging and wood utilization, and to develop basic knowledge of wood and disseminate this to forest owners, manufacturers, fabricators, and consumers.

(d) Forest resources research.—These investigations are conducted to inventory and appraise the condition of forest lands, volume and quality of standing timber, ownership of timber resources, annual growth and depletion, potential need for timber products, and information on production and marketing of forest products.

3. State and private forestry cooperation.—This program, carried on in cooperation with the States, encourages private timber growing through assistance in preventing and suppressing forest fires, reforestation of denuded and poorly stocked areas, and good management of woodlands. Privately owned forest lands comprise three-fourths of the Nation's commercial forest area and produce 90 percent of all timber cut. The fire-control program applies to all State and private forest lands within the boundaries of organized protection units. The balance of the program is concentrated on small forest properties in private ownership because they are in greater need of management.

(a) Cooperation in forest fire control.—Assistance is furnished 44 States and Hawaii in preventing and suppressing forest fires on private and State-owned lands by financial aid, training, procurement of equipment, and a nationwide fire-prevention campaign. About 89 percent of the 431 million acres of non-Federal ownership are now partially covered. During 1955 the acreage burned on protected areas was 0.6 percent as against an estimated 11 percent on unprotected lands. Of the total expenditures under this program, 72 percent is contributed by States and counties, 5 percent by private owners, and 23 percent by the Federal Government.

(b) Cooperation in forest tree planting.—To encourage woodland owners to plant trees on the more than 50 million acres of inadequately stocked State and private forest land, the States provide trees at less than cost. The Federal Government shares about 25 percent of the cost with the States and private landowners.

(c) Cooperation in forest management and processing.—In cooperation with State foresters, 270 projects in 1,333 counties are operated to aid small-woodland owners in applying good management to their timber holdings. In 1955 these projects covered some 34,828 owners and about 3 million acres.

(d) General forestry assistance.—Technical forest management assistance is provided to State, community, private, and other Federal agencies, forest industries, colleges, and landowners.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Roads and trails are essential to protection and management of national forests and utilization of their resources. The system consists of 123,872 miles of earth- or gravel-surfaced roads and 116,027 miles of supplemental trails.

Funds for 1958 will permit continued emphasis on the construction of timber access roads needed to accelerate harvesting of national forest timber.

Ten percent of the amounts annually received from national forest activities is available under the permanent appropriation "Roads and trails for States" for construction and maintenance within the State from which such proceeds are derived. These amounts are included in the schedules for 1958.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Department cooperates with the States and other agencies in planning and installing works of improvement in small watersheds to reduce damage from floodwater, sediment, and erosion and for the conservation, development, utilization, and disposal of water. It provides loans to local organizations to help them finance their share of the cost of certain works of improvement. The Department also cooperates in making surveys and investigations of watersheds of rivers and other waterways as the basis for the development of coordinated interagency programs.

Proposed increases are to provide for acceleration in the development of work plans for small watershed projects proposed by local sponsors; to enable payment of the annual costs of flood prevention features of works of improvement installed in projects and of the Federal share of the annual cost of agricultural water management phases of projects being planned; and to initiate making of loans to local organizations to finance the local share of project costs.

1. Investigations and planning.—Investigations and surveys are made of proposed small watershed projects and work plans are prepared in cooperation with the local sponsors. These plans outline proposed works of improvement and estimated costs, a cost-benefit analysis, cost-sharing and maintenance arrangements, a proposed schedule of operations, and other facts necessary to determine whether Federal participation in project development should be approved.

MAIN WORKLOAD FACTORS

[Cumulative]

Item	Fiscal year 1955	1956	1957	1958
Applications for watershed projects	353	547	747	947
Watersheds approved for planning	68	172	291	421

Planning suspended	---	10	15	20
Planning in process	68	130	140	135
Balance:
To be planned	---	175	154	122
Not suitable for development of plans	---	200	302	404

2. Installation of works of improvement.—After approval of the projects construction plans and specifications for specific flood prevention or water management structures are prepared.

Local sponsoring organizations let contracts for the construction work on other than Federal lands, usually to local contractors. Engineering supervision is provided for this construction work or advances of funds made to the local organizations to employ private engineers to supervise it. Provision is also made for acceleration of the planning and application of land treatment measures in the watersheds to prevent erosion and protect the structural works of improvement from flood and sediment damage.

It is estimated that installation of works of improvement will be underway in 83 watersheds by the end of 1957 and these will be continued in full operation during 1958. Estimates also provide for starting the installation of works of improvement in 80 new watershed projects during 1958. The Federal Government's commitments for "Public Law 566 projects" are estimated as follows:

Installation of improvement measures should be completed in about 33 of the 57 "pilot" watersheds by the end of 1958. The Federal Government's commitments for the "pilot projects" are estimated as follows:

[In thousands]

Explanation	Fiscal year 1956 actual Number	1956 actual Amount	1957 estimate Number	1957 estimate Amount	1958 estimate Number	1958 estimate Amount
Approved projects and estimated cost of completion at beginning of year	58	$25,181	58	$17,630	57	$9,164

Total projects in progress at end of year and estimated cost of completion	58	17,630	57	9,164	24	4,026

3. Loans and related expenses.—Loans are made to local organizations to finance the local share of the cost of works of improvement installed in the small watersheds. Repayment with interest is required in not more than 50 years after principal benefits of improvements become available.

4. Surveys and investigations of water resources programs.—Current work includes participation in the reviews of the lower Mississippi River and tributaries project, the upper Mississippi River area, and the Delaware River area at the request of the Corps of Engineers, Department of the Army, and, at the request of the Department of the Interior, reappraisal of the agricultural benefits anticipated from the upper Colorado River storage project. In prospect is a survey of the Kansas River area in cooperation with the Kansas State Water Board. The Department is also represented on river basin interagency committees in other major river basin areas.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Department cooperates with soil conservation districts and other local organizations in planning and installing works of improvement in the various subwatersheds of the 11 watersheds authorized by the Flood Control Act of 1944. Measures primarily for flood prevention such as floodwater retarding and sediment control structures, debris barriers and basins, deflectors, diversion ditches and dikes, stream-bank protection, and other improvements are being installed on a cost-sharing basis. Work is generally done by local contractors. Land-treatment measures which contribute to flood prevention are installed by landowners with technical and other assistance furnished by the Department.

The proposed increase is to accelerate the installation of additional works of improvement in those subwatersheds where the local people desire to move ahead with the planned program more rapidly. They are able to furnish the necessary easements and rights-of-way for the structural improvements, share construction costs, and accept responsibility for maintenance of completed structures. Measures installed in the watersheds are complementary to the main-stream flood control works constructed by the Corps of Engineers and other agencies.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Service develops efficient irrigation farming units for sale on specific projects where the Bureau of Reclamation constructs the dams, reservoirs, and principal canals. Land classification and topographic surveys are made, and project lands are subdivided into farm units of economic size. The land is cleared and leveled. Farm ditches, drains, and other water-control structures are built. Pending sale to qualified farm families, the developed farm units are leased under specific use conditions to protect and improve the project lands or they are planted to cover crops to prevent wind erosion. Technical guidance on irrigation and conservation is furnished to farm operators until the project is closed.

The Eden Valley project in Wyoming is the only remaining active project. Certain Department of the Interior and State of Wyoming lands are being exchanged with lands held by the Department of Agriculture to provide an improved arrangement of farm units on the project. Sale of the first irrigation farm units on the project is expected prior to the 1957 crop season.

GREAT PLAINS CONSERVATION PROGRAM

Great Plains Conservation Program, Agriculture

For necessary expenses to carry into effect a program of conservation in the Great Plains area, pursuant to section 16 (b) of the Soil Conservation and Domestic Allotment Act, as added by the Act of August 7, 1956 (70 Stat. 1115–1117), $20,000,000, to remain available until expended.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Great Plains conservation program, authorized by Public Law 1021, approved August 7, 1956, provides cost-sharing assistance to farmers and ranchers in counties designated by the Secretary in the States of Colorado, Kansas, Montana, Nebraska, New Mexico, North Dakota, Oklahoma, South Dakota, Texas, and Wyoming. This assistance is limited to $150 million in total over a 10-year period and $25 million in any program year. It will supplement existing conservation programs and is a voluntary program designed to accelerate the conservation land treatment and the rehabilitation of the agriculture of the area through long-term conversions in land use on individual farms and ranches.

Producers will be given technical assistance in developing long-range farm or ranch conservation plans which will coordinate all available resources of the Department and other Federal, State, and local agencies in meeting the program objectives of both the individual landowner and the general public.

Cost-sharing assistance will be given producers under contracts of not to exceed 10 years and will average not more than 80 percent of the cost of the changeover. Federal funds will be committed for sharing the cost of eligible conservation practices to be progressively installed by the producer during the contract period in accordance with a conservation plan developed for his farm. Under the terms of the contract the producer agrees to (1) carry out a plan of farming operations which incorporates such soil and water conservation practices as are determined to be practicable for maximum mitigation of climatic hazards, (2) follow a schedule of proposed changes in land use, (3) install approved conservation practices designed to adapt the farming operations to a system which will provide protection to the farm or ranch and the area generally, from erosion and deterioration by natural causes.

The proposed program differs from the agricultural conservation program in that it provides for the necessary cost-sharing assistance over a period of years long enough to complete the land-use adjustment in orderly progression. It also differs from the conservation reserve part of the soil bank program in that it is aimed at obtaining adjustments in land use rather than a reduction in production obtained through annual rental payments. The program encourages permanent shifts in land use taking into consideration the conditions peculiar to the Great Plains area.

The producer would be permitted to utilize the land in grass cover for grazing purposes consistent with good range management. Cost-sharing assistance under the program for which $17,600,000 is included in the 1958 estimate would be available also for conservation measures on other land on the farm than that being shifted if the conservation measures are a necessary part of the land-use adjustment. The remainder of the obligations shown will cover technical assistance and administrative costs.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The program is designed to encourage conservation by sharing with farmers and ranchers the cost of carrying out approved soil-building and soil- and water-conserving practices which farmers generally would not perform to the needed extent with their own resources. The rate of cost-sharing, which may be given in the form of conservation materials and services or a payment after completion of the practice, averages approximately 50 percent of the cost.

Conservation measures include primarily (1) establishment of permanent protective cover, (2) improvement and protection of established vegetative cover, (3) conservation and disposal of water, (4) establishment of temporary vegetative cover, and (5) temporary protection of soil from wind and water erosion.

The national program is formulated by the Service after consultation with representatives of agencies and organizations interested in conservation in the States and areas and is recommended to the Secretary jointly by this Service, the Soil Conservation Service, and the Forest Service. Upon approval by the Secretary of the program for the year, a program is developed for each State and county by the agricultural stabilization and conservation State and county committees and representatives of the Soil Conservation Service and the Forest Service in collaboration with representatives of the land-grant colleges, Farmers' Home Administration, State soil conservation committees, local soil conservation districts, and other agencies interested in conservation. The program is administered by farmer-elected county and community committeemen with responsibility for the technical phases of designated permanent type practices assumed by the Soil Conservation Service and Forest Service in their respective fields.

Funds are distributed among the States on the basis of conservation needs. They are, in turn, distributed by the agricultural stabilization and conservation State committees to counties, and the agricultural stabilization and conservation county committees make commitments of conservation practice cost-sharing to eligible farmers and ranchers.

Loans from the Commodity Credit Corporation to the Secretary of Agriculture are used to make advance payments to vendors for conservation materials and services furnished to farmers and ranchers in connection with the current year program prior to the time funds are appropriated therefor. Repayment is made during the current year from balances available from prior years' appropriations or in the succeeding year from the new funds appropriated. The status of the loan account is:

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The domestic agricultural marketing and distribution functions of the Department are concentrated primarily in the Agricultural Marketing Service. The marketing job has become more complex with growth and shift in population, technological developments in production and marketing, and as more and more functions have been transferred from the farm and home to various segments of the marketing system. The work under this appropriation on marketing research and service, aimed at aiding in the orderly and efficient marketing and effective distribution of agricultural products from the Nation's farms to the consumers, is organized on a functional basis.

1. Marketing research and agricultural estimates—(a) Marketing research.—This work is aimed at developing practical answers to problems encountered in moving products from the farm to the consumer. In cooperation with public and private agencies and trade groups, efforts are made to expand markets, improve product quality, and reduce marketing costs through improved marketing efficiency and organization. The work includes research on as many commodities as possible at each stage of marketing, such as at assembly points, terminal or central markets, and retail markets. The increase for 1958 is to more adequately meet the need for expanded efforts to provide solution of these complex problems.

(b) Economic and statistical analysis.—This work involves the collection, analysis, and interpretation of data affecting agricultural prices, farm income, supply and consumption of farm products, trends in farm population, and changes in the level of living of farm people. The results of these studies are made available to farmers through research bulletins and Situation and Outlook Reports disseminated by the Extension Service and farm organizations. Farmers and others rely on these reports in planning the most profitable adjustments in their operations and marketing programs.

The increase for 1958 is for improving the coverage of outlook and situation analysis, for basic research on factors affecting prices, supplies, and utilization of farm products, and for collection of data on farm income and production expenses.

(c) Crop and livestock estimates.—This service provides the official estimates on agriculture, including acreage, yield, and production of crops, stocks and value of farm commodities, number and production value of livestock items, and prices paid and received by farmers. These data also are basic to computation of parity prices. Data on approximately 150 crop and livestock products are covered in more than 500 reports issued each year. The activity is conducted through 41 State and 1 Territorial offices, most of which are operated as joint State and Federal services. Cooperative arrangements permit the States to obtain a great deal of data which could not be collected or made available from Federal funds. During 1956, States expended an estimated $1.2 million on their cooperative program activities.

The increase for 1958 is to provide weekly weather-crop reports, improving estimates of poultry laying flocks and egg production, and improving the estimates of prices.

2. Marketing services—(a) Market news service.—This service provides current information on supply, movement, and prices at specific markets for practically all agricultural commodities. This day-to-day market information enables American farmers to determine where and when to sell and at what price. The information is collected and disseminated at year-round and seasonal offices maintained in more than 100 cities and towns, often with financial support and cooperation of the States. Every available means of dissemination is used—mail, press, radio, television, telephone, telegraph, bulletin boards, and trade and farm publications.

The increase for 1958 would be used primarily to expand and improve the market news service on fruit and vegetable truck movements, on dairy and poultry products and tobacco; place on a permanent basis the experimental service on direct hog marketings being conducted at Muncie, Ind.; and provide more adequate technical services and overall supervision.

(b) Inspection, grading, classing, and standardization.—Uniform standards of quality for agricultural products are established and applied to specific lots of produce to promote confidence between buyers and sellers; reduce hazards in marketing due to misunderstandings and disputes arising from the use of nonstandard descriptions; encourage better preparation of products for market; and furnish consumers with more definite information on the quality of products they buy. The standards are applied directly by or under the supervision of Federal employees at the request of any interested party, and generally for a fee. Approximately 81 percent of the total cost of the work under the project was offset by fees and other revenue in 1956, which are shown principally under "Trust funds, Agricultural Marketing Service," in part III of the budget.

The proposed increase for 1958 is to extend grain and tobacco inspection; develop new or improved standards or procedures for dairy products, livestock, fresh and processed fruits and vegetables, and for work required under the amendment to the Grain Standards Act, Public Law 861, approved August 1, 1956.

(c) Freight rate services.—Assistance is provided to farmers and others in obtaining and maintaining equitable and reasonable transportation rates and services on farm products and supplies. The Department is interested in all actions which may affect the transportation charges and services on agricultural commodities and farm supplies, but primarily in those actions affecting many commodities, a large area of production, or which might set an important precedent. In 1956 it participated in 92 formal litigation actions before the Interstate Commerce Commission and other regulatory bodies and carried on 40 informal negotiations with carriers and groups of carriers.

(d) Regulatory activities.—These include the administration of regulatory laws, such as packers and stockyards, standard container, United States warehouse, and Federal seed, to assure fair play in the market place and protect producers and handlers of agricultural commodities from financial loss due to deceptive, careless, or fraudulent marketing practices.

The continued growth of facilities and means for storing, buying, and selling, results in more demand and need for protection and benefits of regulatory laws. The increase in 1958 would be used to strengthen administration of the import provisions of the Federal Seed Act, post additional stockyards and strengthen overall administration of the Packers and Stockyards Act, and to step up the frequency of examinations of licensed warehouses.

Packers and Stockyards Act:	1956 actual	1957 estimate	1958 estimate
Yards eligible for posting and supervision (estimated)	640	640	640

Cotton (millions—bales)	12.6	13.3	13.5
Average number of supervisory inspections per warehouse	1.7	1.8	2.0

(e) Administration and coordination of State payments.—This covers the work of administering and coordinating the marketing service work performed by the States matched with funds provided by the appropriation "Payments to States, Territories, and possessions." In 1956, this work was carried on in 38 States and 3 Territories. The increase for 1958 would be used to meet the need and demand for additional technical assistance to States in the matched-funds projects for improving the marketing of agricultural commodities.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Payments are made on a matched-fund basis to State and Territorial marketing agencies for programs designed to get into practical use in the marketing of farm products, improved methods and practices developed in the expanding marketing research program.

This program covers projects such as methods of maintaining and improving the quality of products; ways of reducing marketing costs; and use of special local market information to move abundant supplies to the most profitable market. Through this cooperative approach, the Federal Government's leadership and funds are coupled with State resources and experience to aid in the solution of the most urgent local and area marketing problems, such as alleviating the current problems of surpluses and lowered farm income.

States generally have been expanding their agricultural marketing programs. In 1957, 41 States and Territories are conducting about 120 projects under this program, compared with 34 States and 78 projects in 1954.

The increase for 1958 is to provide additional matching funds for a further expansion of this work expected to be proposed by the States.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Assistance, in the form of both funds and food, is provided to States and Territories for serving lunches to schoolchildren. Each State's portion of the funds available is determined by a statutory formula which takes into account the number of school-age children in the State and the relationship between the per capita income of the State and the average United States per capita income.

The program is operated under an agreement entered into by the State educational agency (which administers the program within the State) and the Department of Agriculture. Schools make application to the State agency and, if accepted, are reimbursed for a part of the food cost of each meal served.

In 1956 the States contributed to this program $519 million, most of which came from payments by children. This was far in excess of the $167 million necessary to meet the statutory matching requirement of $3 for each Federal dollar of cash payment.

In addition to the cash assistance, this appropriation is also used to purchase food for distribution to the schools. This program also provides one of the major outlets for surplus commodities purchased under section 32 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1935, as amended. Commodities acquired under the price support program are also available to the school lunch program. The volume of surplus commodities distributed to schools, however, is dependent upon market conditions and the need for the Federal Government to remove surpluses.

The program in 1956 during the peak month provided lunches to nearly one-third of the approximately 35 million schoolchildren in the country. Participation in the type A meals, the complete lunch that provides one-third to one-half of the daily nutritional needs, increased approximately 10 percent over 1955. While an overall decrease occurred in participation in this program because of a decrease in type C meals (milk only) this was more than offset by increased participation in the special milk program.

During 1956 about $488.7 million worth of agricultural commodities were used in the program. Over 20 percent of this amount represented contributions from Federal surplus removal-price support programs.

Participation and financing of the program in the last 3 years were as follows:

	1954	1955	1956

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Foreign Agricultural Service administers programs and policies relating to foreign agriculture. It provides information and assistance as guides in the planning of production and marketing of United States agricultural commodities and helps smooth the channels through which exports move.

An increase is proposed to expand the Agricultural Attaché Service in foreign countries by adding 5 new posts and expanding the staffs in 9 posts already established.

1. Analysis of foreign agriculture and trade.—Analyses and interpretations are made of world trends in foreign agricultural production, trade, price, finance, marketing, consumption, competition, commercial and trade policies, and economic policies of foreign governments, as such trends affect United States foreign agricultural trade and the domestic economy. The Service directs and coordinates Department participation in the formulation and development of trade programs and agreements to stabilize and expand world trade in American agricultural products, and to reduce restrictive tariff and trade practices against import of American agricultural commodities. Recommendations for the departmental positions on bilateral and multilateral trade agreements and international commodity agreements are formulated. Continuous review is made of the trade regulations and financial conditions of signatories to the General Agreement on Tariffs and Trade in American farm products. Policies, programs, positions, and standards of participation in public and private international organizations are developed.

2. Agricultural attachés.—A worldwide agricultural attaché program is conducted by the Department. Assistance is provided in development of markets abroad for United States agricultural commodities. A comprehensive schedule of foreign agricultural market and trade reporting to meet the needs of the American agricultural industry is maintained.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Enforcement of the Commodity Exchange Act requires supervision over futures trading in 23 commodities on 17 exchanges to prevent price manipulation and corners, and insure honesty and fair dealing. Transactions on contract markets were estimated at 9,130,000 in 1956, and the value of trading over $40 billion.

1. Licensing.—Commission merchants and floor brokers are registered annually. In 1956 there were 595 commission merchants and 889 floor brokers so registered. The estimates for 1958 are 610 and 910, respectively. Exchange rules and regulations are reviewed to insure that legal requirements are met.

2. Supervision of futures trading.—This embraces (a) examination and analysis of reports and other market data, the making of market position surveys, and publication of summary data; (b) establishment, review and enforcement of speculative limits; and (c) cooperative activities with control committees of contract markets. In 1956, position surveys covered 2,271 traders.

4. Investigations.—Apparent or alleged violations of the law and regulations are investigated, and trade practice surveys are made to discover violations and compile legal evidence. The authority also prepares and presents evidence of violations in administrative hearings and judicial proceedings. In 1956 there were 44 compliance investigations completed and 62,602 transactions examined.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Soil Bank Act (title I of the Agricultural Act of 1956, Public Law 540, approved May 28, 1956) authorized programs to assist farmers to divert cropland from production of excessive supplies of agricultural commodities, and to carry out a program of soil, water, forest and wildlife conservation. The activities are supplementary to the acreage allotments and marketing quota programs authorized and appropriated for under the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended, and together with such programs, constitute an overall program to prevent excessive supplies of agricultural commodities from burdening and obstructing interstate and foreign commerce.

In 1957 the program is being financed from funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation pursuant to section 120 of the Soil Bank Act, which authorizes the Secretary to utilize the facilities, services, authorities, and funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation in carrying out the act from its enactment, through June 30, 1957. Appropriations to reimburse the Corporation for funds utilized to carry on this program through June 30, 1957, including accumulated interest thereon, will probably be requested in 1959.

1. Acreage reserve.—This program is effective for 4 crop years from 1956 through 1959. Producers are compensated for reducing their acreages for commodities below farm acreage allotments or base acreages, whichever is applicable. Commodities affected are wheat, corn, cotton, rice, most types of tobacco, and peanuts. The compensation paid producers with respect to any year's crops may not exceed $750 million.

Accomplishments under the 1956 acreage reserve program are summarized below (total number of farms, 537,172):

Commodity	Number of agreements	Number of acres	Maximum possible payments
Tobacco	19,994	31,671	$6,618,699
Peanuts	5,303	43,645	591,437
Wheat	110,515	5,654,507	44,490,882
Cotton	95,954	1,113,789	27,281,778
Corn	320,450	5,450,194	180,629,284
Rice	1,112	28,003	1,386,667
Total	553,328	12,321,809	260,998,747

2. Conservation reserve.—This program is effective for 5 calendar years from 1956 through 1960. The objective is to encourage the shift of 20 million to 25 million acres of cropland into grass, trees, water storage, or other long-range conservation uses. Producers enter into contracts with the Secretary for periods of from 3 to 15 years. In return for removing designated cropland from production and establishing long-range conservation practices, the producer receives cost-sharing assistance for establishment of the practice, and an annual payment for the duration of the contract. The Secretary may not enter into contracts with producers which would require payments to producers in excess of $450 million in any calendar year.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Acreage allotment and marketing quota programs are designed to keep the production and marketing of basic commodities in line with demand in order to give each farmer a fair share of the available market and the total production required. The Agricultural Act of 1956 terminated allotments on the 1956 crop of corn and provided for a referendum of farmers to determine whether they favor acreage allotments or base acreages for the duration of the acreage reserve program which is a part of the soil bank program. In the referendum held on December 11, 1956, less than two-thirds of the farmers voted in favor of base acreages. Therefore, acreage allotments will continue in effect.

Acreage allotments, when necessary, are established at National, State, and county levels (only at State level in the case of tobacco). In general, the acreage allotted to any county is apportioned by farmer-elected county committeemen. National marketing quotas must be proclaimed whenever the total supply for the basic commodities, except corn, reaches a level specified in the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended. However, quotas do not become effective unless approved by two-thirds of those voting in a farmer referendum.

Acreage allotment and marketing quota programs will be in effect for the 1957 crops of flue-cured tobacco, peanuts, wheat, cotton and rice and acreage allotments will be in effect on the 1957 crop of corn. Present indications are that acreage allotments and marketing quotas will be in effect on the 1957 crops of the other kinds of tobacco. Work in fiscal years 1957 and 1958 will consist primarily of the following:

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Service establishes quotas to provide consumers with adequate supplies of sugar at reasonable prices, to maintain and protect the domestic sugar industry and to promote the export trade of the United States, for the five domestic sugar producing areas, the Philippines, Cuba, and other foreign countries. The quota for each domestic area is allotted to individual sellers when necessary to achieve orderly marketing, and restrictive farm acreage allotments are established for producers when necessary to avoid surpluses.

1. Payments to sugar producers.—Payments are made (a) to domestic producers of cane and beets who meet specified conditions of employment, production, and price; and (b) for abandonment of planted acreage and crop deficiencies on harvested acreages due to natural calamities.

The increase in appropriation is required primarily to meet additional payment needs resulting from increased production in 1958 which will approximate the domestic areas' share in the growth of the United States sugar market (or consumption requirements) as provided in the new Sugar Act approved May 29, 1956.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The funds and facilities of the Commodity Credit Corporation are utilized to carry out surplus-disposal programs outside of the regular functions of the Corporation. Reimbursement to the Corporation is authorized for its costs incurred in carrying out the program.

1. International Wheat Agreement.—This agreement, which was renewed effective August 1, 1956, operates to provide an assured market for wheat to exporting countries and assured supplies of wheat to importing countries, at stable and equitable prices.

The maximum and minimum prices in the 1956 agreement are $2 and $1.50, respectively, for the basic grade of wheat, No. 1 Manitoba Northern, at the same basing point as in the prior agreement, Fort William/Port Arthur, Canada. These prices represent a reduction of 5 cents, both at the maximum and at the minimum prices in the prior agreement. In addition to the 4 previous member exporting countries, 2 additional countries, Argentina and Sweden, joined in the 1956 agreement. The agreement total quantity represents about 31 percent of world trade in wheat, yet the 6 exporting member countries export inside and outside the agreement about 90 percent of all wheat moving in world trade.

Capital funds of Commodity Credit Corporation were used to pay during 1956 (a) the difference between the selling prices, prevailing under the agreement and the domestic market price of wheat, and (b) administrative and interest costs. The estimate, $92,930,611 (including interest through June 30, 1957), provides for reimbursing the Corporation for costs incurred in 1956 when 123,350,130 bushels of wheat and wheat flour were exported under the agreement. Effective September 4, 1956, the payment of the differential between the prevailing sales price of wheat under the agreement and the market price is paid to the exporter in Commodity Credit Corporation stocks of wheat rather than in cash. A cash payment for this differential will continue to be made for flour.

It is estimated that 115 million bushels of wheat will be exported under this program during 1957 at a cost to the Corporation of $100,230,000, and 128 million bushels at a cost of $111,674,000 in 1958. Reimbursement for these costs will be requested in later budgets.

The following table shows, by major cost elements, Commodity Credit Corporation costs of International Wheat Agreement program operations for the years 1955,

2. Emergency famine relief to friendly peoples.—The Commodity Credit Corporation, through June 30, 1957, is directed to make its stocks of agricultural commodities available for emergency assistance to friendly peoples in meeting famine or other urgent relief requirements. Through June 30, 1956, commitments undertaken under this authority totaled $260 million. Of this amount programs authorized for shipment totaled $218 million, of which over two-thirds or $150 million was for grain. Other commodities include $31 million of fats and oils; $27 million of milk and milk products; $7 million, cotton; and $3 million, dry beans. Actual shipments made through June 30, 1956, were $177,900,168 to 22 countries.

Appropriations are authorized for a maximum of $500 million to reimburse the Corporation for its costs in carrying out the program. The estimate of $94,483,518 makes such reimbursement for operations during 1956 (including interest to June 30, 1957).

It is estimated that total costs under this program, including interest, will approximate $352.5 million by June 30, 1958, and the following table reflects the costs incurred by Commodity Credit Corporation by years in carrying out this program:

Fiscal year	Program expense	Interest	Total

3. Sales of surplus agricultural commodities for foreign currencies.—Surplus agricultural commodities are sold for foreign currencies. These currencies may then be used by departments and agencies for agricultural market development, purchase of strategic materials, military equipment facilities and services for the common defense, payment of United States obligations, military family housing, international educational exchange and loans for multilateral trade and economic development. If appropriations are available for a purpose for which foreign currencies are used, the agency must buy the currency for dollars which are used to reimburse the Commodity Credit Corporation. Through June 30, 1956, agreements had been signed with other countries for commodities representing a market value of $954.5 million. Through that date 23 commodities with a market value of $509 million had been shipped to 25 countries under these agreements.

The major commodities shipped were wheat, cotton and vegetable oils which together amounted to 75 percent of the total value of shipments.

The act authorizes appropriations of not to exceed $3 billion to reimburse the Corporation for its net costs in carrying out this program. The estimate of $637 million covers unreimbursed costs of operations through 1956 (including interest through June 30, 1957) amounting to $695,380,805 less $58,380,805, representing the dollar equivalent of various foreign currencies on deposit for agricultural commodities exported as of June 30, 1956, for which the Corporation may eventually be reimbursed in dollars. The total dollar equivalent of foreign currencies deposited in the Treasury through June 30, 1956, amounted to $400,497,873.

The following table shows, by major cost elements, Commodity Credit Corporation costs of this program for 1955, 1956, 1957, and 1958 and the composition of appropriations to reimburse the Corporation therefor:

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Administration conducts two major programs: (a) The rural electrification program to provide electric service to farms and other rural establishments; and (b) the rural telephone program to furnish and improve telephone service in rural areas.

It is expected that electrification and telephone loans will continue at about the same level in 1958 as in 1957.

1. Rural electrification.—This program is financed through loans which bear 2-percent interest and must be repaid within a period not to exceed 35 years. Loans are also made for shorter periods at 2-percent interest to electrification borrowers to be reloaned to their consumers for wiring and for the installation of electrical and plumbing appliances and equipment. Funds for making loans are borrowed from the Secretary of the Treasury.

When the rural electrification program was initiated in 1935, less than 11 percent of all farms had electric service. On June 30, 1956, about 94 percent of the farms were electrified.

The loans bear 2-percent interest and must be repaid within a period not to exceed 35 years. Funds for making loans are borrowed from the Secretary of the Treasury.

In 1950, when the telephone program started, the census showed 38.2 percent of all farms with telephones, fewer in both number and percentage than in 1920. At the present time the percentage of farms having telephone service is estimated at approximately 50 percent. Cumulative Rural Electrification Administration loans through June

The Administration makes and insures loans to farmers unable to obtain credit from other sources at reasonable rates.

The total borrowing authorization requested for loans amounts to $235,500,000. In addition, it is proposed to borrow $50 million under existing authority for farm housing loans. This is an increase of $20 million over the estimated borrowing in 1957.

1. Farm ownership loans.—Direct farm ownership loans are made to tenants, sharecroppers, farm laborers, owners of inadequate farms, and eligible veterans for the purchase or improvement of family-type or less than family-type farms. Loans may be made to farm owners for the refinancing of secured or unsecured indebtedness. These loans may be made up to the full fair and reasonable value of the farm (normal market value on less than family-type farms to owner-operators with off-farm income) at 4½-percent interest up to 40 years. Loans for these purposes, and for building construction in amounts not exceeding $15,000 on farms, the operation of which requiring not more than 3 farm families or 3 farm dwellings, are also made with funds advanced by private lenders. These loans are insured by the Government, and are made in amounts up to 90 percent of the value of the farm up to 40 years at 3½ percent interest, plus 0.5 percent as an insurance premium, and 0.5 percent as an administrative expense charge. The Administration services these insured loans, makes collections, and pays the lender.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Office has responsibility for the information work of the entire Department. Its major objective is to report to farmers, specially affected groups, and to the public the Department's research, action, regulatory, and other programs, using all information media. This work is carried on in close cooperation with the land-grant colleges and with private industries which serve agriculture. The workload is dependent upon the demands from Department programs, direct requests, and legislative requirements.

1. Publications review and distribution.—Publications include farmers' bulletins, leaflets, periodicals, scientific, research, and marketing publications, and agricultural statistics. Most of the increase is to provide special information materials in connection with the rural development program. There is a need for simple, highly visualized materials for use of county workers who will collaborate in programs for low-income and part-time farmers.

2. Review and distribution of current agricultural information.—The Department's activities require the issuance of about 3,700 periodic crop, price, and market reports and press releases annually. Special information is furnished to national magazines, encyclopedic annuals, and trade publications. Digests, newsletters, and other services are made available to press associations, daily newspapers, and farm publications. Part 2 of the Secretary's annual report, known as the Yearbook of Agriculture, is published by the Office and distributed by Members of Congress. Radio is used to reach farmers locally and to broadcast regular weekly programs on major networks. Television package programs are prepared for use of land-grant colleges and television farm broadcasters. The increase is to provide adequate support to the Department's programs and increased research activities.

3. Review, preparation, and distribution of visual agricultural information.—Motion pictures for the Department and private industries which serve agriculture are produced on a reimbursable basis and distributed through 74 cooperating State film libraries. Still photographs, illustrations, and graphics are similarly produced. News and general-type photographs of Department programs and activities are available from a centralized library. Exhibits are produced and supplied to State extension workers for their use in State exhibit showings.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The library, a basic unit in the research, extension and regulatory work of the Department and the State agricultural agencies, acquires, records, and makes available through its catalogs, indexes, and bibliographical lists, important books, periodicals, and other publications containing information on agricultural and allied fields. It contains approximately 1,050,000 volumes, probably the most extensive agricultural collection existing in any country. Its services are also used by agricultural colleges, universities, other research and educational institutions through the world, individual farmers, and the general public. It serves as the national agricultural library.

During 1956, 25,414 volumes and 293,774 separate issues of periodicals were added to the collection by purchase, gift, and exchange. During 1956, 1,170,965 loans of books and periodicals were made and 141,070 reference questions were answered. The Bibliography of Agriculture, a comprehensive monthly index to the technical agricultural knowledge of the world, listed a total of 97,202 items.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

License fees are deposited in this special fund and are used to meet the cost of administering the Perishable Agricultural Commodities, Produce Agency, and Export Apple and Pear Acts (7 U. S. C. 499a–499s, 491–497, 581–589).

The acts assure equitable treatment to farmers and others in the marketing of fresh and frozen fruits and vegetables. Commission merchants, dealers, and brokers handling these products in interstate and foreign commerce are licensed. Complaints of violations are investigated and violations dealt with by (1) informal settlements agreeable to both parties, (2) formal decisions involving payments of reparation awards between parties, and (3) suspension or revocation of license and/or publication of the facts. Approximately 26,850 licenses are now in effect, and this number is not expected to increase substantially from now on. This is due to the continuing trend in all segments of the fresh fruit and vegetable industry toward consolidation of small independent operators into large chain organizations. The increase in 1958 is due principally to the recent amendments to the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Under section 32 of the act of August 24, 1935, as amended (7 U. S. C. 612c), an amount equal to 30 percent of customs receipts during each calendar year and unused balances up to $300 million are available for expanding domestic and foreign market outlets for farm commodities. These funds are also authorized for the administration of marketing agreements and orders, and the section 22 import-control programs. The basic legislation provides that not more than 25 percent of funds available shall be devoted to any one commodity or product thereof. It also provides that section 32 funds shall be devoted principally to perishable agricultural commodities other than those receiving price support under title II of the Agricultural Act of 1949, as amended. These title II commodities are: tung nuts, honey, milk, butterfat, and the products of milk and butterfat.

An amount equal to 30 percent of receipts collected on fishery products is transferred to the Department of the Interior to encourage the distribution of fishery products and for other purposes. Public Law 540, approved May 28, 1956, authorizes the appropriation of an additional sum of $500 million annually to further carry out the purposes of section 32 of which not to exceed 50 percent of such funds may be devoted to any one commodity.

Commodity program costs incident to the removal of surplus agricultural commodities from the normal channels of trade include:

(1) Direct purchases which are donated to the school lunch program, charitable institutions serving needy persons and persons certified by welfare agencies as eligible for relief. (2) Export payments which enable exporters to purchase surplus commodities on the domestic market and sell them on the world market at competitive world prices. (3) Diversion payments which enable processors to purchase surplus commodities on the domestic market, divert them to byproducts and new uses, and sell them at prices comparable to competing products, thus creating new markets for surplus commodities.

The use of section 32 program funds is contingent upon economic conditions, the type of program being dependent upon the action which will best solve the particular need at the time. The estimates for both 1957 and 1958 are based on the situation as now foreseen. If troublesome surpluses not now foreseen should develop, steps would be taken to use additional funds for their removal or diversion as conditions might warrant. During the past 2 years assistance under these programs was given to the following commodity groups:

(4) Surplus removal operating expenses.—These expenses are mainly in connection with purchasing, exporting, and diverting surplus commodities and in distributing section 32 and Commodity Credit Corporation commodities to eligible outlets. Approximately 791.3 million pounds of these commodities were distributed in 1956. Supervisory assistance is furnished local and State groups to encourage the preservation of surpluses for year-round use. In cooperation with the food trade, press and radio, greater consumption of abundant foods is encouraged. In 1956, the monthly plentiful foods list contained an average of 12 foods, and 6 National and 28 area, State, and local drives were conducted. (5) Marketing agreements and orders.—These are entered into or issued by the Secretary and are put into effect upon request of producers or handlers after hearings, investigations, and approval by producers (and handlers in case of marketing agreements). They serve to stabilize prices and benefit producers and consumers by establishing and maintaining orderly marketing conditions. Administration at the local level is financed by assessments upon handlers. On June 30, 1956, 66 orders were in effect for milk, and 31 covering tree fruits, tree nuts, and vegetables. (6) Foreign market promotion.—Maintenance and expansion of foreign markets for United States surplus agricultural products are promoted by (a) obtaining and analyzing information on foreign-market requirements and making such information available to farm and trade groups; (b) developing market programs for use by producers, exporters, and Government officials to maintain and expand the market abroad of United States farm products; (c) assisting domestic trade representatives in negotiations with foreign government officials, importers, and consumers, and bringing together American exporters and foreign importers under conditions favorable to trade; (d) developing agreements with foreign countries for sales of United States agricultural commodities under title I of Public Law 480, and followup on the shipments of those commodities; and (e) preparing and supervising the operation of, or operating directly, market development projects to further expand foreign markets for American agricultural products with foreigh currencies generated by sales under title I of Public Law 480. (7) Import controls.—Importation of articles, which interfere with programs carried out by the Department of Agriculture, is investigated and is developed in accordance with section 22 of the Agricultural Adjustment Act, as amended. During 1956, preliminary investigations were conducted on 20 commodities and 6 recommendations were submitted to the President or the Tariff Commission. Import controls for dairy products are administered. A total of 1,995 licenses for imports of cheese were issued and 106 for manufactured dairy products other than cheese.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Under the provisions of the National Wool Act of 1954, incentive payments are being used to encourage the annual domestic production of approximately 300 million pounds of shorn wool. The program to support the prices of wool and mohair is mandatory. Incentive payments are made to eligible producers on a percentage basis, reflecting the amount required to bring the national average received by all producers up to the announced incentive level. The incentive level for wool shall not exceed 110 percent of parity.

In the fiscal year 1957 it is estimated that payments totaling $60 million will be made under the 1955 marketing year program. This consists of estimated payments of $49,500,000 on approximately 257.8 million pounds of shorn wool, at an average rate of 19.2 cents per pound, and $10,500,000 on lambs and yearlings. During the fiscal year 1958 it is estimated that payments will total $55 million, consisting of $46,400,000 for 232 million pounds of shorn wool at an average of 20 cents per pound, and $8,600,000 for payments on unshorn lambs.

Total payments made under the National Wool Act cannot at any time exceed an amount equal to 70 percent of the accumulated totals, as of the same date, of the gross receipts from specific duties collected on and after January 1, 1953, on wool and woolen products subject to duty under schedule 11 of the Tariff Act of 1930, as amended, Actual and estimated payments compared with this limitation are as follows:

	1956	1957	1958
Cumulative—70 percent of customs receipts on wool and wool products	$108,477,826	$143,477,826	$178,477,826
Cumulative—incentive payments		60,000,000	115,000,000
Balance of limitation available	108,477,826	83,477,826	63,477,826

Funds of the Commodity Credit Corporation are used to carry on the wool incentive program. A permanent authorization is provided to reimburse the Corporation, but such appropriations are limited to 70 percent of duties collected on wool during the preceding calendar year. Estimated costs and reimbursements to Commodity Credit Corporation during the years 1956, 1957, and 1958 are indicated in the following table:

[1] Sales under the price-support program include sales of agricultural commodities under barter contracts and sales of strategic materials and other commodities acquired under such barter contracts in lieu of cash payments. In addition, included in sales are (1) sales to processors under contracts providing that the Corporation will repurchase the commodities in another form, (2) sales of cottonseed products to crushers which were made simultaneously with the purchase of such products and without physical delivery to or by the Corporation, and (3) sales of wheat which are required to be offset by purchase of wheat for the purpose of rotating or reconcentrating stocks.

[2] Negative figures result from adjustment to sales to eliminate the market value of agricultural commodities transferred from the price-support program.

The Commodity Credit Corporation engages in buying, selling, lending, and other activities with respect to agricultural commodities, their products, food, feeds, and fibers, for the purpose of stabilizing, supporting, and protecting farm income and prices; assisting in the maintenance of balanced and adequate supplies of such commodities; and facilitating their orderly distribution. The Corporation also makes available materials and facilities required in connection with the production and marketing of such commodities.

The Corporation has an authorized capital stock of $100 million held by the United States, and authority to borrow up to $14.5 billion.

Programs.—The budget is based on five types of programs: (1) price support, (2) supply and foreign purchase, (3) storage facilities, (4) commodity export, and (5) special activities.

Obligations and expenditures for these programs include primarily loans, purchases, purchase agreements, carrying charges, incentive payments, operating and interest expenses, and advances and current obligations incident to special activities as authorized by specific legislation.

Budget assumptions.—The Corporation's budget estimates for 1957 and 1958 are based on the general assumptions (a) that employment, production, and national income will rise moderately both in 1957 and 1958 from the 1956 level; (b) that prices will change little, on the average, from the present level; (c) that developments in international relations will not be such as to affect Government civilian programs generally; (d) that exports of agricultural products will be higher than at present; (e) that acreage allotments and marketing quotas will be in effect for the 1957 crops of peanuts, rice, wheat, cotton, and certain kinds of tobacco, and acreage allotments will be in effect for the 1957 crop of corn, in accordance with existing legislation; (f) that substantial acreage reductions will be made in the 1957 crops of the basic commodities as a result of the soil bank program; (g) that yields for the 1957 crops will be as high as those for the 1955 crops or indicated for the 1956 crops; and (h) that the percentage of estimated production of the 1956 and 1957 crops placed under price support will be as high as the percentage of the production of the 1955 crops or indicated percentage of 1956 crops placed under price support. Wheat and corn are exceptions to the latter assumption. Recent changes in the Corporation's wheat export program, providing for the sale of wheat for export from free markets rather than from Commodity Credit Corporation stocks, are expected to result in lower proportions of that commodity being placed under support. In the case of corn, noncompliers under the acreage allotment program were eligible for price support on the 1956 crop, but will not be eligible for 1957 crop support. Therefore, the percentage of the crop going under price support used in these estimates was the previous record high, that for 1948.

In considering these estimates, it should be recognized that it is difficult to estimate requirements for the year ending June 30, 1958. They are dependent upon weather conditions, volume of agricultural production in this country and abroad, economic conditions generally, food needs in occupied areas and other foreign countries, availability of dollar exchange, and other complex and unpredictable factors.

Price support.—Price-support operations are carried out under the Corporation's charter powers, in conformity with the Agricultural Act of 1949 (63 Stat. 1051), the Agricultural Act of 1954 (68 Stat. 897), which includes the National Wool Act of 1954, and the Agricultural Act of 1956 (70 Stat. 188), and with respect to certain types of tobacco, in conformity with the act of July 28, 1945 (59 Stat. 506). Under the Agricultural Act of 1949, price support is mandatory for six basic commodities—corn, cotton, wheat, rice, peanuts, and tobacco—and specific nonbasic commodities, namely, tung nuts, honey, milk, butterfat, and the products of milk and butterfat. Price support for wool and mohair is mandatory under the National Wool Act of 1954. Price support for other nonbasic agricultural commodities is discretionary. This program may also include operations to remove and dispose of or aid in the removal or disposition of surplus agricultural commodities for the purpose of stabilizing prices at levels not in excess of permissible price-support levels.

Price support is made available through loans, purchase agreements, purchases, and other operations, and, in the case of wool and mohair, through incentive payments based on marketings. The producer's commodities serve as collateral for price-support loans. With limited exceptions, price-support loans are "nonrecourse" and the Corporation looks only to the pledged or mortgaged collateral for satisfaction of the loan. Purchase agreements generally are available during the same period that loans are available. By signing a purchase agreement, a producer receives an option to sell to the Corporation any quantity of the commodity which he may elect within the maximum specified in the agreement.

In all its price-support operations the Corporation utilizes normal trade facilities to the maximum extent practicable. In its lending activities the Corporation uses local banks, cooperatives, and other private lending agencies. Commercial storage facilities are used to a great extent in the storage of loan collateral and in the storage of stocks acquired by the Corporation.

Disposition of commodities acquired by the Corporation in its price-support operations is made in compliance with sections 202, 407, and 416 of the Agricultural Act of 1949, and other applicable legislation, particularly the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954 (68 Stat. 454), title I of the Agricultural Act of 1954 (68 Stat. 897), and title II of the Agricultural Act of 1956. To the extent that price-support commodities are disposed of through commodity export program and special activities, such as sales for foreign currencies, redemptions of acreage-reserve certificates under the soil-bank program by furnishing Commodity Credit Corporation commodities, and similar operations, such disposals are for accounting purposes treated as price-support program disposals.

Supply and foreign purchase program.—This program is carried out under the authority contained in the Corporation's charter, particularly sections 5 (b) and (c) thereof. The Corporation procures foods, agricultural commodities, their products, and related materials to supply the requirements of Government agencies, foreign governments, and relief and rehabilitation agencies and to meet domestic requirements. Foods, agricultural commodities, and their products are procured or aid is given in their procurement to facilitate distribution or to meet anticipated requirements during periods of short supply. may also, through purchases, loans, sales or other means, make available materials and facilities required in connection with the production and marketing of agricultural commodities.

Operations involving procurement for other Government agencies are conducted in accordance with procedures and policies reasonably calculated to assure compliance with section 4 of the act of July 16, 1943 (15 U. S. C. 713a–9), which requires that the Corporation be fully reimbursed for services performed, losses sustained, operating costs incurred, or commodities purchased or delivered to or on behalf of any other Government agency from the appropriate funds of such agency. Operations not subject to section 4 of such act may involve losses if such are necessary to the accomplishment of the objectives of the particular operation.

The main activities now carried on are procurement of commodities for the International Cooperation Administration, and initial financing of certain programs authorized under the Defense Production Act to assure adequate supplies of strategic and critical materials.

Storage facilities program.—This program is carried out under the authority contained in the Corporation's charter, particularly sections 4 (h), 4 (m), and 5 (a). The Corporation (a) purchases and maintains granaries and equipment for care and storage of grain owned or controlled by the Corporation; (b) makes loans for the construction or expansion of farm storage facilities; (c) provides storage-use guaranties to encourage the construction of commercial storage facilities; and (d) undertakes other operations necessary to provide storage adequate to carry out the Corporation's programs.

Commodity export program.—The Corporation promotes the export of agricultural commodities and products through sales, barters, payments, and other operations. Such commodities and products may be those held in private trade channels as well as those in Commodity Credit Corporation's inventory. This program is carried out under the authority contained in the Corporation's charter, particularly sections 5 (d) and 5 (f), and in accordance with specific statutes where applicable, such as sections 407 and 416 of the Agricultural Act of 1949, the International Wheat Agreement Act of 1949, the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, title I of the Agricultural Act of 1954 and title II of the Agricultural Act of 1956. In general, transactions involving foreign currencies are conducted pursuant to the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954. However, other such transactions may be conducted under the charter authority.

Current obligations under the International Wheat Agreement and title I of the Agricultural Trade Development and Assistance Act of 1954, which operations are described in the estimates under the heading "Special Commodity Disposal Programs, Commodity Stabilization Service" are paid by the Corporation subject to reimbursement from appropriations authorized for such purpose. Pending such reimbursements the net costs are reflected in the records of the Corporation as accounts receivable.

Currently, in addition to exports under the International Wheat Agreement, Commodity Credit Corporation wheat is available for export trade under barter programs of Commodity Credit Corporation at competitive world prices and is also made available to exporters in payment of the price differential between the prevailing world export sales price and the domestic market price which is earned on exports of free-market wheat outside the International Wheat Agreement and under this agreement. Cash payments are made on all exports of wheat flour either under the International Wheat Agreement or outside the agreement.

Effective August 1, 1956, the Corporation inaugurated a cotton products export program designed to protect the competitive position of the domestic cotton industry in relation to sales of cotton products manufactured abroad from American cotton purchased at export prices. Equalization payments, based on the raw cotton content in the products exported, are made to exporters on cotton products of upland cotton grown and wholly processed in the United States.

Expenses.—There are a number of expenses which are not allocated to a specific program. These include interest on the capital stock of the Corporation and on borrowings from Treasury, administrative expenses, and other miscellaneous costs, including expenses of the agricultural stabilization and conservation county committees, lending agencies, and Federal Reserve banks in connection with the Corporation's programs.

Administrative expenses are for the operating staff, including the services of employees of the Commodity Stabilization Service engaged in Commodity Credit Corporation activities, services performed by other agencies of the Department, costs of audit, and payments to the General Services Administration for space in the District of Columbia.

Expenses in connection with the acquisition, operation, maintenance, improvement, or disposition (including inspection, classing, and grading work performed on a fee basis by Federal employees or Federal- or State-licensed inspectors) of property which the Corporation owns or in which it has an interest have been treated as program rather than administrative expenses since 1951.

Similarly, expenses of other Federal agencies whose services are utilized in the handling of Commodity Credit Corporation property are treated as program expenses. Such expenses would include the fleet storage operations of the Maritime Administration conducted intermittently since 1949 and the services rendered by the General Services Administration in connection with the strategic, critical, and other materials acquired by the Corporation.

The requested authorization excludes expenses in connection with the supply and foreign purchase program and the wool and mohair price-support program under the National Wool Act of 1954, since it is contemplated that full reimbursement will be received for these expenses. Such reimbursements in connection with the supply and foreign purchase program will be obtained and used in 1958 in the same manner as in 1956 and 1957. Reimbursement for administrative expenses, as well as program expenses under the wool and mohair program will be obtained from appropriations made by the National Wool Act of 1954.

Estimates for 1958 include a limitation of $38,400,000 for costs of administration exclusive of reimbursements for services performed but including a reserve of not less than 7 percent for contingencies. Because of the increasing price-support workload during the current year, present indications are that the 1957 limitation of $31 million will be insufficient. As a result, a supplemental estimate to increase this limitation will be submitted early in this session of Congress.

Special activities (intragovernmental transactions).—These are miscellaneous activities carried out under authority of section 5 (g) of the Corporation's charter and specific statutory authorizations with respect thereto which are currently in effect or which may be subsequently enacted.

Illustrative of current activities of this nature are loans to the Secretary of Agriculture in connection with the agricultural conservation program as authorized by section 391 (c) of the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938, as amended (7 U. S. C. 1391) and advances to the Agricultural Marketing Service for grading tobacco and classing cotton as authorized by the acts of June 29, 1949, and August 31, 1951 (7 U. S. C. 440, 414a).

Current obligations for these activities are paid by the Corporation and appropriations have been authorized to reimburse the Corporation for its costs. Pending such reimbursements the net costs of these programs are reflected in the records of the Corporation as accounts receivable.

In addition, pursuant to section 120 of the Agricultural Act of 1956 (70 Stat. 197) the Secretary of Agriculture utilizes the services and facilities of the Corporation for carrying out the soil-bank program.

A more detailed description of the operations under these special activities may be found in the budget under appropriations pertaining to the Agricultural Conservation Program Service, the Agricultural Research Service, the Agricultural Marketing Service, the Commodity Stabilization Service, and the soil-bank program.

Financing.—The programs of the Commodity Credit Corporation are financed by capital stock, borrowings from the Treasury, guaranties to purchase loans held by lending agencies, restoration of capital impairment, and receipts from operations.

Borrowing authority.—Pursuant to section 120 of the Agricultural Act of 1956 (70 Stat. 197) the Secretary of Agriculture is utilizing the funds of the Corporation to finance the soil-bank program through June 30, 1957. An appropriation to reimburse the Corporation for funds used under this program, including interest thereon, will probably be requested in 1959.

On the basis of the budgetary assumptions heretofore described, including the transfers to finance the soil-bank program, the consequent estimated program requirements currently do not indicate a need for additional borrowing authority. However, subsequent developments in program or financing activities could result in the necessity for an increase.

In connection with loan guaranties, the Corporation reserves a sufficient amount of its borrowing authority to purchase at any time all loans and other obligations held by lending agencies.

Funds may also be borrowed from private lending agencies when the Corporation desires to utilize such agencies in carrying out a particular operation. All borrowing agreements with private lending agencies are subject to approval by the Secretary of the Treasury.

Interest on borrowings from the Treasury (and on capital stock) is paid in accordance with a policy of the Treasury Department that the rate shall be based upon the average interest rate on all outstanding marketable obligations (of comparable maturity date) of the United States as of the end of the preceding month.

Restoration of capital impairment.—Pursuant to the act of March 8, 1938, as amended (15 U. S. C. 713a–1, 68 Stat. 30), an appraisal of the assets and liabilities of the Corporation is made each year by the Secretary of the Treasury to determine net worth. If the net worth is less than $100 million, the Secretary of the Treasury restores the amount of capital impairment; if net worth is more than $100 million the Corporation pays the surplus to the Treasury (15 U. S. C. 713a–2). The appraisal of assets is on the basis of cost to the Corporation. The capital impairment, therefore, represents realized losses. The realized losses reflected on the books of the Corporation for 1956 were $1,239,788,671, for which restoration is included in the 1958 estimates.

Receipts from operations.—These include proceeds from sales of commodities, loan repayments, interest income, advances, reimbursements for special activities financed by the Corporation and miscellaneous income, refunds, and collections.

Loan and inventory operations and realized losses.—Schedule 1 shows for 1956, 1957, and 1958 the actual and estimated loan and inventory operations and realized losses, by programs and commodities.

The Federal Crop Insurance Corporation provides all-risk protection for the farmer's investment in producing crops against loss from unavoidable causes. Insurance programs are conducted on a limited basis to develop the experience necessary for the operation of a sound all-risk crop insurance plan on a national basis.

Capital stock of $100 million is authorized to be subscribed by the United States. As of June 30, 1956, the Secretary of the Treasury held receipts for $27 million of authorized stock, leaving $73 million unissued. However, as a result of the payment of heavy losses due to drought the last few years, available capital of the Corporation was depleted to the extent that Congress approved an appropriation of $13 million in 1957 for the subscription of additional stock by the Secretary of the Treasury. $100 million stock authorized, $40 million has now been subscribed.

Budget program.—The Corporation, operating on a limited experimental basis since 1948, offers insurance to farmers in selected counties and on selected crops. The principal crops to be insured for the 1957 crop year are wheat, tobacco, corn, cotton, and multiple crops. Peach insurance will be offered in a few selected counties in 1957. The following table indicates the scope of the insurance program for the years shown:

	Fiscal year 1956 (crop year 1955) actual	Fiscal year 1957 (crop year 1956) estimate	Fiscal year 1958 (crop year 1957) estimate
Number of commodities insured	29	22	22
Number of county programs	888	948	1,000
Estimated insurance outstanding ($1,000)	310,000	306,742	401,000
Number of contracts in force	319,958	324,949	410,000
Number of farmers insured	357,000	366,000	459,000
Premiums ($1,000)	22.338	22,174	28,333
Indemnities ($1,000)	25,507	28,308	25,500
Loss ratio	1.14	1.28	0.90

Total indemnity payments of $25.5 million exceeded premium income of $22.3 million by $3.2 million for the 1955 crop year. Because of the continuation of the severe drought, heaviest losses were paid on wheat in the southwest area where insurance coverage is extensive. Indemnity payments on wheat exceeded premium income by $3.5 million with the greatest losses being paid in the following States: Colorado, $5.2 million; Oklahoma, $3.1 million; Kansas, $3 million; and Texas, $1.9 million.

While losses were heavy on the 1955 wheat crop in the Southwest Dust Bowl area, the experience for the 1955 crop year on beans, citrus, cotton, tobacco, flax, and soybeans was favorable with premium income exceeding indemnity payments by $2.1 million.

The Corporation's insured liability for the 1956 crop year is $306,700,000. Preliminary estimates indicate that again losses will be heavy in 1956. The drought which has persisted in the southwest during the past several years spread northward causing heavy wheat losses in western Kansas, and extensive losses in the corn program in Nebraska and Iowa. However, action by the Corporation, withdrawing the program from 14 counties in Colorado, Oklahoma, and Texas for the 1956 program, has limited the losses which otherwise would have been incurred, as growing conditions in these counties are similar this year to what they were last, and it is anticipated that crop losses will again be heavy.

The Corporation is continuing its policy of program revision which was begun in 1954, to limit the acceptance of new business when it appears that greater than normal risk will be incurred. For the 1956 crop year acceptance of new business was terminated from 2 to 12 weeks in advance of established closing dates in 50 counties. Similar action has also been taken in 55 counties where the 1957 wheat program is in effect.

In addition, the inauguration of new county programs will be very restricted in areas where participation is now concentrated or where it is felt that drought conditions will adversely affect the quality of risk.

Appropriations of up to $12 million for any fiscal year are authorized for operating and administrative expenses of the Corporation. These annual appropriations are presented elsewhere in the budget. For 1957 direct costs of loss adjusters, as well as operating and administrative expenses not to exceed $2 million, are being paid from premium income. The 1958 budget proposes to continue to finance these costs in this manner.

Financing the budget program.—No new budgetary authorization is required for 1958, despite an anticipated net loss for 1958 of $350,000 which will reduce the net capital of $19.2 million estimated to be available at the beginning of the year.

Operating results.—Income for 1958 is estimated to increase to $28.4 million. Indemnities and expenses for 1958 are estimated at $28.8 million, which is $2.6 million less than 1957. The deficit as of June 30, 1956, was $11.7 million. The net result of an estimated loss of $9.1 million for 1957 and $400,000 for 1958 would increase the deficit to $21 million and decrease net capital to $19 million.

Budget receipts and expenditures for 1958 are estimated to be approximately the same, as compared to net expenditures of $7 million estimated for 1957 and $3.2 million actual in 1956.

Administrative and operating expenses of $200,000 was charged to premium income in 1956 and it is estimated that $2 million will be charged in 1957 and 1958.

It is anticipated that the estimated deficit as of June 30, 1958, will be liquidated by earnings in subsequent years.

The following table summarizes the insurance operations for 1956, 1957, and 1958.

This fund finances loans to farmers and stockmen in the event of disasters and other emergencies, in areas where agricultural credit is not readily available. The fund is also used to provide emergency assistance in furnishing feed and seed, including hay and roughage, in areas suffering major disasters. It was created by the transfer of the assets of the Regional Agricultural Credit Corporation of Washington which was abolished.

Budget program—1. Production emergency loans.—Loans are made to farmers and stockmen suffering production disasters at 3 percent interest when agricultural credit is not readily available from other sources. The $30 million estimate for 1957 is $7.1 million lower than 1956, and is due to an apparently reduced need for this type of assistance. The estimate for 1958 of $26 million is $4 million lower than the 1957 estimate.

2. Economic emergency loans.—Loans are made at 3 percent interest in any economic disaster area declared by the President, if agricultural credit cannot be met temporarily by regularly established lending institutions. Loans are estimated at $7 million in 1958, as compared with $12 million estimated in 1957 and $23 million actual in 1956.

3. Special livestock loans.—For 4 years after July 14, 1953, loans may be made at 5 percent interest to established livestock producers who are temporarily unable to get credit from recognized lenders and who have a reasonable chance of working out their difficulties with supplementary financing. Supplemental loans may be made for an additional 2 years after July 14, 1957, to individuals already indebted. The estimate for 1957 is $10 million. The 1958 estimate is $5 million, a decrease of $8.3 million from the 1956 actual and $5 million from the 1957 estimate.

4. Special emergency loans.—Special emergency loans up to a total of $65 million may be made up to June 30, 1959 in areas where the Secretary finds a need for credit which cannot be met through other means. The estimates for 1957 and 1958 are $12 million each, $1.4 million lower than 1956.

5. Other loans.—Loans at 5 percent interest may be made to bona fide fur farmers until June 30, 1958, where necessary to protect the Government's interest in existing loans which had been made by the Regional Agricultural Credit Corporation or other authorities.

6. Emergency feed and seed assistance.—Feed for livestock and seed for planting to established farmers, ranchers, and stockmen are furnished in areas which have been determined by the President to warrant assistance because of a major disaster. Programs were conducted in 1956 and are being continued in 1957.

Administrative expenses.—These costs are attributable to the activities of the Farmers' Home Administration, the Commodity Stabilization Service, and the Office of the General Counsel, and are estimated to be $3.7 million in 1958, which is a reduction of $1.9 million from 1957 and an increase of $200,000 above 1956.

Financing the budget program.—No new budgetary authorization is required for 1958. Although a net loss of $2.4 million is estimated on an accrual basis, net receipts of $18.1 million are anticipated on a cash basis.

During 1958, the program is wholly financed by receipts from operations and, in addition, the balance of prior year authorization available at the end of the fiscal year to finance future years' programs will increase by $18.8 million to $58.7 million.

Operating results.—Income for 1958, consisting principally of interest on loans, is estimated at $3.4 million, compared to expenses of $5.8 million, resulting in an estimated loss of $2.4 million. Net loss of $24.1 million is estimated for 1957, and a net income of $1.7 million resulted in 1956. The 1957 loss results principally from assistance to States under the hay and roughage program.

Loans receivable, after allowance for losses, are expected to amount to $65.7 million on June 30, 1958, as compared with $86.5 million at June 30, 1957, and $109.1 million on June 30, 1956.

Financial condition.—The Government's investment at June 30, 1958 is expected to be $125.3 million, consisting of $205.9 million appropriated and donated, less a deficit of $80.6 million.

Proposed supplemental estimate.—It is proposed that a supplemental estimate will be submitted to Congress in 1957. The details on this proposal are shown at the end of this chapter under "Proposed for later transmission."

This fund relates to insured farm ownership loans and soil and water conservation loans. The initial fund of $1 million is supplemented by charges collected from insured farm ownership and soil and water conservation loan borrowers, inspection and appraisal fees, and other charges. Receipts are available for administrative expenses and to cover losses.

Budget program.—Advances and purchases of loans are estimated at $12.6 million in 1958, an increase of $3.6 million over 1957 and $9.6 million over 1956. Outstanding loans insured on June 30, 1956, totaled $135,321,350 and are estimated at $157,695,000 on June 30, 1957, and $172,395,000 on June 30, 1958. The insurance endorsement on each loan includes an agreement by the Government to purchase the loan after a specified period at the holder's option.

Financing the budget program.—No new budgetary authorization is required for 1957 or 1958. In order to finance the purchase of loans becoming eligible for redemption under the repurchase agreements, it will be necessary to utilize the statutory authorization (7 U. S. C. 1005C) to borrow from the Treasury in gross amounts of $7,035,000 in 1957 and $10,100,000 in 1958.

Operating results and retained earnings.—Total income, consisting principally of insurance premiums, is estimated at $2.5 million in 1958, an increase of about $900,000 from 1956. Expenses are expected to increase by slightly less than this amount, resulting in increased net income of about $200,000.

The necessity to purchase loans is expected to result in outstanding loans receivable of $21.2 million at June 30, 1958. In the current investment market, there is little likelihood that any substantial volume of these loans can be sold. Retained earnings, which are for absorption of any future losses, are estimated to be $6.4 million at the end of 1958. These earnings, when added to the $1 million appropriation and estimated borrowings of $16.8 million from the Treasury, represent a $24.2 million investment of the Government.

This fund is available, without fiscal year limitation, for financing, on a reimbursable basis or by advance payments in connection with firm orders, various services such as repairing and replacing equipment, stocking and issuing in support of programs of the Forest Service, supplies, and operation of photographic and reproduction facilities. These service operations serve concurrently the programs of fire protection, timber utilization, construction and maintenance of roads and other improvements, reforestation, grazing, watershed, forest and forest products research, and kindred conservation activities of the Forest Service, including cooperative assistance with other Federal agencies, States, counties, farmers, forest landowners, and others engaged in the same objectives. The principal of the fund, consisting of donated assets at its inception in 1957, is estimated to be $18,130,000. This amount, together with earnings on a part-year basis for 1957 and the full-year net retained earnings for 1958, totaling $99,100 represents an estimated $18.2 million investment of the Government at the end of 1958.

CURRENT AUTHORIZATIONS

The Department of Commerce promotes the trade and commerce of the United States by providing economic analysis and special services to the business community, and serves as the principal organization for carrying out operational and promotional programs of the Government relating to transportation. The Department also administers export controls and carries out mobilization preparedness and defense production activities.

Legislation enacted in 1956 authorized a greatly expanded Federal-aid highway program and provided for its financing through a special highway trust fund into which certain highway user taxes are to be deposited. Appropriations made from this fund and expenditures for the program accordingly are excluded from budget totals. The reduction in budget expenditures from 1956 to 1957 results largely from this new funding arrangement for the highway program. The increase in expenditures in 1958 over 1957 is largely for equipping and operating the Federal airways system to meet the expanding requirements of civil and military aviation.

BUREAU OF THE CENSUS

The Bureau is the principal factfinding and statistical agency of the Federal Government. It is responsible for taking the major censuses of population, housing, agriculture, governmental units, manufactures, mineral industries, the distributive trades, service establishments, and transportation. Current statistics on many of the subjects covered by these major censuses, and on foreign trade, are prepared and published. The Bureau's facilities are utilized by many other Federal agencies for special surveys, tabulations, and related statistical services on a reimbursable basis.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Retail, wholesale, and service trade statistics.—Monthly dollar volume estimates are prepared of retail sales, and of wholesale sales and inventories. An advance report of preliminary retail figures is issued within 10 days after the close of the month. Once a year, additional data are reported on the number of establishments, inventories, and credit sales outstanding at end of year and total sales for the year by regions.

2. Manufacturing and industrial statistics.—Periodic surveys are made of production, shipments, orders, and materials consumed for important commodities. In years when complete censuses of manufactures are not taken, an annual survey of manufactures produces data on the number, size, industrial classification, and location of manufacturing establishments and certain measures of factory operations. In 1958 a monthly sample of sales, inventories, and orders of manufacturing companies will be developed.

3. Agriculture statistics.—Information is compiled on cotton ginned at 11 dates during the ginning season.

4. Foreign trade and shipping statistics.—Monthly, quarterly, and annual reports are published on the kind, quantity, and dollar value of imports and exports, classified by country, commodity, and port of entry or departure. The additional amount proposed for 1958 will improve statistics of commodities traded in small dollar amounts and will initiate revisions in classification of commodities reported.

5. Population and housing statistics.—Based on a monthly survey of 35,000 households monthly, quarterly, and annual estimates are published of employment, unemployment, population mobility, school enrollment, personal income, housing vacancies, and other characteristics of the population. Annual estimates of population by States are also published.

6. State and local government statistics.—Reports are published providing national estimates of total Government finances, public employment and payrolls, and comparative statistics for State governments and larger cities. The 1958 estimate proposes the addition of a sample survey of advance plans of State and local government public works programs.

7. Statistical Abstract and special reports.—The Statistical Abstract is an annual summary of Government and private statistics on the industrial, social, political, and economic activities of the United States. Historical and other general reports are also published periodically. The 1958 estimate proposes completion of a report showing for each county in the United States the number and kind of business establishments, and their employment and payrolls in 1956. A similar report for 1957 will also be initiated.

8. Defense readiness activities.—Statistics, relating primarily to industrial facilities, are developed in support of the bomb damage assessment program.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Federal airways.—This is a program of maintaining and operating, 24 hours daily, a national network of aids to air navigation and traffic control along the primary air routes and at principal airports in the continental United States, its Territories, and possessions. Major increases in 1958 are for (a) additional workload resulting from increased air traffic; (b) the operation of newly commissioned facilities; and (c) the operation of air traffic control installations formerly financed by the Air Force. These increases are offset in part by the discontinuance of low priority and outmoded equipment and such economy measures as can be accomplished without reducing the level of safety service to aviation.

2. Flight operations and airworthiness.—Inspections and certifications are made of aircraft, airmen, and operators of aircraft and air agencies, including the enforcement actions necessary to assure compliance with the civil air regulations that are designed to provide safe and competent operation of aircraft. Increases in 1958 are primarily for increased staff for additional workload related to certification of jet transport aircraft and their early introduction into commercial service.

3. Airports.—This activity includes (a) costs of administering grants for airport construction, (b) inspection of airport facilities to determine their utility and to assure compliance with law and regulations, and (c) advisory services with regard to airport design and engineering. A national plan is prepared annually for public airports in the United States, its Territories, and possessions, specifying the location and type of projects needed for civil aviation and useful for national defense.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The efficiency and safety of air navigation and air traffic control is being improved by the installation of new en route and terminal aids and the modernization of existing facilities of the Federal airways system. Major facilities included in the 1958 request are: Radar for use in traffic control; navigation aids for common civil-military use; instrument landing systems; runway approach lighting systems; and airport traffic control tower equipment. The 1958 estimate is part of an expanded installation program started in 1957 for which plans have now been developed through 1962. The objective of the program is to provide facilities needed to meet current and expected demands on the Federal airways system. The following table lists those major facilities already authorized, those which would be funded by a 1957 supplemental appropriation proposed for later transmission, and those included in the 1958 estimate:

	Number of facilities
	Authorized through 1957	Proposed in 1958 budget

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Grants are made to local sponsors for construction at airports which are part of a national system capable of meeting the needs of civil aviation and nontactical military operations. Public Law 211, approved August 3, 1955, amended the Federal Airport Act and provided contract authorizations totaling $231,500,000 for the fiscal years 1956 through 1959.

The following tabulation summarizes activity under the act.

The Washington National Airport is operated to provide terminal facilities for Washington, D. C. It is estimated that the realized revenues will be $2,770,000 in 1957 and $3,050,000 in 1958, all being deposited in miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury. These amounts take into consideration increased revenues to be derived from application of escalator clauses in existing contracts, and expanded business volume from aircraft and passenger traffic.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The work involves research, experimentation, and development of new devices required for safety and regularity of flight under all weather conditions for joint use by civil and military aircraft. The funds requested provide for the Department of Commerce portion of a joint civil military program administered by the Air Navigation Development Board composed of representatives of the Departments of Commerce and Defense. During 1958 major emphasis will be placed upon air traffic control aids.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Board regulates the economic aspect of air carrier operations, both domestic and international; promulgates safety rules and standards; investigates aircraft accidents; and participates in the development of international air transportation. The increase proposed for 1958 is for expansion in certain critical program areas, primarily in safety, routes, commercial rates, field audits, and international civil aviation. A supplemental appropriation is proposed for 1957 to permit an early start on some of these activities and to cover Executive Pay Act costs.

1. Economic regulation.—This includes granting certificates of public convenience and necessity; prescribing or approving rates and rate practices of air carriers; fixing mail rate compensation; prevention of unfair competition; and approval of business relationships between air carriers.

2. Safety regulation.—This consists of promulgation of civil air regulations; adjudication of complaints alleging violations of these regulations; and the coordination of the civil air regulations with international safety standards and practices.

3. Accident investigation and analysis.—Civil aircraft accidents are investigated to determine probable cause; potential hazards are also investigated; and preventive measures are recommended and put into effect.

4. Legal staff activities.—Legal advice and assistance is provided on all aspects of economic and safety regulatory activities; opinions of the Board are prepared; and litigation matters are handled.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Board fixes rates for transportation of airmail to promote the development of air transportation required for the commerce of the United States, the postal service, and national defense. Many of these rates include an element of subsidy. The subsidy portion is paid by the Civil Aeronautics Board, and the service portion is paid by the Post Office Department.

The obligations shown above, less the obligated balances recovered, reflect the amounts recorded each year as due the air carriers. These sums cover services performed during the year, computed at rates then in effect, plus or minus such adjustments as are needed due to the entering of final rate orders for prior years. Approximately 1 to 2 months of obligations are due but unpaid at the end of any year.

The appropriation for 1956 was in excess of obligations and the appropriation for 1957 was less than needed. The recommended appropriation for 1958 will pick up the $4 million backlog estimated to be outstanding but unappropriated at the start of that year, so that at the end

The following analysis shows the subsidy outlook for 1958 under final Board actions:

	Carrier units: Non-subsidized	Carrier units: Subsidized
Domestic:
Domestic trunklines	12	--	The shift of Colonial and Northeast to nonsubsidized status in 1957 will eliminate subsidy for domestic trunklines.
Local service operations	--	14	Subsidy need for some local service carriers has declined in recent years but this has been offset by certification of new feeder and helicopter services.
Helicopter operations	--	3
Territorial:
Alaskan operations	--	9	Subsidy will continue to support routes between United States and Alaska and to remote locations.
Hawaiian operations	--	2
International:
Trans-Atlantic operations	2	--	By the end of 1957 subsidy will no longer be required for trans-Atlantic and trans-Pacific routes. Routes to Mexico and the Carribbean are also subsidy free. Subsidy for other Latin American routes will be required, although at a somewhat lower level due to improved carrier earnings.
Trans-Pacific operations	2	--
Latin American operations	6	3

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Survey publishes aeronautical and nautical navigation charts of selected areas of the United States, its Territories, and surrounding waters, using data obtained through field surveys. In addition, seismological and geodetic control data are obtained and disseminated, and worldwide tide and current information is compiled and published.

1. Surveys and charts for marine and air navigation.—Hydrographic, topographic, tide and current, magnetic, and aeronautical surveys are made to secure information for nautical and aeronautical charts and tables required for safe air and sea navigation.

Receipts from the sale of charts and related publications were $537,239 in 1956 and are estimated to be $550,000 during both 1957 and 1958.

2. Geodetic control.—Surveys are made in the United States and its Territories to determine the horizontal position (latitude and longitude) and the vertical positions (elevation above mean sea level) of a network of control points which are permanently marked on the ground. These points are spaced so that adequate survey control is available for topographic, geologic, and other types of mapping, and for planning large-scale engineering projects. The positions and descriptions of these points are published and distributed to Federal, State, and local agencies and the general public.

3. Earthquake investigation.—Earthquakes are located and investigated to determine their severity and to obtain engineering data for the design of earthquake-resistant structures. The Bureau operates 7 seismograph stations, field investigates an average of 15 severe earthquakes annually, operates 70 strong-motion stations in the seismic area of the Western States, collaborates with 13 universities, and cooperates with 150 domestic and foreign seismograph stations to determine the location of distant earthquakes.

4. Instrument services.—These include the design and construction, maintenance, storage, and issuance of intricate instruments used in surveying and processing operations.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Administration carries out industrial mobilization readiness activities and provides statistical and informational services to the business community.

1. Staff services.—Coordination and formulation of operating programs are performed by a staff of program advisers and an office of small business. The requested increase is to provide a program for executive reserve training.

2. Marketing and distribution services.—The office of distribution promotes the development of a more effective system of distribution of goods and services by disseminating market facts and distribution information to Government, industry, and business. The requested increase will expand assistance to businesses engaged in distribution and marketing.

3. Industry divisions.—Twenty-five industry divisions carry out the industrial mobilization programs delegated to the Department, including studies of mobilization requirements and productive capacity; postattack industrial planning and plant-protection guidance; recommendations on stockpiling of critical materials; defense production expansion proposals; and priority and allocation controls over materials. Promotion of industry and commerce is accomplished through assembly and analysis of industrial and commercial information for use by both the Government and business and by providing a focal point for cooperation between Government and business in promoting economic stability and growth. The increase for the budget year will provide for the collection of data for the industrial mobilization program.

4. Technical information services.—Scientific and technical data are collected and compiled primarily from Government research and made available upon request to business, industry, the general public, and Government agencies. In addition, direct assistance is furnished to industry in the development of voluntary programs for standardization of commodities.

5. Field services.—Thirty-three field offices, with assistance from local cooperating organizations, make available to the business community at the local level information and services of the Department, gather information on local business trends and developments for use of the Department and other agencies, and provide services for the Bureau of Foreign Commerce on export and import operations, including guidance on regulations and restrictions in effect here and abroad.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

During fiscal year 1956, obligations were reduced in the amount of $623,965 as a result of contract adjustments. A total of $512,433,950 was appropriated for this program which covers all post-war construction activity up to fiscal year 1955. As of June 30, 1956, the unobligated balance as defined by section 1311, Public Law 663, approved August 26, 1954, amounted to $4,963,561. It is anticipated that this amount will be required for escalation and other contract adjustments as the mariner contracts are finalized.

Operating-Differential Subsidies, Maritime Activities

Operating-differential subsidies: For the payment of obligations incurred for operating-differential subsidies granted on or after January 1, 1947, as authorized by the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, as amended, and in appropriations heretofore made to the United States Maritime Commission, [$124,000,000] $120,000,000, to remain available until expended: Provided, That hereafter, to the extent that the operating-differential subsidy accrual (computed on the basis of parity) is represented on the operator's books by a contingent accounts receivable item against the United States as a partial or complete offset to the recapture accrual, the operator (1) shall be excused from making deposits in the special reserve fund, and (2) as to the amount of such earnings the deposit of which is so excused shall be entitled to the same tax treatment as though it had been deposited in said special reserve fund. To the extent that any amount paid to the operator by the United States reduces the balance in the operator's contingent receivable account against the United States, such amount shall forthwith be deposited in the special reserve fund of the operator: Provided further, That no contracts shall be executed during the current fiscal year by the Federal Maritime Board which will obligate the Government to pay operating differential subsidy on more than two thousand [and forty] one hundred and forty-six voyages in any one calendar year, including voyages covered by contracts in effect at the beginning of the current fiscal year. (70 Stat. 314; Department of Commerce and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1957.)

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

At present 16 privately owned United States flag companies operate 297 ships under subsidy contracts on 29 of the 33 designated essential foreign trade routes. The contracts provide for the payment of the differential between their operating costs and those of foreign competitors (subsidy accrual). The Government recaptures from the operator one-half of net profits in excess of 10 percent of capital necessarily employed up to the subsidy accrual, the subsidy recapture (amount withheld) is finally determined on a cumulative basis only at the end of a 10-year contract period. In estimating the subsidy payable, subsidy recapture is subtracted from subsidy accrual, but pending the close of the 10-year contract period the full amount of the accrual is a contingent liability of the United States.

SUMMARY OF PROGRAM JANUARY 1, 1947, THROUGH JUNE 30, 1958

[Dollars in thousands]

Calendar year:	Voyages	Estimated subsidy accrual
1947–51	5,327	$216,890
1952	1,335	89,094
1953	1,513	108,167
1954	1,447	110,055
1955	1,555	118,438
1956	1,685	127,794
1957	1,721	131,997
1958 (first 6 months)	867	67,293
Total	15,450	969,728

	Cumulative total
Subsidy accrual	$969,728
Subsidy recapture	178,316
Subsidy payable	791,412
Subsidy paid through June 30, 1956	459,851
Estimated subsidy payable	331,561
Subsidy to be paid in 1957	128,685
Subsidy to be paid in 1958	120,000
Subsidy to be paid in subsequent years	82,876

The computation and approval of final subsidy rates and the audit of annual accountings of the subsidized operators will make it possible to make payments of 100 percent of estimated subsidy payable due each operator through calendar year 1954 prior to June 30, 1958, thus eliminating a large backlog of subsidy payments dating back to 1947. The $82,876,771 estimated unpaid subsidy as of June 30, 1958, would approach a normal backlog, consisting largely of amounts withheld pending final rates and audit determinations for calendar years 1956–58 plus subsidy bills for operators in the last quarter of fiscal year 1958 which would not be presented and paid until 1959. This estimated unpaid balance is, however, subject to adjustment for changes in the cumulative recapture position of each of the operators.

The above estimates do not include any amounts for pending subsidy applications of presently nonsubsidized operators. Such applications, if approved, would increase the maximum number of voyages under contract by 331 and could increase the annual subsidy accrual by an estimated $33 million (before recapture).

GENERAL PROVISIONS—MARITIME ACTIVITIES

General provisions—Maritime activities: No additional vessels shall be allocated under charter, nor shall any vessel be continued under charter by reason of any extension of chartering authority beyond June 30, 1949, unless the charterer shall agree that the Maritime Administration shall have no obligation upon redelivery to accept or pay for consumable stores, bunkers and slop-chest items, except with respect to such minimum amounts of bunkers as the Maritime Administration considers advisable to be retained on the vessel and that prior to such redelivery all consumable stores, slop-chest items, and bunkers over and above such minimums shall be removed from the vessel by the charterer at his own expense.

No money made available to the Department of Commerce, for maritime activities, by this or any other Act shall be used in payment for a vessel the title to which is acquired by the Government either by requisition or purchase, or the use of which is taken either by requisition or agreement, or which is insured by the Government and lost while so insured, unless the price or hire to be paid therefor (except in cases where section 802 of the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, as amended, is applicable) is computed in accordance with subsection 902 (a) of said Act, as that subsection is interpreted by the General Accounting Office.

Notwithstanding any other provision of this Act, the Maritime Administration is authorized to furnish utilities and services and make necessary repairs in connection with any lease, contract, or occupancy involving Government property under control of the Maritime Administration, and payments received by the Maritime Administration for utilities, services, and repairs so furnished or made shall be credited to the appropriation charged with the cost thereof: Provided, That rental payments under any such lease, contract, or occupancy on account of items other than such utilities, services, or repairs shall be covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

No obligations shall be incurred during the current fiscal year from the construction fund established by the Merchant Marine Act, 1936, or otherwise, in excess of the appropriations and limitations contained in this Act, or in any prior appropriation Act, and all receipts which otherwise would be deposited to the credit of said fund shall be covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts. (70 Stat. 314; Department of Commerce and Related Agencies Appropriation Act, 1957.)

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Office administers the laws that govern the granting of patents for invention and the registration of trademarks.

The 1958 estimate is based upon a systematic 8-year program to reduce the patent application backlog to a manageable level. This program, commenced in 1957, will reach its first year of full-scale operation in 1958. It also provides for an expanded program of modernizing the patent classification system and for a program of research in conjunction with the Bureau of Standards to develop electronic devices for use in the patent search process.

Receipts from fees were $6,547,000 in 1956, and are estimated under existing legislation to be $6,800,000 in 1957 and $7,000,000 in 1958.

1. Administration of patent and trademark system.—Applications are examined to determine the patentability of claimed inventions and the registrability of trademarks; quasi-judicial functions are performed in appeal or interference proceedings within the Office; patents and trademarks are issued; copies of records are furnished; and other services relating to the prosecution of applications are provided.

2. Printing and publication of patent and trademark material.—This activity provides for printing of specifications and drawings of patents and trademark registrations; publication of their issuance and of official notices, rules of practice, and laws; binding of patents, trademarks, and other reference material for official and public search; and other printing and binding work. The need and use of funds is governed largely by the volume of patent and trademark issuances, and related public demand for printed copies sold from stocks maintained by the Office.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Grants for construction.—Grants are made to States for construction and improvement of the 41,000-mile national system of interstate highways, the primary and secondary systems, and urban extensions of the primary and secondary systems. The Highway Revenue Act of 1956 (70 Stat. 374), created a highway trust fund for financing the program. Amounts needed for liquidating Federal-aid highway obligations will be derived from the highway trust fund as provided by appropriation acts.

The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1956 increases the Federal share of the cost of projects on the national system of interstate highways to 90 percent plus an additional allowance up to 5 percent for States having large areas of public lands. The Federal share of primary, secondary, and urban highway projects continues at 50 percent plus the public lands allowance. For the first time, Federal-aid highway grants are provided for the Territory of Alaska.

The 1958 estimate represents the sum to be appropriated from the highway trust fund for reimbursing States for the Federal share of work on approved projects. A supplemental appropriation of $350 million will be required in 1957 and appears at the end of this chapter.

Progress is summarized in the following table:

[Dollars in thousands]

Fiscal year	Contract authorization [1]	Unobligated contract authorization, end of year	Federal payments	Projects approved: Number	Projects approved: Total cost	Projects approved: Federal share
1954	$575,000	$701,622	$530,992	5,287	$1,207,789	$596,000
1955	575,000	837,322	594,925	5,898	1,382,992	710,000

1958	2,550,000	3,057,661	1,690,000	8,200	3,300,000	2,150,000

[1] Each fiscal year authorization becomes available for obligation not later than January 1 in the preceding fiscal year. Amounts exclude contract authorizations for disaster assistance.

2. Advances for rights-of-way and construction.—Requests for an advance of Federal funds are expected from a number of States to insure their ability to make prompt payments for the acquisition of rights-of-way and for highway construction as it progresses. As provided by section 110 (b) of the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1956 sums advanced to the States are maintained in separate State accounts, and are available so long as special financing assistance is considered necessary by the Secretary of Commerce.

3. Administration and research.—Administrative, engineering, and research expenses are met by allotments of not to exceed 3¾ percent from Federal-aid authorizations. The 1958 estimate includes funds to accelerate completion of the Illinois test road of the American Association of State Highway Officials and for special studies expressly directed in the 1956 act. Research is carried out independently and in cooperation with State highway departments. This item represents the prorated share of the cost of administering the Federal-aid highway program.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Construction.—This program provides for the construction and improvement of highways within or adjacent to national forests. Principal forest highways are located on Federal-aid and State highway systems and, particularly in the Western States, form important links in these road networks. Projects are selected jointly by the States, the Forest Service, and the Bureau to meet traffic and national defense requirements and to provide access at strategic points necessary in the development, utilization, and protection of natural resources of the national forests.

The Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1956 provides annual contract authorization of $30 million for 1958 and 1959. Prior annual authorizations were at the rate of $22.5 million. The authorizations are apportioned among States according to the area and value of national forests in each State.

Actual and estimated progress of the program are summarized in the following table:

[Dollars in thousands]

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Construction.—The Central American section of the Inter-American Highway is being constructed in cooperation with the Republics of Guatemala, El Salvador, Honduras, Nicaragua, Costa Rica, and Panama. These Republics pay one-third of the cost of the highway through their country. The section will be approximately 1,573 miles of all-weather road and will connect with the completed Mexican section to permit uninterrupted motor travel from the United States to Panama. The act of July 1, 1955, authorized appropriations of $74,980,000 to complete the highway. The 1958 estimate represents the unappropriated balance of this authorization. The trend of bid prices on contracts made to date indicates that an additional amount will have to be authorized if a bituminous surface is to be placed on the full length of the highway.

As of January 1, 1957, 842 miles of the section were paved or had standard all-weather surfacing, 558 miles were all-weather but required improvements, and 173 miles were still impassable. Funds should be made available in 1958 to permit advertising additional work while contractors are still in the area which will allow construction operations to continue on an uninterrupted basis.

2. Administration and engineering.—A small administrative and engineering staff is maintained in Washington and in the Central American countries.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Supplemental Appropriation Act of 1957 included $14,325,000 for the construction of a bridge over the Potomac River near Jones Point, Va. The sum of $600,000, which has been transferred to this account, was made available to the National Park Service, Department of the Interior, by Second Supplemental Appropriation Act, 1955, for preparation of the plans, specifications, and estimates for the construction of the bridge. During 1957 a contract will be awarded for the final design of the bridge; acquisition of rights-of-way will be initiated; and preliminary clearing and grading work will be placed under contract. During 1958 major contracts will be awarded and full-scale construction operations will be initiated. During 1959 paving, lighting, and other final phases will be contracted.

The Supplemental Appropriation Act of 1957 provided that no part of the $14,325,000 appropriated will be obligated until agreements are consummated for the maintenance and operation of the bridge and approaches by the States of Virginia and Maryland.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Preparation of plans and construction of highways in Alaska will continue during 1957 with funds previously made available to the Department of the Interior, Office of Territories (Alaska Road Commission). Section 107 of the Federal-Aid Highway Act of 1956 transferred the functions, duties, and authority pertaining to the construction, repair, and maintenance of roads, tramways, ferries, bridges, trails, and other works in Alaska to the Department of Commerce. The transfer was effected September 16, 1956. The act also entitled the Territory of Alaska to participate in the Federal-aid primary, secondary, and urban highway programs. Funds necessary for continuing the highway program in Alaska during 1958 are included in the estimates of the Federal-aid highway programs.

NATIONAL BUREAU OF STANDARDS

The National Bureau of Standards is the agency of the Federal Government responsible for the custody, maintenance, establishment, development, and improvement of the national standards of physical measurement. Against these standards, all the working standards of the Nation—those used by scientists and engineers in research and development, those used by industry in the measurement and production of interchangeable parts, and those used by other Government and State agencies to ascertain conformity—are calibrated. Closely associated with the standards activity, the Bureau serves as a national laboratory for science, industry, and Government for research and development on methods of measurement and instrumentation; for the determination of fundamental physical constants and basic properties of materials; for the development of improved methods for testing materials and equipment; for the development of codes and specifications; and for rendering of assistance to other Government agencies through advisory services on technical problems and by invention and development of devices to meet special needs.

Expenses, National Bureau of Standards

Expenses: For expenses necessary in performing the functions authorized by the Act of March 3, 1901, as amended (15 U. S. C. 271–278c), including general administration; operation, maintenance, alteration, and protection of grounds and facilities; and improvement and construction of temporary or special facilities as authorized by section 2 of the Act of July 21, 1950 (15 U. S. C. 286); [$8,750,000] $11,500,000: Provided, That during the current fiscal year the maximum base rate of compensation for employees appointed pursuant to the Act of July 21, 1950 (15 U. S. PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The budget proposes an increase of $2,765,700 to strengthen the basic scientific programs of the Bureau, with emphasis on basic research and on the development of authoritative standards of greater range and precision adequate to meet the expanding needs of present-day science and industry, and to provide for improved technical balance in the Bureau's scientific activities. The Bureau programs are classified under four activities:

1. Research.—This activity includes investigations of fundamental physical phenomena and determinations of physical constants and properties of materials which are of great importance to science and industry. Fundamental scientific knowledge is applied to achieve more effective use of new scientific and technological processes, materials, and equipment.

2. Development.—This activity includes the development of new and improved standards of measurement, instruments, instrumentation techniques, methods of measurement and analysis, and commodity testing techniques. Materials, devices, and technological processes in fields of importance to national welfare are also developed.

3. Testing, calibration, and specifications.—This activity includes the comparison of working standards used in scientific investigations for engineering, manufacturing, communication, commercial, and educational institutions with the national primary standards. It also includes the preparation of standard samples of accurately known composition or characteristics and the formulation of specifications and standards for commodities and equipment.

4. General technical services.—This activity includes the provision of advisory and consultative services to other Government agencies, the operation of special technical installations, and the compilation and dissemination of scientific and technical data, such as data on propagation of radio waves which are analyzed for the prediction of radio propagation conditions.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Weather Bureau observes, records, reports, forecasts, and distributes information on weather conditions and river stages for the benefit of United States commerce, industry, agriculture, and the general public.

1. General weather services.—Regular forecasts are issued for United States territory and waters with special emphasis on floods and severe storms. Special forecasts and advisory services are provided for international and domestic aviation; fire-weather forecasts are furnished to assist in conservation of timber resources; and fruit-frost forecasts and warnings are prepared for areas where such crops form a major economic interest. Surface and upper-air observations are taken at several hundred locations to serve forecasting requirements. All observational records are combined to form the climatic history of the United States and possessions. Additional funds for 1958 are primarily to strengthen aviation weather services and for operation and maintenance of new facilities.

2. Research.—Intensive investigations of hurricanes and tornadoes will be continued, and additional research will be undertaken using an electronic computer.

Aviation War Risk Insurance Revolving Fund, Commerce

The Secretary of Commerce is hereby authorized to make such expenditures, within the limits of funds available pursuant to section 1306 of the Act of June 14, 1951 (49 U. S. C. 716), as amended, and in accordance with section 104 of the Government Corporation Control Act (31 U. S. C. 849), as amended, as may be necessary in carrying out the programs set forth in the budget for the fiscal year 1958 for aviation war risk insurance activities under said Act (49 U. S. C. 711–722).

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The purpose of this fund is to provide aviation war risk insurance in the event of an outbreak of war (65 Stat. 65). Binders would be issued to cover aircraft and cargo, and would become war risk insurance automatically on the outbreak of war. Administrative costs will be paid out of fee receipts.

Defense Production Guaranties, Commerce

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Guaranties are given on approved loans made by private sources or Federal Reserve banks to facilitate performance of defense production contracts. Guaranty fees are used to pay Federal Reserve banks which serve as fiscal agents. Net earnings are retained to meet possible future losses (Defense Production Act of 1950, sec. 301, as amended).

There were no budget expenditures in 1956 and none are anticipated in 1957 and 1958. Owing to continued absence of activity, no estimate is submitted for 1958; however, pending possible need, the fund is being held intact until expiration of legislative authority on June 30, 1958.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund was created in 1951 to finance direct operation and charter of cargo vessels to carry the heavy military and foreign aid shipments growing out of the Korean emergency (65 Stat. 52). Since mid-1952, operations have been limited to military requirements.

In 1956 the fund was made available for expenses of certain chartering and ship custody contingencies, such as custody of ships in mortgage-foreclosure or forfeiture proceedings, redelivery and layup of certain chartered ships, and custody and husbanding of Government ships other than those in reserve fleets (65 Stat. 226). In 1957 the fund was made available for expense of activation, repair, and deactivation of chartered vessels and authority was granted to deposit in the fund charter hire revenue previously deposited to miscellaneous receipts (70 Stat. 897).

The initial appropriation to the fund of $20 million has been repaid to the Treasury.

BUDGET PROGRAM

Three main activities are financed in the fund:

1. Vessel operations.—Cargo vessels are operated by private operators acting as agents of the Maritime Administration to carry shipments for the Military Sea Transportation Service. Ships operated under the fund reached a peak of 538 in April 1952 and declined steadily thereafter to 33 on June 30, 1956. It is anticipated that the number of vessels operated by general agents will be steadily reduced, to the extent the military situation permits, to approximately 23 vessels by the end of 1958.

In view of the tight market for tankers as a result of the Suez Canal crisis, the Administration authorized the repair and activation during 1957 of twelve T2 tankers for operation by the Military Sea Transportation Service.

2. Charter operations.—As of June 30, 1956, 22 Government-owned ships were under charter to private operators. In 1957, it is anticipated that the total number of ships will increase to over 100, due to the shortage in privately owned American-flag vessels for the carriage of Government-sponsored and other approved bulk cargoes.

Included in the estimate are vessels for the anticipated export requirements of the Department of Agriculture and the International Cooperation Administration. Also included in the estimate are vessels for the transportation of American coal abroad. By the end of 1958 the total number of chartered ships is expected to decline to 45.

3. Vessel custody and contingencies.—This activity provides primarily for expenses of custody and layup of vessels (a) involved in mortgage-foreclosure proceedings or (b) forfeited by owners for violation of shipping laws.

FINANCING THE BUDGET PROGRAM

Net receipts for 1958 of $10,643,800 are anticipated on a cash basis. During 1958, the program will be wholly financed by receipts from operations, and, in addition, the balance of prior year authorizations available at the end of the fiscal year to finance future years' programs will increase by $7,062,002 to $33,988,078. The Government's investment consists entirely of retained earnings, amounting to $33,581,605 at June 30, 1956. In view of present world conditions, retention of these earnings in the fund is necessary to provide for (a) working capital for current ship operations, and chartering and custody contingencies, and (b) rapid expansion of shipping services in the event of emergency.

OPERATING RESULTS AND RETAINED EARNINGS

1. Vessel operations.—Rates charged the Military Sea Transportation Service cover full costs. The net loss of $1,250,000 in 1957 is due to the fact that the fund bears the initial cost of repair and activation of 12 tankers for MSTS operation. Recovery of these expenses will extend into 1958 and offset the 1957 loss.

2. Charter operations.—The increase in charter-hire revenue from $3,297,563 in 1956 to $9,197,800 in 1957 reflects (a) deposits into the fund of charter-hire previously going into miscellaneous receipts, and (b) increase in the total number of ships chartered. This increase is more than offset by an initial expense of $10,325,400 for repair and activation of additional vessels resulting in a net loss of $1,127,600 for 1957. Recovery of this initial expense is made through subsequent monthly charter-hire receipts. While the number of ships on charter at the end of 1958 will decline to approximately 45 ships, a net income of $8,305,800 is forecast for 1958 after deducting $1,495,100 for expenses of deactivation and layup of vessels from charter.

3. Vessel custody and contingencies.—Since there is no income for this activity any expenses become net losses.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Maritime Administration is authorized to insure construction loans and mortgages on certain types of cargo and passenger-carrying vessels and other watercraft. Receipts, representing premiums for insurance and certain incidental fees, are deposited into this fund and, together with such amounts as may be appropriated, are available for the redemption of any defaulted loans or mortgages. As of September 1956, there were outstanding 2 insured construction and conversion loans which will be replaced by insured ship mortgages in principal amounts aggregating $23,112,500 upon completion of the vessels. In addition to the construction and conversion loans there were outstanding 2 insured mortgages in the principal amount of $2,695,000. Based upon the expanded activity anticipated as a result of the enactment of recent amendments to title XI of the 1936 act, it is estimated that by the end of 1958, insured loans will approximate $466 million.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund was established to provide war-risk insurance in the event that commercial insurance is not available at reasonable terms and conditions during time of war (46 U. S. C. 1281, 1288). Commercial war-risk insurance policies are at present subject to an automatic termination clause upon the outbreak of war between any of the four powers: United States, France, Great Britain, and Russia. As of June 30, 1956, interim binders for war-risk hull protection and indemnity, and second seamen's insurance, which become effective upon the outbreak of war, had been issued covering approximately 1,017 vessels and $4,030,500,000 of insurance. The transfer of $10 million is authorized from the vessel operations revolving fund to this fund if necessary (65 Stat. 747). To date no transfers have been made and none are anticipated in 1957 or 1958. At present the income of the fund comes from insurance premiums and fees paid for issuance of the interim binders. Expenses of the fund consist of fees paid to underwriting agents, travel expenses for marine insurance experts, and for contract appraisal costs. Retained earnings of $318,672 are expected at the close of 1958.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The physical facilities and operating rights of the Inland Waterways Corporation were sold to Federal Barge Lines, Inc., in 1953, for $9 million, to be paid through a mortgage bearing interest at 3¾ percent. The current activities of the Corporation consist of winding up its affairs as a carrier, and administering the mortgages resulting from the sale of facilities.

Budget program.—The carrier program is essentially finished since items of traffic charges and credits are now more than 3 years old. There remains the problem of suits and accident claims to be settled, at a rate which can only be estimated.

The relation of costs to obligations is derived from year-end balances and selected resources as reflected in the following table:

	1955 actual	1956 actual	1957 estimate	1958 estimate
Selected resources at end of year (deferred charges)	$3,883	------	------	------
Selected resources at start of year (−)	------	−$3,883	------	------
Costs financed from obligations of other years, net (−)	------	−3,883	------	------

Financing the budget program.—Amounts becoming available in 1958 are expected to be $781,850. The loans due the Corporation are being repaid at essentially the anticipated rate. As repayments are made, interest for the succeeding years is reduced by $15,000 annually.

Operating results and retained earnings.—Net income of $266,350 is expected for 1958. The income from interest payments and adjustments in prior years' expenses (due primarily to the settlement of claims) serve to reduce the deficit accumulated when the line was federally operated.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This fund finances, on a reimbursable basis, common services which can be performed with greater advantage centrally (5 U. S. C. 607). On June 30, 1956, the principal of the fund consisted of $100,000 appropriated and $248,114 donated assets. Retained earnings are estimated to be $209,079 on June 30, 1958, and are retained to provide adequate working capital. During 1957, $61,000 which is surplus to operational requirements of the fund will be returned to the Treasury.

Relation of costs to obligations.—The relationship is derived from year-end balances of selected resources and applicable adjustments as reflected in the following table:

CURRENT AUTHORIZATIONS

The 1958 budget for the Military Functions of the Department of Defense reflects the widening impact of the new and vastly more powerful weapons now being introduced into the Armed Forces in increasing numbers and varieties. Virtually every aspect of the defense program is affected by the introduction of these new weapons, including military strategy, tactics, and organization. Military strength cannot be measured simply in terms of numbers of men or of military units. The overall combat power, mobility and readiness of the military establishment is much more important than its mere size.

The budget provides for maintaining the current level of approximately 2.8 million active duty military personnel.

The Army in fiscal year 1958 will complete the reorganization of its divisions to better fit them for combat under the conditions likely to be encountered in any future war. This involves a major reorganization of the infantry and airborne divisions to the new five-sided structure and some minor changes in the armored divisions. By the end of fiscal year 1958 the Army will be supporting 17 divisions, 9 regiments and regimental combat teams, 127 antiaircraft battalions and a number of newly organized atomic support commands. These new atomic support commands are particularly suitable to provide atomic support for the forces of our friends and allies abroad.

The Navy, by the end of the coming fiscal year, will be operating approximately 1,000 active ships, including 422 warships, 17 carrier air groups, and about the same number of other fleet air units as in the current fiscal year. The Marine Corps will continue to maintain 3 divisions and 3 air wings in a high state of combat readiness.

The introduction of new equipment and weapons with vastly greater combat capability is also having significant impact on many of the previous concepts of military strategy and organization of the Air Force. The composition of the Air Force is being adjusted to embody the new concepts. The Air Force will have 128 wings in fiscal year 1958, reflecting the phasing-out of strategic fighter wings which are no longer required in the Strategic Air Command and a small reduction in the number of tactical wings for the support of Army ground forces. The Army's growing guided missile capability is decreasing its dependence on the Air Force for the close support of its troops. The size and combat effectiveness of the strategic bomber force will continue to increase significantly as the existing heavy bomber B–36 reciprocating engine wings, each equipped with 30 aircraft, are replaced by modern all jet B–52 wings, each equipped with 45 aircraft.

Military personnel costs will be somewhat higher in fiscal year 1958, reflecting a small increase in the average numbers of military personnel and the costs of the first full year of operation of the new survivor benefits program. The Government contribution under this program in 1958 is estimated at $134 million compared with $67 million in 1957.

A total of $327 million is provided in the 1958 budget for the Department of Defense contribution to the civil-service retirement fund, as required by Public Law 854, approved July 31, 1956. In previous years, such contributions were charged to the Civil Service Commission.

Obligations for operation and maintenance will be higher in 1958 to provide for a larger number of airbases, guided missile installations, radar sites, etc., and also because of the higher cost of operating and maintaining the expanding inventories of the newer and more complex weapons and equipment. Of the increase, $30 million is for the first full year of operation of the new dependents' medical care program approved by the last Congress.

The level of obligations for aircraft procurement will be somewhat higher in 1958 than in the current fiscal year, as the military services continue to modernize their inventories. Shipbuilding obligations will also be higher, reflecting the increased unit costs involved in applying nuclear propulsion and guided missile capabilities to ships. Guided missile procurement will remain close to the very high level currently planned for 1957. Other major procurement will be somewhat lower than in the current fiscal year.

Obligations for military public works and research and development will continue at the high levels of 1957. New construction starts will cover only essential projects. Increased funds are included for a further modest expansion in the Reserve Forces program and for retired pay for a larger number of military personnel.

Net expenditures for the acquisition of certain family housing units constructed under the Wherry Act, including mortgage payments and initial alterations, improvements, and rehabilitation, are estimated at $75 million for the coming fiscal year, compared with about $3 million in fiscal year 1957. Acquisition of Wherry housing in localities where Capehart housing is constructed is mandatory under section 512 of the Housing Act of 1956. It is estimated that 2,000 units will be acquired in 1957 and 38,000 in 1958.

Working capital funds have continued to demonstrate their value to the efficient and economical operation of the Department of Defense. The use of industrial funds and stock funds will be further extended during the coming fiscal year.

The Army, which already has most of its arsenals and many other industrial-type facilities under industrial funds will continue to extend its coverage with particular emphasis on overhaul and repair facilities. The Navy already has the Military Sea Transportation Service, all its shipyards, most of its ordnance plants and many other industrial type facilities under industrial funds. In the coming fiscal year the Navy will extend its coverage to additional facilities, particularly aircraft overhaul and repair. The Air Force now has only printing plants and laundries under industrial funds. Extension of industrial fund coverage to the transport activities of the Military Air Transport Service is planned in 1958. The Department of Defense is continuing its evaluation of the extension of an industrial fund to the aircraft overhaul and repair facilities. An amount of $100 million is required for 1958 for working capital.

Stock fund coverage will be further extended in 1958 throughout the Department of Defense. The Army will give special attention to stock fund coverage at posts, camps, and stations as well as to additional categories of ordnance and aircraft supplies and spare parts. The Navy and Marine Corps will concentrate on extending the coverage of spare parts. The Air Force will extend its stock fund coverage to base stocks of organizational clothing and to provide for financing items authorized for local procurement.

In summary, the fiscal year 1958 budget provides for the Department of Defense as follows: New obligational authority, $38,500,000,000; direct obligations, $40,593,812,000; expenditures, $38,000,000,000.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This estimate includes funds for the pay of all military personnel on the retired lists of the Department of Defense, and represents the consolidated requirements of the military departments for (a) payments to retired officers and enlisted personnel of the Army, Navy, Marine Corps, and Air Force; (b) the retainer pay of regular enlisted personnel of the Fleet Reserve of the Navy and Fleet Marine Corps Reserve; and (c) survivors benefits payable under the Uniformed Services Contingency Option Act of 1953. The amount requested is exclusive of any administrative expense. The more liberal retirement policies, the forced separation program of officers, and the return of recalled retired personnel to the retired list have resulted in a significant increase to the retired rolls.

1. Pay and allowances.—This provides for pay, separation travel, and other allowances of military personnel, including cadets at the United States Military Academy. The revised 1957 estimate provides for an end strength of 45,300 below the number previously approved and a decrease of 34,400 man-years. The savings from the decreased man-years are partially offset by additional costs not reflected in the budget estimates originally submitted for 1957, such as increased requirements for allowances for dependents and greater increases in actual average pay rates than were anticipated to result from the Career Incentive Act of 1955. The estimates for 1958 cover the cost of new legislation which provided increased compensation for doctors and dentists, readjustment pay for personnel involuntarily separated after extended service, and contributions to the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund.

Provision is made for amounts otherwise available as quarters allowances to be paid (1) to the revolving fund for "Acquisition, rehabilitation, and rental of Wherry Act housing," in cases where such housing is assigned as public quarters, and (2) as mortgage payments on Capehart housing.

2. Individual clothing.—This provides for initial issue of clothing to enlisted personnel and for payment of a periodic cash allowance to permit replacement of wornout clothing.

3. Subsistence.—This provides for issue of subsistence for enlisted personnel and contract meals for applicants for enlistment and selective service registrants while held under observation to determine fitness for service.

4. Movements, permanent change of station.—This provides for permanent change of station travel (except separation travel allowances) for individuals and groups of military personnel and their dependents, including dislocation allowances, nontemporary storage of household goods in commercial facilities, and transportation of personal property. It includes payments to the Military Sea Transportation Service.

5. Other costs.—This provides for apprehension of deserters, absentees, and escaped military prisoners, payment of interest on soldiers' deposits, payment of mortgage insurance for servicemen, and payment of death gratuities to beneficiaries of military personnel. Included for 1958 is the Government's contribution to the Federal old-age and survivors insurance trust fund under the Servicemen's and Veterans' Survivors Benefits Act.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Provision is made for all operational and maintenance activities of the Army. The 1958 estimate includes funds for the full support of Army forces in Germany. Costs incurred locally were largely borne by the German Government in 1956 and to a lesser degree in 1957. The amounts obligated in those years are shown in the schedule as comparative transfers.

1. Tactical forces.—This provides for the direct support of all tactical forces of the Army, including the ready forces deployed in oversea theaters; the antiaircraft command engaged in the continental defense of the United States; active forces constituting the strategic reserve in the United States; and organizations providing basic training of inductees and enlistees. The increases from 1956 to 1958 reflect the expansion of the NIKE program for antiaircraft defense and the increased use by tactical organizations of new and more modern types of weapons and equipment, including those with nuclear capabilities.

2. Training activities.—Provision is made for the specialized training of military personnel in the Army school system, including combat arms, technical, and administrative schools; the operation of the United States Military Academy; tuition costs at civilian institutions; and costs of training devices and publications. Included in the estimate are the costs of aviation training which was previously provided by the Air Force and the procurement of additional training aids.

3. Central supply activities.—This covers the Army's supply distribution system, the administrative costs of procurement activities, the operation of supply control offices, the maintenance of standby industrial facilities which would be activated in the event of mobilization, and the operation of port facilities in the United States and overseas through which personnel and material are shipped to and from oversea commands. Provision is also made for the Army's share of the governmentwide cataloging and standardization programs. Costs include those attributable to the recently assumed Army responsibility as single manager for all phases of supply management and operation with respect to subsistence and to clothing and textiles and for traffic management for the military departments.

In the supply distribution system, there are 48 supply depots within the United States and 57 in oversea areas which receive, store and issue Army supplies and equipment. The 1958 estimate includes funds for the operation of storage facilities for Army's aviation materiel, a function previously performed by the Air Force, and the first increment of a capital investment in controlled humidity equipment. The estimate also provides for maintaining additional industrial facilities in a standby status.

4. Major overhaul and maintenance of materiel.—Major items of equipment, including combat and support vehicles, Army aircraft, guided missiles and ammunition, are overhauled and rebuilt at Army depots. Other equipment maintenance costs, including contracts with industry for technical assistance, are also provided. The program for 1958 reflects the increased emphasis on guided missiles and the expansion of Army aviation activities.

5. Medical activities.—This covers medical, dental, and veterinary support of the Army National Guard, Army Reserve, and Reserve Officers' Training Corps; maintenance and operation of medical facilities in the United States and overseas; medical care and hospitalization of Army personnel and their dependents in localities where Army medical facilities are not available; medical care and hospitalization of civilian employees and their dependents in the Canal Zone; and training of military personnel in medical specialties. Provision is made for operation in the continental United States of 56 hospitals and 90 dispensaries. The cost of care of Army dependent personnel in non-Army facilities pursuant to the Dependents' Medical Care Act (approximately $24 million a year) is shown only for 1958. The average number of patients is indicated in the following table:

Patients in Army hospitals:
Army, active duty	10,677	10,080	9,550
Dependents	3,619	3,800	3,803
Veterans Administration, Navy, Air Force, and others	2,394	2,470	2,677
Total average daily occupied beds	16,690	16,350	16,030
Army patients in other hospitals:
Active duty, retired and others:
Air Force hospitals	455	436	442
Navy hospitals	515	524	544
Other Federal hospitals	187	184	184
Non-Federal hospitals	49	49	49
Total average daily occupied beds	1,206	1,193	1,219
Dependents	31	31	1,525

Army, as executive agent for the dependent medical care program, contracts for the care of dependents of all uniformed services in civilian facilities, and is reimbursed by the other departments for their proportionate share of the costs.

6. Armywide activities.—This covers the headquarters operations at the Department of the Army, and at major field commands; and for various specialized services performed on an Armywide basis, which include the operation of and capital additions to the Army communication system; the Army audit agency; records centers; personnel processing activities; intelligence activities; the military mapping program; and fiscal and accounting services. The major increase from 1956 to 1958 is the additional investment in communication facilities and equipment.

7. Army Reserve and ROTC.—Provision is made for the maintenance and operation of the United States Army Reserve and Reserve Officers' Training Corps; operation of military district headquarters; operation of training facilities for Army Reserve and Reserve Officers' Training Corps' units at summer training camps, institutions, and home stations; and expenses for Army Reserve recruiting. This activity is related to the strength of the United States Army Reserve which, with the implementation of the Reserve Forces Act of 1955, is estimated to expand from 197,340 in 1956 to 255,900 in 1957, and to 297,000 in 1958.

8. Joint projects.—These are activities of a defensewide nature, for which the Department of the Army is assigned administrative responsibility. Included are such activities as the National War College, the Industrial College of the Armed Forces, the joint alternate communications center, certain joint headquarters in oversea areas, international activities, and the Armed Forces information and education program.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Provision is made for military personnel costs of training the Army Reserve and the Reserve Officers' Training Corps.

1. Army Reserve.—Included are funds for military personnel costs of pay, travel, subsistence, and clothing. Provision is made for paid drills for members of organized units, students, staff and faculty of USAR schools, and mobilization designees. One mandatory tour of active duty for training is provided each year for members in Reserve duty pay status. School training is provided for selected members of the Ready Reserve.

It is estimated that 42,585 enlisted persons and 5,000 commissioned ROTC graduates will begin periods of 6 months active duty for training. The number of enlisted men in the 6-month active duty training, estimated at 15,045 on June 30, 1957, and 19,015 on June 30, 1958, are not included in the planned drill pay status strengths until after completion of the 6-month training period.

The planned drill pay status personnel strength of the Army Reserve is indicated in the following table. Included in the officer strengths are 13,000 students in USAR schools for whom 24 paid drills are provided and 8,750 mobilization designees authorized 12 paid drills. Other personnel are provided 48 paid drills.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

National Guard personnel are trained in their respective units in 48 armory drills and 15 days field training. Certain enlisted men also receive 6 months active duty for basic training under the provisions of the Reserve Forces Act of 1955. Selected personnel receive specialized training at Army schools and command post exercises. The States, Territories, and the District of Columbia also provide support for the Army National Guard.

Five thousand four hundred and thirty local units are programed in 1958. The structure of the major units will be maintained at 27 divisions, together with combat support units. The military personnel strength provided for is as follows:

propulsion systems and other equipment. Emphasis is on short-takeoff fixed- and rotary-wing aircraft.

2. Guided missiles and related equipment.—The objective of this program is the development of surface-to-air missiles for air defense and surface-to-surface missiles for support of ground troops in land combat. Propulsion and guidance systems and other related equipment are also developed under this activity.

3. Ships and small craft and related equipment.—Small craft for transport, reconnaissance, and assault use are under development.

4. Combat and support vehicles and related equipment.—This program includes a variety of vehicles ranging from tanks and self-propelled guns to personnel and cargo carriers.

5. Artillery and other weapons and related equipment.—Rocket launchers for advanced weapons are included in this activity in addition to improved field guns, howitzers, mortars, small arms, and other weapons, together with fire control and other related equipment.

6. Ammunition and related equipment.—Emphasis is placed on new types of ammunition such as rockets, as well as on increased effectiveness of artillery ammunition, mines, grenades, and small-arms ammunition. Improved explosives and propellants are included.

8. Military sciences.—This provides for basic and applied scientific research of general application to military problems and for the development of materials and components not directly associated with other items under development. Examples of the areas of research under this activity are medical research and research in the use of radiation in preserving food.

9. Operation and management of facilities.—Included in this activity are support costs for operation, maintenance, and management of research, development, and test facilities not charged directly to other budget activities.

The reduction in permanent positions in 1957 reflects the reimbursable funding of some personal services under the appropriation "Operation and maintenance, Army."

Most work performed by other agencies under allocations in 1956 and 1957 is to be performed on a reimbursable basis in 1958.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This system provides internal and external telegraph and long distance telephone service for the Territory of Alaska. In 1956 the value of governmental and commercial use was $7.2 million. The estimated value in 1957 is $7.4 million and in 1958 is $7.7 million. Revenue from commercial customers was $3,296,000 in 1956 and is estimated at $3.4 million in 1957 and $3.6 million in 1958.

1. Construction of telephone, telegraph, and cable systems.—In 1958 the Wrangell-Petersburg submarine cable system will be equipped with fixed plant-type carrier equipment ($30,000); the Anchorage-Tok-Fairbanks channel capacity expanded ($17,000); equipment in the toll offices at Anchorage and Fairbanks improved ($10,000); and additional switchboard positions provided at Anchorage and Fairbanks ($300,000).

2. Improvement of fire protection system.—Provision is made for the completion of special projects for the installation of automatic fire alarm and sprinkler systems at a number of installations in order to reduce the risk of loss of life and property.

3. Maintenance and operation of the communication system.—Provision is made for normal expenses incident to maintenance and operation of the system, exclusive of costs of pay, allowances, subsistence, and medical care of military personnel utilized. Among other things the Provision is made for the procurement of major supplies and equipment, including guided missiles, necessary to equip, maintain, and train the active Army and the Reserve forces; and for the provision of facilities essential to industrial mobilization objectives.

Sales of equipment and supplies from stock which do not require replacement in kind provide a source of funds for procurement of items for the Army. These amounts are included as direct obligations, as follows: 1956, $325 million; 1957, $269 million; and 1958, $200 million.

1. Major equipment.—Provision is made for procurement of weapons and vehicles actually used for combat, such as antiaircraft artillery, recoilless rifles, fire-control equipment, mortars, rifles, machineguns, tanks and tank accessories, self-propelled artillery, etc.; vehicles, both tactical and quasi-commercial, which are used for general purposes; Army aircraft, including liaison aircraft, helicopters, and target equipment used in antiaircraft training; electronics and communications equipment; and other major items of equipment used by the Army such as railroad equipment, bridges, materials-handling equipment, construction equipment, generators, road-building equipment, etc.

2. Ammunition and guided missiles.—Provision is made for procurement of guided missiles, ammunition used with conventional weapons, and ground explosives.

3. Industrial mobilization.—Provision is made for the rehabilitation and expansion of manufacturing facilities needed for current operations; for development of mass-production methods for new items, for pilot-line production, for production engineering tests leading to reduction in the use of critical materials and manpower; and for the layaway of Government-owned production facilities and equipment as they are released.

Reimbursements.—In accordance with coordinated procurement assignments, supplies are provided other customers on a reimbursable basis, either by issue from stock or by procurement.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Provision is made for training the Naval Reserve and conducting the Reserve officer program.

1. Reserve personnel.—This covers pay, allowances, individual clothing and uniform gratuities, subsistence, travel, and disability and death benefits for reservists participating in authorized drills or active duty training. Personnel assigned to pay units are required to attend drills. Active duty training for 2 weeks is provided for them and for other selected members of the Reserve.

The reduction in average strength largely reflects a decrease in the number of nonprior service personnel enrolled in the drill pay program prior to entering on active duty. The number of persons in pay grade E–3 and above is estimated to increase from 75,237 on June 30, 1957, to 80,084 on June 30, 1958. This increase results from the return of personnel from active duty and indicates a continuing rise in the training level of the drill pay program of the Naval Reserve. The planned strength of the pay units is as follows:

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This appropriation finances procurement of new aircraft, missiles, and their supporting equipment for the Navy and Marine Corps. It also finances the modernization and modification of service aircraft and procurement of ground electronic equipment required in aircraft and missile operations. The funds requested permit carrying out a 1958 program costing $2,127,102,000.

1. Aircraft and related equipment.—In addition to the procurement of aircraft, this activity finances the procurement of components and spare parts. Procurement requirements for new aircraft are based on the projected operating program, and replacement of attrition losses and obsolescence. In addition, the 1958 program will permit procurement of initial quantities of new models for test and evaluation.

2. Missiles, drones, and related equipment.—Procurement of guided missiles and target drones has been programed at an increased level in 1958 to provide missile capabilities to additional fleet units.

3. Training equipment.—Operational flight trainers, specialized maintenance trainers, and minor training aids are financed under this activity. Programed procurement has been phased with the new aircraft being procured under activity 1.

4. Aircraft modernization.—Provision for correction of defects revealed in operations and to provide increased operational capabilities through installation of improved equipment in service aircraft are funded under this activity. Major emphasis in the 1958 programing is on providing guided missile capability to the fleet through installation of missile launching, guidance and control equipment in fleet aircraft.

5. Ground electronic and detection equipment.—Increasing numbers and higher performance characteristics of jet aircraft require a continuing program for modernization and improvement of communication and navigational aid equipment at air stations.

PROGRAM AND FINANCING

This appropriation finances the operating costs of naval aviation including air combat forces of the Regular Navy and Marine Corps, supporting service and training forces, Naval and Marine Air Reserves, naval air stations, and related activities.

1 and 2. Flight operations, Regular Navy and Naval Reserve.—These activities provide fuel, lubricants, and supplies for naval aviation. Flight operations are programed for 1958 at approximately 1957 force strengths for major units projected at peacetime flying rates. The program reflects the impact, however, of a larger percentage of modern high performance aircraft comprising the combat operating complement in 1958. Although numbers of operating aircraft remain fairly level, total hours to be flown are reduced.

3. Aircraft overhaul.—This activity finances major overhaul of naval aircraft, engines, and components. Workload is based on operating strength and level of flight operations programed for 1958. This estimate reflects prices current in October 1956 and the increased cost of maintaining more complex equipment.

4 and 5. Station operations, Regular Navy and Naval Reserve.—The cost of operating and maintaining Regular and Reserve Navy and Marine Corps stations, whose missions are predominantly air, show increases in 1958 which reflect the phasing-in of new stations activated in prior years and expansion of existing facilities. These are required to support more extensive jet aircraft operations in combat units and the Training Command as well as new overseas air commitments in both Atlantic and Pacific ocean areas.

6. Alteration and replacement of facilities.—Provision is made for structural repairs to the aeronautical shore facilities, maintenance of industrial reserve aircraft plants and tools, and replacement of landing aids and aircraft overhaul shop equipment.

7. Supporting equipment, materiel, and services.—Fleet operations are supported by the procurement of weather instruments, technical publications, ground equipment, aerial cameras and related photographic equipment. Improvement of production methods, evaluation of newly developed equipment, standardization of material and equipment, and maintenance of shipboard catapults and arresting gear are included. As a part of ground equipment the activity provides furniture and furnishings for new Capehart housing units.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This appropriation covers shipbuilding programs authorized subsequent to 1951. Funds are provided for construction and procurement of hulls, machinery, and equipment, including armor and armament, for new naval vessels; conversion of existing naval vessels; other related costs, including tools and equipment, facilities in private plants, and departmental salaries. The 1958 program of $1,506,405,000 includes a nuclear-powered aircraft carrier and guided-missile ships. This appropriation has previously financed 6 Forrestal-type carriers, 15 nuclear-powered submarines, and numerous other military ships. Funds requested for the 1959 program are for advance procurement of long-lead-time components and designs for vessels to be constructed or converted in the future. Expenditures are expected to increase 20 percent in 1958 because of larger ship types and the greater complexity of ships in recent programs.

This appropriation also provides for the procurement of electronics equipment for the fleets, fleet support activities, and commissioned vessels assigned to Military Sea Transportation Service and Coast Guard; other electronics equipment as may be required in connection with ship operations; and other related costs. Also provided is $103,500,000 for ships in prior year programs representing principally the cost of improvement of design.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Maintenance and operation of medical treatment facilities.—This provides for the maintenance and operation of hospitals, dispensaries, dental clinics, and other medical facilities under the management control of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery as follows:

MEDICAL FACILITIES AND PATIENTS

	1956 actual	1957 estimate	1958 estimate

Veterans, retired and other	1,179	1,234	1,240
Total average daily occupied beds	13,134	13,200	13,200

2. Education and training.—Provision is made for education and training of military personnel in medical specialties in medical department schools, hospitals, and civilian institutions. The increase in the number training in naval hospitals and other medical facilities results from an expanded program to train the required specialists and enlisted personnel not previously available.

3. Medical services, supplies, and equipment at other facilities.—This provides technical support for all medical care aboard ships. It provides also for medical care in naval facilities of military personnel and their dependents at shore activities not under the management control of the Bureau of Medicine and Surgery.

4. Nonrecurring procurement of services, supplies, and equipment.—This provides for procurement requirements of medical and dental supplies and equipment of a nonrecurring nature, including initial outfits for ships and stations; major repairs and improvements at naval hospitals; vehicles, construction and weight handling, and materials handling equipment; mobilization readiness material; and other special programs.

5. Medical material support.—Provision is made for technical medical material support functions.

6. Medical care in nonnaval facilities.—This provides for medical care of Navy and Marine Corps personnel and their dependents in other than naval facilities where Navy medical facilities are not available. The large increase in cost for fiscal year 1958 is attributable primarily to implementation of the Dependents' Medical Care Act, approved June 7, 1956. This also accounts for the increased number of patients shown below and will result in a later transmission of a supplemental which appears at the end of this chapter.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The 1958 program is designed to continue modernization of the Air Force with the latest and most advanced type of aircraft through 1960. This appropriation provides for (a) procurement of new aircraft and guided missiles with spare components, industrial facilities and equipment; and (b) modification of inservice aircraft, guided missiles, and components thereof. The funds requested permit carrying out a 1958 service program of $7,495 million.

1. Aircraft and related procurement.—New aircraft are procured in relation to the projected aircraft inventory required to support currently planned forces, estimated aircraft losses, obsolescence of aircraft in the inventory, and development of new models. This activity also provides for modification of inservice aircraft, and spare components thereof; and production facilities for expansion to maintain a reasonable production capability.

2. Guided missiles.—Guided missiles and associated equipment are procured in support of the development program and to augment the combat capabilities of the Air Force in air defense, strategic air, and tactical air operations. This activity also provides for the modification of in-service guided missiles and spare components thereof.

Balances against 1956 and prior year programs for activities 3 through 9 were not transferred when the new appropriation structure was adopted in 1957. The amounts shown are the obligations against remaining balances for which new obligational authority is no longer budgeted in this account.

professional and scientific training required in the research, development, and operation of increasingly more complex equipments. Air Force reservists will be trained at Reserve flying training locations and Air Reserve centers. The training of Air Force Reserve Officers' Training Corps cadets will be continued at civilian institutions and summer encampments; the flight instruction program implemented in 1957 will be continued. The Air Force Academy, which was established in August 1954, will continue to operate at the interim location at Lowry Air Force Base, Colo., pending the completion of permanent facilities at Colorado Springs, Colo., during the first quarter of 1959. This estimate provides for the support of the first 3 classes, which will number 759 cadets by the end of 1958. The cost of Air Force recruiting and recruiting advertising is also included in this estimate. Funds are not included in this estimate for Army aviation training.

4. Operational support.—Provision is made for (a) the maintenance and operation of the installations and facilities required to support the primary combat missions and supporting operational missions assigned to Air Force Commands; (b) the operation of aircraft control and warning systems and tactical control systems; (c) operation of the aeronautical chart and information center; (d) the supporting operational requirements incident to air combat maneuvers, rotational movements of Strategic Air Command and Tactical Air Command operational units; (e) Airways and Air Communication Service; (f) Air Rescue Service and other supporting services; and (g) installation of fixed communications-electronics technical components.

This fund finances the acquisition costs, mortgage payments and initial alteration, improvement, rehabilitation and repair of certain family units of Wherry Act housing (70 Stat. 1111–12).

Budget program.—The budget program contemplates acquisition of 2,000 units of Wherry family housing in 1957, and 38,000 units in 1958. Acquisition of Wherry Act housing is mandatory where the construction of housing under the Armed Services Housing Mortgage Insurance program (Capehart housing) has been approved by the Secretary of Defense and is permissive in all other cases. Approvals of Capehart housing through January 1, 1957, necessitate the acquisition of approximately 30,000 units of Wherry Act housing.

Negotiations for all mandatory acquisitions, and for some permissive acquisitions, will be undertaken during 1957. Due to the anticipated length of time required for acquisition, whether by purchase or condemnation, only a small number of units is expected to be acquired in 1957. Obligations are expected to increase from an estimated $5.3 million in 1957 to $108.9 million in 1958, due to the large number of units expected to be acquired in 1958.

Relation of costs to obligations.—The relationship is derived from year-end balances of unperformed contracts, as reflected in the following table:

	1955 actual	1956 actual	1957 estimate	1958 estimate
Selected resources at end of year: Unperformed contracts			$1,000,000	$8,000,000
Selected resources at start of year (−)				−1,000,000
Obligations incurred for costs of other years, net			1,000,000	7,000,000

Financing the budget program.—This program is financed from reappropriations, rentals, and, where the housing is assigned as public quarters, from payments from appropriations for pay and allowances of military personnel of amounts equal to the quarters allowances to which the occupants would otherwise be entitled. In addition, there will be deposited in this fund any part of the quarters allowances of personnel occupying Capehart housing which is not necessary for mortgage payments on such housing. Because of the lack of operating experience with the Capehart program, no estimate is reflected for this latter source of financing.

A reappropriation of $5 million is estimated in 1957 pursuant to the indefinite authority in section 512 of the Housing Act of 1956. A transfer of $88 million from unobligated balances of the Army stock fund is proposed for 1958. Income from quarters allowances and rentals is expected to increase from $480,000 in 1957 to $23.1 million in 1958.

Operating results.—Net budget expenditures of $3 million and $75 million are expected in 1957 and 1958, respectively, since outlays for acquisition of sponsors' equities, mortgage payments, and rehabilitation and other costs will substantially exceed the amounts available from quarters allowances and rentals. Operating income is expected to exceed the operating expenses paid from the fund by an estimated $300,000 in 1957 and $14.4 million in 1958. This income is available for financing the acquisition and rehabilitation of additional units, as well as for payment of operating expenses. Operating expenses do not include costs of maintenance and operations nor, at the present time, depreciation costs.

Financial condition.—Government investment is estimated at $107.7 million at June 30, 1958, consisting of $93 million in reappropriations and $14.7 million in retained earnings.

This fund finances maintenance, operation, improvement, and liquidation of temporary housing transferred to the Department of Defense, and administrative expenses in connection therewith, and receives rentals on the housing (70 Stat. 1106). Income, costs, and obligations are expected to increase from 1957 to 1958 since the 1957 estimates reflect only 10 months of operation.

Net income of $743,000 and $789,000 is anticipated in 1957 and 1958, respectively, since anticipated rental revenues exceed the necessary operating costs financed through this fund. Government investment in the fund at June 30, 1958, is estimated at $1,532,000 in retained earnings. It is proposed that withdrawal of earnings be deferred until more experience is gained in this program.

Relation of costs to obligations.—The relationship is derived from year-end balances in selected resources as reflected in the following table:

This fund finances maintenance, operation, improvement, and liquidation of temporary housing transferred to the Department of Defense, and administrative expenses in connection therewith (70 Stat. 1106). This fund receives rentals, and in 1957 received a transfer of $375,000 from the Housing and Home Finance Agency.

Net income of $320,800 and $765,000 is expected in 1957 and 1958, respectively, since anticipated rental revenues exceed the necessary operating costs financed through this fund. Government investment in the fund at June 30, 1958, is estimated at $1,460,800, consisting of $375,000 in transfers from other agencies and $1,085,800 in retained earnings. It is proposed that withdrawal of earnings be deferred until more experience is gained in this program.

The Naval Academy laundry is operated for the benefit of midshipmen and other military personnel of the Naval Academy. The charges collected for laundry service are available for operating expenses (34 U. S. C. 1106–1107). Capital outlays are expected to increase in 1957 and 1958, due to the need to replace worn and obsolete equipment.

This fund finances industrial- and commercial-type activities on a reimbursable basis (5 U. S. C. 172d). The 21 activities financed through this fund as of January 1, 1957, include 7 Ordnance Corps and 2 Chemical Corps arsenals, 3 transportation terminal commands, 4 quartermaster manufacturing and maintenance activities, 3 research and development activities, a printing plant, and a film production activity. Two transportation terminal commands and the film production activity were added in 1957 and are reflected in the estimates for the first time.

Budget program.—Costs are estimated to increase by $86 million from 1956 to 1957; $71 million of this increase is attributable to new activities financed through the fund in 1957. From 1957 to 1958, costs are expected to decline by $608,000, the net of an increase of $12.7 million for contributions to the retirement fund beginning in 1958 and reductions of $13.3 million in other costs. These reductions result largely from lower workloads at ordnance and chemical arsenals.

Relation of costs to obligations.—The relationship is derived from year-end balances of selected resources and applicable adjustments, as reflected in the following table:

Selected resources at end of year: Inventories and items on order:
Materials and supplies	$29,092,441	$25,921,514	$22,159,864	$17,272,411
Undelivered orders	99,895,639	98,784,323	90,832,234	88,766,556
Advances made and prepaid expenses	3,789,156	1,210,959	515,709	363,840
Total selected resources at end of year	132,777,236	125,916,796	113,507,807	106,402,807
Selected resources at start of year (−)		−132,777,236	−125,916,796	−113,507,807
Decrease (−) in selected resources		−6,860,440	−12,408,989	−7,105,000
Materials and supplies capitalized (−)		−2,232,518	−1,637,224
Liabilities assumed: Accrued leave		2,165,147	3,616,887
Costs financed from obligations of other years, net (−)		−6,927,811	−10,429,326	−7,105,000

Obligations incurred were $6.9 million less than costs in 1956, and are expected to be $10.4 million and $7.1 million less than costs in 1957 and 1958, respectively, due largely to placing orders for materials and supplies at less than the usage rate.

An additional 23 activities are being considered for industrial fund financing in 1957 and 1958, including an ordnance arsenal, a proving ground, 2 railroad repair shops, a chemical center, a general depot, 11 ordnance equipment rebuild facilities, 4 signal equipment rebuild facilities, and 2 engineer equipment rebuild facilities. Industrial fund financing will be extended to these activities when (1) analysis of the specific activity indicates that definite economies can be derived thereby and (2) a program is developed for the activity that will assure the application of management and cost controls so as to achieve these economies in actual practice.

Financing the budget program.—This program is financed from customer orders received. These orders constitute valid obligations of the ordering appropriation and authorize activities financed through the fund to initiate procurement and undertake work. Costs are charged initially to the working capital of the fund, and are billed to customers as work progresses. Such billings constitute income as reported in the statement of income and expense. The unbilled balance of customer orders is expected to decrease by $66 million in 1958, and orders received are expected to decrease by $34 million in that year. About $49 million of the reduction in the unbilled balance is expected at ordnance arsenals, and $15 million at chemical arsenals, where estimated sales exceed orders received by those amounts. Orders received by ordnance arsenals are expected to decline by $39 million in 1958, due to lower customer appropriation requirements for financing work.

Operating results.—During 1956, collections exceeded expenditures by $11.3 million, as a result of reductions in working capital. Similar developments are expected to produce negative budget expenditures of $10 million in both 1957 and 1958.

A loss of $85,225 was incurred in 1956, on sales of $397.3 million. Retained earnings were reduced by an additional $788,644 in 1956, through an adjustment of prior year receivables. No gain or loss is anticipated from 1957 or 1958 operations. While it is not possible to achieve an absolute break-even result each year in actual practice, activities develop budgets upon this basis in order to avoid insofar as possible any augmentation or overcharging of current customer appropriations.

The following table indicates income by function:

	1956 actual	1957 estimate	1958 estimate
Manufacturing and assembly	$126,559,132	$137,387,827	$122,825,342

Transportation	41,974,889	91,581,179	97,154,702
Overhaul and repair	8,838,083	8,571,000	8,280,600
Other industrial income	17,061,932	18,838,679	24,339,000
Nonindustrial activities	79,779,167	108,229,113	112,796,405
Total income	397,290,673	492,130,115	490,664,049

Changes in income from manufacturing and assembly in 1957 and 1958 relate to operations of chemical arsenals, where items requiring increased quantities of material are being produced in 1957, but production is expected to decrease in 1958. Changes in research and development income occur largely at ordnance arsenals. The increased income for transportation results from financing two additional transportation terminal commands under this fund in 1957, as does the increase in income from nonindustrial activities.

Operating results for the various programs financed through this fund, as reflected in the condensed statement of income and expense and financial condition, are summarized in the following paragraphs:

Printing and pictorial activities.—Sales increase in 1957 and 1958 as a result of financing a film production activity for 6 months in 1957 and on a full year basis in 1958.

Manufacturing and maintenance divisions, quartermaster depots.—Sales and costs are expected to increase slightly in 1957 as a result of higher labor costs and increased workload in manufacturing and printing, partially offset by decreases in other workload. Decreases in manufacturing and repair activities are expected to produce a $1 million decline in sales in 1958.

Ordnance arsenals.—Income from manufacturing is declining in 1957, and expected to decline further in 1958, in the weapons area. Other elements of income are increasing slightly in 1957. A decrease of about $3.2 million is expected in research and development activities in 1958. Performance standards and other management techniques, where installed, have resulted in marked savings. Increasing emphasis will be placed upon these techniques in 1957 and 1958, and reductions in unit manpower and material requirements are expected. Overhead costs are expected to decrease in 1958 through tighter maintenance standards and overhead staff controls.

Chemical arsenals.—Increasing sales in 1957 result largely from production of items requiring greater quantities of material in that year. Sales are expected to decrease by $8.8 million in 1958, as a result of sharp reductions in customer demand. Sales in 1957 and 1958 will be billed largely against orders from prior years. Retained earnings were reduced by over $1 million in 1956, as a result of a current loss of $588,472 and a negative adjustment of $456,976 applicable to prior years. About $800,000 of this loss resulted from the fact that prices charged to customer appropriations by the Rocky Mountain Arsenal were not adjusted in time to permit recovery of full costs when production rates fell below the levels planned. An additional $280,000 in losses resulted from failure to make provision for recovery of losses on disposal of excess and surplus material.

Proving grounds and research activities.—The level of operations at these activities is expected to remain at substantially the same level through 1957 and 1958.

Transportation terminal commands.—Income increases in 1957 largely because of financing two additional commands through this fund. Substantially the same level of operations is anticipated in 1958; the estimated $7.8 million increase in income in 1958 will result from the fact that the 2 additional terminals will render bills for 12 months in 1958, as compared to 11 months in 1957.

Financial condition.—Government investment is estimated at $274.8 million on June 30, 1958, consisting of $256.9 million in reappropriations, $18.2 million in net capitalized assets, and a cumulative deficit of $329,806. Of this estimated investment, $154.8 million is necessary to provide working capital for the 21 activities currently financed through the fund, estimates for which are reflected in the statements and schedules. The remaining $120 million is necessary to provide initial working capital for 23 additional activities being considered for industrial fund financing in 1957 and 1958, which would do an estimated $400 million worth of business annually. An amount of $110 million, not necessary for extensions of this fund now contemplated, was rescinded in 1957.

This fund finances the procurement and maintenance of inventories of common-use items for resale and mobilization reserve.

During 1956 inventories capitalized under the stock fund increased $2.4 billion as depot inventories in all major overseas commands and inventories at selected posts, camps, and stations were brought under the fund. The fund is being extended in 1957 to include inventories held by the Southeastern Europe Task Force. It will be further extended thereafter to include, to the maximum extent practicable, the stocks at all major posts, camps, and stations along with additional categories of ordnance and aircraft supplies and spare parts. The statements printed herein do not reflect these further extensions.

Continued progress is planned in developing more satisfactory accounting and reporting for stock fund inventories and transactions and in improving billing and collection procedures.

Budget program.—The program shows an increase in obligations of $924.8 million from 1956 to 1958. Approximately 72 percent of this increase represents the financial impact of the "single manager plan." This plan assigns to one military department the sole responsibility for the depot or wholesale level of supply of certain common-use commodities for all services.

For its single-manager assignments the Army established new categories in the stock fund for depot inventories of subsistence and of clothing and textiles in the continental United States. The previous categories for these commodities continue to include inventories at posts, camps, and stations and in the overseas commands. As a result, the issue of clothing or subsistence items from single manager stocks in a United States depot to an Army station or an overseas command is shown in 1957 and 1958 as a purchase and sale, rather than as an internal transfer between categories of material. These transactions approximate one-fourth of the total volume of this fund. For supplies sold from single manager stocks, second destination transportation is paid by the stock fund and recovered in the standard prices for the items sold. For other categories of supplies, customers of the stock fund continue to be responsible for paying directly for transportation costs for delivery of supplies sold them.

The single-manager plan is also largely responsible for the changes in sales and purchases of medical-dental supplies. The sales and purchases shown for 1958 are those which will be made overseas and at the station level, since the depot stocks will be transferred to the Navy. These changes become effective in the last half of 1957.

The balance of the increase in obligations in 1957 and 1958 results from a decrease in the availability of long supply inventories, the payment of overseas transportation costs on petroleum products which has not been a stock fund charge in 1956, and the payment of all repair and rehabilitation costs of stock fund material. The latter costs were mostly charged to other appropriations in 1956.

In 1958, an estimated $503.6 million worth of inventory will be sold without replacement. This is due to the continued availability of stock in long supply and, in part, to improvements in supply procedures which have reduced the numbers of items and the quantities required to be carried in depots. The budget program provides for year-end inventories as follows:

Financing operations.—Funds for financing the budget program are derived from sales to authorized customers. Sales are expected to increase approximately $829 million from 1956 to 1958. Cash income is expected to exceed cash expenditures by $425 million in 1958, largely through reductions in inventories. Excess cash generated in prior years has been rescinded or transferred in the total amount of $1,419.9 million. In 1958 rescission of an additional $50 million is proposed, together with transfers of $62 million to the Air Force stock fund, $100 million to the Air Force industrial fund, and $88 million to "Acquisition, rehabilitation, and rental of Wherry Act housing."

Operating results.—A net operating loss of $226.2 million is forecast for 1958. This loss is due in large measure to the disposal or donation of stocks which were excess or in long supply at the time of capitalization. The analysis of inventories is continuing to identify those stocks which it would be more economical for the Government to dispose of than to retain. Abnormally high losses will be sustained until this major disposal program is completed.

A physical inventory loss of $15 million is estimated in 1958 compared with an inventory gain of $55 million in 1956. The 1956 gain resulted from a correction of accounting records to agree with physical inventories. Such a large adjustment is not expected to occur in 1958.

The adjustment of net income for 1956 also results from a correction of accounting records. Errors in the amounts of sales and purchases previously recorded were brought to light by a change in accounting procedures.

Financial condition.—The investment of the Government in the fund at June 30, 1958 will be $7,997.4 million made up of $10,608.8 million of capitalized assets, net rescissions of $1,719.9 million of appropriations and reappropriations, and $891.5 million of deficit.

This fund commenced operations on July 1, 1953, and finances the procurement and maintenance of inventory levels for resale and mobilization reserve of common-use electronic parts; engineer property, materials and spare parts; general property, clothing and equipment; motor transport equipment and spare parts; ordnance spare parts; most items of subsistence; and fuels. All inventories except individual clothing are confined to storage locations within the continental United States.

The large increases in 1957 for electronic and ordnance inventories result from new capitalizations at the end of the year. The large decreases in general property, individual and organizational clothing reflect the decapitalization and transfer to the Army stock fund of depot stocks of textile and clothing, respectively, in accordance with the changes in logistical responsibility brought about by the "single-manager plan." During 1956 inventories were reduced $18.3 million through sale without repurchase. Approximately $16.1 million and $18.2 million of the sales in 1957 and 1958 will not be repurchased.

The increase in goods ordered between 1957 and 1958 in individual clothing of $500,000 and organizational clothing of $2 million are the results of the single-manager change. The $23 million increase in subsistence in 1958 reflects the total effect of bringing perishable subsistence items under the stock fund on January 1, 1957, and extension of the fund to include commissary store sales at major posts and stations on July 1, 1957.

Financing the budget program.—Funds for financing the budget program are provided by the sale of inventory to authorized customers. Sales increase almost 36 percent in 1958 because of new items coming under the fund. During 1957 and 1958 cash receipts will exceed expenditures by $17 million and $20 million. Excess cash generated in prior years has resulted in the return to the Treasury of $28 million and an additional transfer of $35 million to "Military construction, Navy."

Operating results.—A surcharge of $2.7 million in 1958 will cover operating expenses plus losses attributable to normal operation. The loss from donation or disposal of inventory which was excess at the time of its capitalization is not covered by the surcharge. This results in a net loss for the year of $27.7 million. An annual operating loss of this magnitude can be expected to continue until the excess inventories have been removed.

Financial condition.—It is estimated that the Government investment in the fund as of June 30, 1958, will be $470.5 million, consisting of $569.8 million of capitalized inventories, less cumulative net rescissions of $48 million and a deficit of $51.3 million.

This fund finances industrial- and commercial-type activities on a reimbursable basis (5 U. S. C. 172d). The 49 activities financed through this fund as of January 1, 1957, include 11 shipyards, a ship repair facility, the Military Sea Transportation Service, 6 ordnance plants, 2 laboratories, a clothing factory, and 27 printing plants. Except for one printing plant, all of these activities were reflected in the 1957 budget.

Budget program.—The cost of goods and services produced is expected to increase by $34.9 million from 1956 to 1957; $30 million of this increase is in research activities. From 1957 to 1958, costs are expected to increase by $3.3 million, the net of an estimated $37 million in new costs for contributions to the Civil Service Retirement Fund (Public Law 854, as approved July 31, 1956) and a reduction of $33.7 million in other costs. These reductions consist of $17.8 million in research activities, $9.8 million in the Military Sea Transportation Service, and $6.1 million in ordnance plants, resulting from decreases in workload.

Relation of costs to obligations.—The relationship is derived from year-end balances of selected resources and applicable adjustments as reflected in the following table:

Selected resources at end of year: Inventories and items on order:

Obligations incurred for costs of other years, net		53,741,760

In 1956, obligations exceeded costs since orders were placed for materials and supplies in excess of usage, and a number of large contracts were outstanding at the end of the year. In 1957, obligations are expected to be about $67 million below the 1956 level and will be about $48 million less than 1957 costs as work progresses on the contracts let in 1956 and as orders are placed for materials and supplies at less than the usage rate. 1958 obligations will be about $31 million below 1958 costs for the same reasons.

An additional 40 activities are being considered for industrial fund financing in 1957 and 1958, including an ordnance plant, 10 aviation repair facilities, 2 public works centers, 8 research and development installations, 3 ordnance test stations, a proving ground, 4 specialized depots, and 11 ammunition depots. Industrial fund financing will be extended to these installations when: (1) Analysis of the specific installation indicates that definite economies can be derived thereby, and (2) a program is developed for the installation that will assure the application of management and cost controls so as to achieve these economies. Under these criteria, a number of installations are expected to begin operating under the industrial fund shortly after January 1, 1957.

Increasing attention will be given through 1957 and 1958 to the development of performance standards and production control systems, and to improving systems for cost allocation and control. The cost of these developments will be absorbed through reductions in other overhead areas, to be achieved through tighter overhead staff controls and stricter maintenance standards. Accordingly, total manufacturing expenses and general and administrative expenses are forecast at decreasing ratios of direct labor in 1958, with the expectation of sharper reductions thereafter.

Work is being accelerated on isolating costs of idle and underutilized capacity, maintained for mobilization purposes, so that such costs can be financed separately from the production costs of currently needed end items and services. The 1958 program contemplates the continuation of separate funding of idle plant costs at shipyards and, in part, at ordnance plants.

Financing the budget program.—This program is financed from customer orders received. No appropriations are made to this fund to finance current operations. Orders received by industrial fund installations constitute valid obligations of the ordering appropriation, and authorize these installations to initiate procurement and undertake work. It is estimated that $659.7 million in such orders will be unbilled as of June 30, 1958, as compared to $792.6 million in 1957 and $690.2 million in 1956. Most of these unbilled balances relate to work requiring long lead time, such as shipbuilding and conversion and the production of major ordnance items. An estimated $1,220 million in customer orders will be received in 1958, a drop of about $240 million from the estimate for 1957. About $210 million of this decrease is expected at naval shipyards, and $21 million at research activities. This decrease results primarily from lower customer appropriation requirements for financing ship construction at naval shipyards.

Operating results.—During 1956, retained earnings increased by $3.9 million, the net of: (a) An operating loss of $2.2 million, about one-sixth of 1 percent of total sales and (b) a $6.1 million increase as the result of a number of adjustments to receivables, payables, and inventory accounts applicable to prior years. In 1957, retained earnings are estimated to increase by $2,315,752, through an adjustment of the operating reserve balances of the Military Sea Transportation Service. This amount was accrued to reserves and charged to customer funds in prior years, in excess of the accruals subsequently determined to have been necessary. No gain or loss is anticipated from 1957 or 1958 operations. While it is not possible to achieve an absolute break-even position each year in actual practice, the activities financed through the fund develop budgets upon this basis in order to avoid insofar as possible any augmentation or overcharging of current customer appropriations.

The following table indicates income by function:

Changes in income from manufacturing and assembly relate primarily to operations at ordnance plants. Changes in overhaul and repair and in construction and conversion of ships relate primarily to operations at shipyards. Changes in income reflected for research and development and for transportation are expected to occur at research activities and the Military Sea Transportation Service, respectively. The decrease in other industrial income relates to operations of the Military Sea Transportation Service.

Operating results at each of the major groups of installations, reflected in the condensed statement of income and expense and financial condition, are summarized in the following paragraphs.

Navy printing plants.—Predetermined selling prices are used in these 27 plants. In spite of increased labor and material costs, the prices charged customers of the Navy Printing Service (26 plants) were held constant in 1956 and no increases are forecast for 1957 and 1958. The selling prices of the Defense Printing Service (one plant) are expected to be 5 percent lower in 1957 and 1958 than in 1956.

Naval research activities.—While the cost of work performed at the installations financed through the fund is expected to remain substantially constant through 1957 and 1958, fluctuations in work for which they contract will produce an increase in sales of $29.6 million in 1957 and a decrease of $14.7 million in 1958. The 1958 estimates contemplate a steady decline in materials inventories, and in the ratio of overhead costs to direct research effort.

Marine clothing and equipment factory.—During 1956, sharp decreases were effected in the unit costs of a number of items produced. While continued improvement in production efficiency is contemplated in 1957 and 1958, overall costs will increase above the 1956 level, largely because of the production of items requiring greater quantities of material and increased wage rates in 1957.

Naval ordnance plants.—Management emphasis during 1957 and 1958 will be placed upon development of engineered time standards, standard cost systems, and the isolation of the costs of maintaining idle and underutilized capacity. These developments, in addition to making possible better cost control, should also make possible a more meaningful analysis of trends in unit costs.

Naval shipyards.—A system for the development of performance standards and standard costs, and their integration with the production planning and control system, has proven successful in a test application. This system, where installed, has resulted in reduced costs of shipwork and provided a means for measuring yard performance. This system will be extended to all yards as rapidly as employees can be trained, equipment procured, and the system adapted to each activity. Beginning in 1957, shipyards are determining more promptly the charges to customers for work performed. The new system will allow more prompt adjustment of funds obligated and committed by customers of the shipyards.

Military Sea Transportation Service.—Tariff schedules are issued annually. Costs are influenced by the types of shipping used, charter and wage rates, and fuel costs. In 1957, these factors are producing heavy increases in costs. While part of these increases can be absorbed through reduction in ship turn-around time and reduced costs of ship alterations, it has been necessary to raise tariffs in 1957 by an average of 8.6 percent over 1956.

Financial condition.—Government investment, estimated at $397.3 million at June 30, 1958, consists of $388.1 million in reappropriations and $38.1 million in retained earnings, less a negative $28.9 million in net capitalized assets. The latter figure represents the excess of liabilities assumed over inventories acquired at transfer of activities to the fund. Of this investment, an estimated $248.3 million is necessary to finance activities currently operating under the fund, estimates for which are included in the statements and schedules as printed. The remainder of $149 million is required to provide initial working capital for the 40 activities currently being considered for industrial fund financing, which would do an estimated $420 million worth of business annually. Rescissions of $40 million and $52 million were effected in 1956 and 1957, respectively.

This fund was created to facilitate the financing of operations supported by two or more appropriations (5 U. S. C. 172e). The corpus of the fund consists of $1 million transferred from the naval procurement fund. Principal operations financed in this manner are construction of the Army, Navy, and Air Force bases and stations in Spain; the material inspection service; departmental telephone and maintenance services; transportation of the supplies, goods, and materials of the Navy; the electronic production resources agency which coordinates the production and allocation of electronics equipment for the Department of Defense; and certain interdepartmental activities discharging obligations placed on the Department of Defense by executive direction and such other obligations jointly affecting more than one component of the Department.

This fund, initially established in 1893, finances the procurement and maintenance of common-use inventories for resale and mobilization reserve. It includes depot level inventories in both the continental United States and overseas, and in general, station inventories as well.

These statements reflect changes in capitalization resulting from single-manager assignments. The Secretary of the Navy was assigned single-manager responsibility for medical-dental supply for all armed services and such stocks at the depot level in other military departments will be capitalized in this fund on April 1, 1957. Clothing and textile items at the depot level are to be decapitalized and transferred to the Army stock fund in 1957.

Budget program.—The budget program shows an increase in obligations of $342.3 million from 1956 to 1958. Approximately 35 percent of this increase results from bringing in new categories of photographic material, forms and publications and submarine parts and substantially increasing the items of ship repair parts and electronics. Another 28 percent of the increase is caused by the changes in logistical responsibility effected by the single-manager plan. Price increase or increase in demand for quick turnover items of fuel, general stores, and ship stores cause another 13 percent of the increase. The remainder results from decreasing sales made from long supply inventories not requiring repurchase. Sales from long supply inventory in 1958 are estimated at $44.5 million, confined largely to general stores, ships parts, and electronics items. Inventory data are as follows:

Financing the budget program.—Funds to finance purchases are derived from the sale of inventory to authorized customers. Cash receipts in 1957 and 1958 are estimated to exceed cash expenditures by $127 million and $60 million, respectively. Excess cash was withdrawn from the fund in the amount of $429 million in 1956 and $300 million in 1957.

Operating results.—The net loss for the budget year of $232.7 million can be traced directly to donations and sales of surplus material at less than standard prices. The return from the sale of this material is about 7 percent of standard price and that return is expected to drop in the future. The material was, for the most part, excess at the time it was capitalized and therefore no attempt was made to recover the resultant loss in the surcharge added to new material purchases. In 1958 the surcharges will include an increment to cover loss on disposal of the surplus material generated by normal stock fund operations.

Stock fund management is attempting to keep this generation of excess to a minimum through a reduction in stock levels and strict procurement controls. The latter limits purchases to those quantities of items issued in prior quarters to meet recurring demands with adjustments for known program changes.

Financial condition.—It is estimated that the Government investment in the fund as of June 30, 1958, will be $2,140.7 million, consisting of $706.6 million of appropriated and reappropriated money, $1,828.2 million of net capitalized inventories and $394.1 million of deficit.

This fund finances 8 printing plants in the United States, and 52 laundry and dry cleaning plants in the United States and overseas, on a reimbursable basis (5 U. S. C. 172d).

Budget program.—Costs are expected to increase by $800,000 from 1956 to 1957, as a result of activation of 4 additional laundry and dry cleaning plants and increased utilization of existing plants. In 1958, costs are expected to increase by an additional $900,000, mainly as a result of adding 1 new laundry and dry cleaning plant and placing the 4 plants activated in 1957 on a full-year basis. Obligations are expected to be slightly lower than costs in 1957 and 1958, due to placing orders for less materials and supplies than are used.

Relation of costs to obligations.—The relationship is derived from year-end balances of selected resources and applicable adjustments as reflected in the following table:

Financing the budget program.—This program is financed through valid customer orders received from appropriations or from airmen and other authorized patrons.

Extension of industrial fund coverage to the transport activities of the Military Air Transport Service is planned in 1958. The Department of Defense is continuing its evaluation of the extension of an industrial fund to the aircraft overhaul and repair facilities. An amount of $100 million is required for 1958 for working capital.

Operating results.—During 1956, collections exceeded expenditures by over $1.1 million, as a result of net income from operations of $433,782 and the reduction of working capital balances. Collections are expected to exceed expenditures by $25,000 in 1957, largely through reductions in inventories. Expenditures are expected to exceed collections by $365,000 in 1958, as a result of payment to the Treasury of an amount equivalent to the estimated deutschemark support provided laundry and dry-cleaning plants in Germany.

Printing service.—The volume of production is expected to remain at about the 1956 level through 1957 and 1958. Total costs are increasing in 1957 as a result of higher material costs and additional distribution services provided to customers.

Laundry and dry cleaning service.—Sales are increasing in 1957 as a result of adding four new plants. A further increase in 1958 will result from placing these plants on a full year basis and adding an additional plant. Net income of $405,054 in 1956 was generated primarily in overseas areas, where a centralized pricing policy is in effect. Overseas prices were revised on January 1, 1957, to an estimated break-even level from that point forward. A gain of $152,000 is estimated in overseas areas in 1957 prior to this price revision.

Financial condition.—Investment of the U. S. Government at June 30, 1958, is estimated to be $106.8 million, including the proposed transfer to provide for financing additional activities under the fund. This amount will consist of $106 million in reappropriations, $196,572 in net capitalized assets, and $636,486 in retained earnings.

This fund was created to facilitate the financing of activities supported by two or more appropriations (5 U. S. C. 172e). The corpus of the fund consists of $1 million. Amounts required for activities financed are provided through advances or reimbursements. A classified project is financed, which began in 1954 and is expected to be completed in 1958. This project involves major equipment procurement, construction, and operation and maintenance expenses.

Beginning in 1957, this fund finances the centralized functions of the Federal catalog program which are under the management control of the Office of the Secretary of Defense. During 1957, this project is being financed jointly by the Departments of the Army, Navy, and Air Force. During 1958, the General Services Administration will also participate in financing this project.

This fund finances the procurement and maintenance of common use inventories for resale and mobilization reserve.

During 1956 continental United States depot inventories of selected general supply items were capitalized under the fund. The fund will be further extended in the general supply area to include selected items of base-support inventories in 1957 and similar items in overseas depot stocks and base stocks worldwide in 1958. In addition items of locally procured general supply material and selected item of organizational clothing will be brought under the fund in 1958. The statements shown below do not reflect the capitalization of the worldwide base stocks of general supply material.

Budget program.—Approximately $510 million of the increase in goods ordered in 1958 results from extension of the fund to include new inventories. The balance is caused by a decrease in the availability of long-supply inventory which in prior years was sold without repurchase.

Clothing and medical-dental supplies in the continental United States depot stocks carried under the fund in 1956 will be transferred at the end of 1957 to other military departments in accordance with their single-manager assignments, leaving only the minimum level of inventories for these commodities. As a result practically all the sale of these items in 1958 must be replaced with new purchases. Clothing purchases and sales include organizational clothing for the first time in 1958.

The increased purchase requirement in aviation fuels division in 1957 is caused by an increased price and a one-time procurement to raise mobilization reserve levels which will be maintained in 1958. The increase in 1958 results from an increase in the sales program.

The increased purchases of general supplies reflect the changes in capitalization mentioned above.

The budget program is based on year-end inventories as follows:

Financing the budget program.—The bulk of the funds for the budget program will be derived from the sale of inventory to authorized customers. In 1958, because of the substantial increase in the volume of business, it will be necessary to increase working capital required for general supply material beyond the unallocated cash of the fund. An increase of $62 million in the corpus of the fund is therefore required, such increase to be provided by transfer from the Army stock fund.

Operating results.—The estimates forecast a net operating loss in 1958 of $8.4 million. This loss results from the disposal or donation of material which was excess or in unusually long supply at the time it was capitalized. All normal losses of the fund in 1958 will be recovered through charges to customers.

Financial condition.—The investment of the Government in the fund at June 30, 1958, will be $965.3 million made up of $283.3 million in appropriations and reappropriation, $815.5 million of capitalized assets and —$133.5 million of deficit. This is a decrease of $134.7 million from total investment at the end of 1956.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Procurement of headstones.—The procurement of headstones for the 3 fiscal years is shown in the table below. The increased purchases in 1957 result from a backlog of 17,907 applications for headstones and markers from 1956 created by decreased funds and the normal increase in applications. On July 1, 1957, there will be a normal carryover of 8,447 applications.

4. Maintenance and operation.—Provision is made for operating and maintaining the national cemetery system in the continental United States, its Territories and possessions, consisting of 120 installations including 85 national cemeteries, 22 soldiers' lots, 5 Confederate cemeteries, 2 Confederate plots, 2 Confederate monument sites, 2 national monument sites, 1 memorial park and Government-owned burial lots in the Washington parish burial ground. There will be 1,956 developed acres in the national cemetery system in 1958, including 697,975 used graves and 311,844 developed grave sites. It is estimated that 24,456 burials will be made in 1957 and 26,468 in 1958 compared to 22,785 burials in 1956.

RIVERS AND HARBORS AND FLOOD CONTROL

The Corps of Engineers improves and maintains rivers and harbors throughout the continental United States, Puerto Rico, Alaska, the Virgin Islands, and the Hawaiian Islands in the interests of navigation, control of floods, related hydroelectric power development, and allied water uses, including the protection and preservation of navigable waters.

The total appropriation requested amounts to $647 million, representing an increase of $8 million compared with the amount appropriated for 1957 and an increase of $35 million compared with 1956. Approximately 79 percent of the requested appropriations will be applied to construction and 18 percent to operation and maintenance activities.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Examinations and surveys.—Preliminary examinations and surveys for navigation and flood-control improvements are made to determine the need and economic justification of proposed improvements. These studies are made in cooperation with appropriate Federal and State agencies and will be restricted to a limited number of high-priority investigations.

In addition, cooperative beach erosion investigations are conducted at specific localities. These cooperative investigations are paid for equally by the Federal Government and by State and other local agencies.

Special studies are made in cooperation with State and other Federal agencies in the interest of navigation, flood control, power and related purposes.

Completed reports are those acted upon by the Board of Engineers for Rivers and Harbors or the Beach Erosion Board.

2. Collection and study of basic data.—Funds are made available to the Weather Bureau for hydrometeorological studies and precipitation stations and to the Geological Survey for installation, operation and maintenance of stream gaging stations. Funds are also made available to the Fish and Wildlife Service for preauthorization studies of the effect of proposed flood control and river and harbor projects upon fish and wildlife.

3. Research and development.—General beach erosion development studies deal with physical phenomena, techniques, basic principles and remedial or control measures related to shore protection and improvement. The results of these studies are disseminated to other Federal, State, and local agencies and individuals using this information.

Hydrologic studies include storm studies, general hydrologic investigations, sedimentation studies, and international water studies. Streamflow and rainfall data stations are operated to provide a background of information for use in future design and operation of water-control projects.

Civil works investigations assist in the solution of engineering problems. The solutions are widely applicable to the design, construction, and operation and maintenance of civil works projects. The amount requested will be applied to 79 individual investigations and will provide for the operation of the research center at the waterways experiment station, Vicksburg, Miss.

Construction of the Mississippi Basin model at the waterways experiment station at Vicksburg, Miss., will be continued.

4. Tennessee-Tombigbee waterway restudy.—A restudy of the economic feasibility of the Tennessee-Tombigbee waterway will be completed with funds provided in 1957.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The appropriation requested for this activity amounts to $467.1 million and represents an increase of $8.6 million compared with the amount appropriated for 1957 and an increase of $25.9 million compared with the appropriation for 1956.

The monetary authorization available for appropriation after 1958 for projects in the construction, general, program amounts to $4,855.6 million. The status of the active program on June 30, 1956, is shown on the following table. The projects shown as "Balance authorized" include a number which are parts of approved comprehensive basin plans for which, monetary authorizations for construction are not yet available.

Supplemental appropriations (appearing at the end of the chapter) will be requested in 1958 under proposed legislation for advance planning of projects and for partnership water resources projects.

[1] Excludes projects tentatively classified as inactive or deferred for restudy.
[2] Includes projects essentially complete and/or in operation.
[3] Uncompleted projects in the active program for which construction funds have been appropriated. Includes 27 projects or project modifications having no funds presently available for expenditure.
[4] Includes authorized modifications of original projects.
[5] Excludes snagging and clearing and emergency flood protection works.
[6] Includes adjustments of prior year funds. Actual appropriation was $448.3 million.
[7] Program total of appropriation request is $457 million.

1. Advance engineering and design.—Design studies establish project features and cost estimates required for preparation of contract plans. The funds requested will bring designs and plans for a number of high priority projects to the stage where they will be ready for construction, and will permit continuation or initiation of planning on other needed projects. There is also included in the budget for 1958 a supplemental appropriation of $1 million under proposed legislation, shown at the end of this chapter.

2. Navigation projects.—This activity includes improvement of channels and harbors for navigation by dredging; and construction of breakwaters, jetties, dikes, locks, dams, and canals.

With the funds requested, work will be continued on 50 channel and harbor projects, of which 14 will be completed, and on 11 lock, dam and canal projects of which 1 will be completed. Construction will be initiated on 6 channel and harbor and 1 lock and dam project or project modifications as follows:

CHANNEL AND HARBOR PROJECTS

1. Dry Pass, Alaska.
2. Savannah River below Augusta, Ga.
3. Saginaw River, Mich.
4. Galveston Harbor and Channel, Tex. (seawall).
5. Norfolk Harbor, Va. (Craney Island anchorage and 40-foot channel).
6. Port Angeles Harbor, Wash.[1]

LOCK AND DAM PROJECTS

1. Dam 8, Monongahela River, Pa. (raise crest).

[1] To be completed with funds recommended for 1958.

3. Alteration of bridges.—Obstructive bridges over navigable waterways are altered in accordance with an apportionment of the costs of alteration between the United States and the bridge owners.

The funds requested will finance the Federal share of the 1958 cost of altering five bridges.

4. Beach erosion control projects.—The Federal Government assists in the construction of works for the restoration and protection against erosion, by waves and currents, of the shores of the United States, its territories, and possessions. Federal contributions may not exceed one-third of the construction costs of such projects.

5. Flood control projects.—This activity includes local protection projects and flood control reservoirs without power installations. Local protection projects consist of channel improvements, levees, and floodwalls. Provision is made for emergency bank protection; for snagging and clearing work on navigable streams and tributaries when such work is necessary in the interest of flood control; and for the construction of small flood control projects not specifically authorized by Congress.

With the funds requested, construction will be continued on 82 projects, of which 14 will be completed in 1958. Thirteen new local protection projects and three new reservoir projects will be initiated as follows:

LOCAL PROTECTION PROJECTS

1. Middle Creek, Calif.
2. San Lorenzo Creek, Calif.
3. Ottawa, Kans.
4. Albuquerque, N. Mex.
5. Artesia, N. Mex.[1]
6. Lower Heart River, N. Dak.
7. Roseville, Ohio
8. Lower Columbia River improvements to existing works, Oregon and Washington. (Multnomah drainage district No. 1.)
9. Pendleton, Oreg.[1]
10. Allentown, Pa.
11. Lake City, Tenn.
12. Salt Lake City, Utah
13. Sheridan, Wyo.

RESERVOIR PROJECTS

1. Carbon Canyon Reservoir, Calif.
2. Allegheny River Reservoir, N. Y. and Pa.
3. North Hartland Reservoir, Vt.

[1] To be completed with funds recommended for 1958.

6. Multiple-purpose projects including power.—With the funds requested, construction will be continued on 17 multiple-purpose projects with power installations. Three revenue-producing multiple-purpose projects with power will be substantially completed in 1958. In addition, the funds necessary to complete construction of the Old Hickory lock and dam, Tennessee, project will be provided, and construction will be initiated on the installation of power units 5 and 6 at Bull Shoals Reservoir, Ark. and Mo.

No funds are being requested for the Hartwell Reservoir, Ga. and S. C., in view of the problem of flooding agricultural lands of Clemson College.

Initiation of construction on McGee Bend Dam, Tex., will be delayed pending the settlement of a court action involving this project. As a result, it is anticipated that funds previously appropriated will be sufficient to finance this project during 1958.

Of the proposed 1958 obligation program, 80 percent is for work on 10 major projects costing over $60 million each as shown on the following table:

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The appropriation requested is $99 million. This represents an increase of $3.1 million compared with 1957 and an increase of $0.6 million compared with the adjusted appropriation for 1956. With the amount recommended essential maintenance work will be accomplished on an orderly and current schedule designed to hold costly repair and rehabilitation work in the future to a minimum.

1. Navigation.—Minimum essential maintenance requirements will be met on 169 channel and harbor projects, 27 canals and canalized waterways and 3 reservoir projects. Surveys of the northern and northwestern lakes to obtain data for charts and bulletins for safe navigation will be continued.

2. Flood control.—In 1958, 107 flood control reservoirs will be operated and maintained. Provision is also made for the minimum regular maintenance of 16 local flood protection projects, urgent rehabilitation work, and inspection of completed flood control projects to determine adequacy of compliance by local interests with prescribed maintenance requirements.

3. Multiple-purpose projects, including power.—Thirty-two multiple-purpose projects with an installed capacity at the end of 1958 of 5,537,400 kilowatts will be operated and maintained.

4. Lower Columbia River fish sanctuary program.—Funds are allocated to the Fish and Wildlife Service for operation and maintenance of hatcheries and other facilities.

5. Niagara remedial works.—Works to preserve and enhance the beauty of Niagara Falls are scheduled for completion in June 1957. The costs of operation and maintenance of these works are to be divided equally between the United States and Canada.

6. Emergency operations.—Wrecks and other obstructions to safe navigation are marked and removed. Provision is made for emergency work on channels of navigable waters and their tributaries.

$4,000,000 is requested in anticipation of emergency flood control work authorized by Public Law 99, approved June 28, 1955.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Corps of Engineers is responsible for the flood control program for the lower Mississippi Valley from Cape Girardeau, Mo., to the Gulf of Mexico, including the main alluvial stream, the basins of the St. Francis and White, lower Arkansas, Yazoo, Tensas, and Atchafalaya Rivers, and Bayou La Fourche, and the alluvial lands around Lake Pontchartrain. The adopted plan calls for raising and strengthening about 1,600 miles of existing levees along the main river, for enlarging or constructing some 1,700 miles of levees on tributaries and in side basins, for channel improvement and bank stabilization on the main river, for dredging of the main river to provide a navigation channel 12 feet deep and 300 feet wide from Baton Rouge, La., to Cairo, Ill., and for 5 flood-detention reservoirs on minor tributaries.

The total estimated cost for flood control and improvement of the lower Mississippi River in its alluvial valley is $1,436 million, of which $964 million has been appropriated through 1957.

1. General investigations.—Provision is made for continuing a comprehensive review of the Mississippi River and tributaries project and for the collection of basic data subsequently used in planning and designing projects.

2. Advance engineering and design.—The funds requested will complete the engineering and design on two projects on which construction is scheduled for initiation after 1958.

3. Construction.—The total funds requested will be applied to the various features of the comprehensive plan as follows:

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This appropriation provides for the cost to the United States for governing the Ryukyu Islands. Under the treaty of peace with Japan, the United States is empowered to continue to exercise all powers of administration, legislation, and jurisdiction over the territory and the 800,000 inhabitants of the Ryukyu Islands. A system of military bases and other installations pertinent to the defense of the Pacific area has been developed in the islands. Since these islands are of critical strategic importance to the security of the free world, it is expected that the United States will be responsible for their administration for an indefinite period.

1. Administration.—This provides for administrative costs in the Ryukyu Islands, the Office of Civil Affairs and Military Government, and a program of information and education in the islands.

2. Exchange of persons.—Provision is made for a program of advanced study of Ryukyuan students, and of visits of Ryukyuan leaders in the United States.

3. Aid to Ryukyuan economy.—In order to insure the development and maintenance of economic and political stability, provision is made (a) for grants-in-aid to the local government which will compensate indirectly for the cost of extraordinary governmental services provided for the benefit of the United States, and finance items of urgently

This appropriation provides for those functions in the Canal Zone which, in the United States, would be performed by State and local governments and civilian departments of the Federal Government, and for the operation of public hospitals and clinics. All operating expenses, including depreciation, are repaid by the Panama Canal Company from its revenues and by other agencies and individuals served, and the repayments are covered into the Treasury as miscellaneous receipts.

1. Civil functions—(a) Customs and immigration.—This provides for the activities usually incident to such functions (except that no collection of customs duties is involved) and in addition includes certain special activities relating to transiting vessels and the execution of certain treaty obligations to the Republic of Panama.

(b) Postal service.—The postal system serves the entire Canal Zone and operates at present under policies and regulations generally similar to those of the United States Post Office Department, including money order and postal savings services.

WORKLOAD

	1956 actual	1957 estimate	1958 estimate
Airmail received and dispatched (pounds)	527,244	529,200	529,200

Canal Zone surface transit mail received and dispatched (sacks)	243,825	243,000	243,000

(c) Police protection.—This includes the usual police functions of preservation of the peace and enforcement of the law in the Canal Zone (not including military reservations), the operation of a penitentiary and a prison for women and juveniles, and police guards for certain facilities.

(d) Fire protection.—Prior to 1957, this provided for fire fighting and prevention in the civilian communities of the Canal Zone only. Beginning in 1957, all structural fire-fighting facilities in the Canal Zone, including military reservations, were consolidated under the Canal Zone Government. Only those facilities required for fighting aircraft crash fires and fires aboard naval vessels and at ammunition depots continue to be furnished by other agencies concerned.

(e) Judicial system.—This includes the operation of two magistrates' courts and the expenses of the Canal Zone District Court (exclusive of salaries) which serves as both a State and Federal court.

(f) Education.—This provides for the operation of educational facilities from kindergarten through junior college for the dependents of Government employees, military personnel, other residents of the Canal Zone and, on a space-available basis, to certain residents of Panama. It includes the full cost of operation of school buses; partial recovery of such cost through charges to parents of schoolchildren, as made in previous years, is not contemplated. There are two distinctly different school systems in the Canal Zone; one for United States citizens, the other for Latin-Americans (Panamanians and other noncitizens), conducted in the Spanish language. Beginning in 1958, provision is made for the operation of specialized educational facilities for handicapped children.

(g) Public areas and facilities.—This includes the cleaning, lighting, and maintenance of streets and highways, maintenance of sewers, and care of public areas, within the Canal Zone, not including military reservations. Provision is made in 1958 for repairing 5 miles of Thatcher Highway.

(h) Library.—This provides for the operation of public library facilities for the residents of the Canal Zone and technical reference services for Government agencies.

(i) Internal security.—This provides loyalty investigations and related intelligence services for the Canal Zone Government and Panama Canal Company.

(j) Other civil affairs.—This includes the licensing and civil defense activities and supervision of the civil functions program.

2. Health and sanitation—(a) Hospitals and clinics.—Two complete general medical and surgical hospitals with outpatient clinics, a neuropsychiatric and domiciliary hospital, and a leprosarium are operated and maintained. Medical care of all eligible civilians and military personnel in the Canal Zone is provided in the two general hospitals operated by the Canal Zone Government. In 1958 provision is made for the modernization of psychiatric services in the mental hospital and an increase in personnel in the general medical hospitals and leprosarium to provide adequate psychiatric and other services.

(b) Other public health services.—This provides for sanitation and quarantine work in the Canal Zone and for ships calling at its ports and transiting the canal. Certain sanitary inspection work in the adjacent cities of Panama and Colon formerly performed and supervised by the Canal Zone Government was discontinued by this agency early in 1956, and is now a function of the Republic of Panama.

3. General government expense—(a) Office of the Governor.—This provides for the executive direction of all Canal Zone Government activities and includes the expenses of the office of the Governor and his residence, and the office of the executive secretary.

(b) Other general government expense.—This includes the Canal Zone Government's share of the cost of general and administrative expenses provided by the Panama Canal Company in accordance with the interagency agreement whereby the Panama Canal Company is authorized to perform and furnish certain functions and services which the Canal Zone Government is without staff or facilities to perform or furnish; expenses of recruitment and repatriation, employees' home leave travel costs, and other general charges.

(c) Adjustments to prior year costs.—This includes fund and nonfund adjustments pertaining to operations in prior years.

4. Relation of costs to obligations.—The relationship is derived from year-end balances of selected resources and applicable adjustments as reflected in the following table:

	1955 actual	1956 actual	1957 estimate	1958 estimate
Selected resources at end of year (inventories and items on order):
Stores (goods unconsumed by projects)	$111,868	$111,234	$111,234	$111,234

Total selected resources at end of year	232,726	156,514	156,514	156,514
Selected resources at start of year (−)		−232,726	−156,514	−156,514
Adjustments of selected resources reported at start of year		34,821
Increase or decrease (−) in selected resources		−41,391
Depreciation allowance on capital assets included in costs (−)		−940,577	−844,400	−973,600
Increase (−) in annual leave earned but not yet taken		−52,069
Prior year capitalizations and other items charged to current year costs		−26,474
Property or services transferred in (−) or out without charge, net		−5,010
Costs financed from obligations of other years, net (−)		−1,065,521	−844,400	−973,600

Depreciation accruals of about $1 million annually on facilities and equipment capitalized under the capital outlay appropriation are included in activity costs. Appropriation requirements are reduced by the amount of such charges as funds are not required for depreciation.

During 1956, writeoffs of prior year capitalizations and other items, were made to current year costs, amounting to $26,474. Such items consist principally of the costs of engineering studies, designs, and specifications in connection with abandoned construction projects.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Guaranties are given on loans made by public and private financing institutions to facilitate performance of defense production contracts. When necessary, loans may be purchased by the Government. Administrative expenses are paid out of guaranty fees and interest on loans receivable. Funds in excess of guaranteed loan program requirements may be transferred to miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury. Advances from appropriations available for procurement may be made to this fund for its temporary use. Net earnings, retained to purchase loans when required under guaranty commitments and to cover possible future losses, are expected to be $4,680,158 at the end of 1958 (50 U. S. C. app. 2091).

The Panama Canal Company is a wholly owned Government corporation chartered for the primary purpose of maintaining and operating the interoceanic canal at the Isthmus of Panama. As a part of that mission, and in consideration of the provisions of the international agreements under which the Canal enterprise is operated, the Company provides and operates necessary service facilities.

The financial results reported herein and estimated in the budget program, including computations for interest and depreciation charges, are based for practical purposes on the Company's completed report on the valuation of assets transferred to the Company from its predecessor agency and which, by law, is subject to final approval of the Director, Bureau of the Budget.

Budget program.—The activities of the Company are grouped into: (1) canal and allied maritime operations; (2) supporting operations; and (3) general corporate charges.

Canal and allied maritime operations.—This is the substantive program of the Company and comprises the transiting operations and related marine activities, vessel repair facilities, harbor terminals and marine bunkering operations, and, on a limited basis pending full implementation of the 1955 treaty with the Republic of Panama, the Hotel Washington.

Acquisition of assets in 1958 amount to $3,866,200 and are mainly for (1) continuing the conversion of locks electrical distribution system and equipment from 25 to 60 cycles, $1.8 million; (2) continuing the deepening of Cristobal anchorage, $680,000; (3) channel improvements, $710,000; (4) raising locks locomotive track system to eliminate depressions in former emergency dam locations, $190,000; and (5) replacing equipment in a locks floating caisson, $115,000. Locks overhaul expenditures in 1958 are for the regularly scheduled 5-year overhaul of the Pacific Locks.

Net operating expenses estimated for 1958 amount to $23,294,300 as compared with $23,242,600 in 1957 and $21,126,111 in 1956.

Supporting operations.—These activities in support of the Company's mission include employee services, transportation and utilities, and other services such as engineering, maintenance, warehousing, and printing facilities.

Acquisition of assets amount to $5,125,100 in 1958. The most significant items are (1) continuing the conversion of the power system to 60 cycles, $2.7 million; and (2) modernization of the Company's main administration building constructed in 1914, $750,000.

Net operating expenses are estimated at $27,876,600 in 1958, or about $6.5 million under those in 1957, due primarily to reduced sales of consumer goods to employees. This compares with $39,628,526 in 1956.

General corporate charges.—These include payments to the Treasury for the net cost of Canal Zone Government and interest, general and administrative expenses under statutory limitation, and other general charges. The scope of general and administrative expenses under statutory limitation has been broadened in 1958 to include virtually all general charges other than net cost of Canal Zone Government and interest on the investment of the United States.

Acquisition of assets in 1958 amount to $175,000 for office equipment and minor general items. Other operating expenditures total $26,446,700 in 1958, or about $1.3 million higher than for 1957 of which $0.9 million results from increased net cost of Canal Zone Government. This compares with $25,056,446 in 1956.

Financing the budget program.—The Company is authorized to obtain appropriations for its capital needs and to cover losses, and may borrow without interest up to $10 million from funds deposited by it with the Treasury. In 1956, funds applied to operations exceeded those provided by $11.8 million. A continued excess of funds applied to operations over funds provided is estimated to amount to $1.6 million in 1957 and $3.9 million in 1958. This results from the heavy capital outlay program of replacing deteriorated and obsolete plant and equipment and improving channels and harbors. It is expected that the capital program can be financed from revenues through 1958 but, because of the large requirements for plant, no capital refund is presently anticipated in either 1957 or 1958. A capital refund was made to the Treasury in 1956 amounting to $5 million.

Operating results and financial condition.—Canal tolls from commercial traffic are at a high level amounting to $36.2 million in 1956 and, based on current trends and statistical studies, are estimated at $36.6 million in 1957 and $37.3 million in 1958. Toll credits from Government vessels are expected to continue in 1957 and 1958 at the 1956 level of $1.2 million. After giving effect to the Company's recently completed valuation of assets transferred to it from the former Canal agency, net income for 1956 is tentatively stated at $4.2 million. In consideration of the certain large drop in sales of services and commodities as a result of the provisions of the 1955 treaty with the Republic of Panama, net incomes for 1957 and 1958 are projected at $1 million and $0.2 million respectively. The investment of the United States, as determined by the Company, is expected to increase somewhat over the 1956 level of $421 million to $424 million at June 30, 1958, consisting of net interest-bearing investment of $344 million and $80 million in retained earnings.

Defense Production Guaranties, Navy

Guaranties are given on loans made by public and private financing institutions to facilitate performance of defense production contracts. When necessary, loans may be purchased by the Government. Administrative expenses are paid out of guaranty fees and interest on loans receivable. Funds in excess of guaranteed loan-program requirements may be transferred to miscellaneous receipts of the Treasury. Advances from appropriations available for procurement may be made to this fund for its temporary use. Net earnings, retained to purchase loans when required under guaranty commitments and cover possible future losses, are expected to be $8,261,268 at the end of 1958 (50 U. S. C. app. 2091).

The fund provides for expenses necessary for the acquisition, operation and maintenance of plant and equipment of the Corps of Engineers used in civil functions, and for furnishing of facilities and services for the military functions of the Department of the Army and other governmental agencies and private persons. The fund is credited by reimbursements or advances from the appropriations or individuals who utilize the services or facilities, at rates to cover all operating costs. Capital for the fund was provided by assumption of the assets, liabilities, and obligations of the plant accounts, as carried on the records of the Corps of Engineers as of June 30, 1953, and by an appropriation of $100. Capital of the fund is limited to $140 million (67 Stat. 199).

Budget program.—In 1958 the fund will incur costs of $11.5 million for acquisition of plant and equipment (including improvement of existing assets) as compared to $11 million in 1957 and $7.1 million in 1956; $10.7 million for replenishment of inventory stocks as compared to $9.8 million in 1957 and $8.8 million in 1956; and $175.6 million for operating expenses as compared to $162.1 million in 1957 and $159.8 million in 1956.

Operating results and financial condition.—The activities are classified as plant and equipment services; warehousing; shop and facilities services, including repair and maintenance shops, boatyards and reproduction plants; and general administrative services, including engineering and administrative expenses of Corps of Engineers district offices. Operating income for 1958 is expected to equal operating expenses. In reducing the excess inventories with which the fund began in 1954, losses of $1,291,159 were incurred through 1956, and further losses of $551,841 are expected in 1957. The investment of the United States Government is estimated to remain at about the same level through 1958, amounting to $129.6 million, including an operating deficit of $100,000.

Relation of costs to obligations.—The relationship is derived from year-end balances of selected resources and applicable adjustments as reflected in the following table:

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The laws enforced hereunder are designed to protect consumers against adulterated and misbranded foods, drugs, cosmetics, therapeutic devices, and caustic poisons.

1. Enforcement operations.—Inspections of domestic plants and examinations of interstate shipments are planned according to the relative incidence and seriousness of probable violations. Somewhat less than 100,000 manufacturers, shippers, and warehouses are involved. Retail establishments are also subject to the prohibition against adulteration or misbranding of articles from interstate sources. Voluntary compliance with the law is promoted by every proper means, and corrections are effected without court action where permissible and possible. Violations are reported to the Justice Department with appropriate recommendations for legal action. Standards for foods, and tolerances for poisonous substances in foods, and other required regulations are promulgated.

The 1958 budget is designed to carry forward the policy of strengthening enforcement of the food and drug laws, and represents the second stage of the expansion program recommended by the citizens advisory committee in its report to the Secretary of Health, Education, and Welfare dated June 1955. The estimates propose a continuation of staff increases in the inspectional, scientific, and management areas of work. Funds are included for capital investment to improve and modernize the facilities of the Food and Drug Administration, and provide for one more district office to allow for more concentrated coverage.

The increase in workload is reflected in the following summary data:

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The university consists of an undergraduate college, a graduate school offering the master's degree and the degree of Doctor of Philosophy (in chemistry), and eight professional schools. Federal funds provide approximately 57.3 percent of the operating costs.

1. General administration.—The university is administered by a private board of trustees and staff of officers.

2. Resident instruction and departmental research.—This activity includes all direct expenditures for the operation of the educational program in the 10 schools and colleges.

3. Library.—The general library serves the needs of 10 schools and colleges, and supervises, in part, the professional collections.

4. Operation and maintenance of the physical plant.—The operation and maintenance staff services 47 buildings located on the university's 60-acre campus.

5. Auxiliary enterprises and noneducational expense.—The dormitories, food service, bookstores and athletic program included under this activity are self-supporting and render service at lowest possible cost. The noneducational expense covers cost of student aid program.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Grants are made for school construction in local districts overburdened by Federal activities. Where the local education agency is not able to provide school facilities for children living on Federal properties, the Commissioner of Education provides for the construction of schools.

From 1951 through 1957 $727.4 million has been appropriated for this program, aiding in the construction of an estimated 33,750 classrooms housing about 950,000 pupils in 47 States, Alaska, Hawaii, Puerto Rico, and Guam. The estimate for 1958 will provide about 2,000 additional classrooms for 60,000 pupils.

The former school construction account is combined with the schedules for this account.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

1. Administration of school assistance in federally affected areas.—Applications for school construction and school operation expenses in areas where facilities are burdened by Federal activities are examined and acted upon. The program has been extended to June 30, 1958.

2. Educational services.—Information is developed and publications are issued related to elementary, secondary, and higher education, and a clearinghouse of information is maintained on the status and developments in school law, both Federal and State. Consultative and advisory services are provided to Federal, State, and local agencies, to professional groups, and to higher educational institutions, and the States are given assistance in the appraisal and development of vocational education programs. Information is also developed and disseminated on education in other countries; educational exchange programs are administered in cooperation with the Department of State and International Cooperation Administration.

3. Research services.—Assistance is provided on planning research studies and major responsibility assumed for collection and analysis of basic educational statistics. Research and demonstration projects are carried on in cooperation with colleges, universities, and State education agencies. Projects are supported in such problem areas as education of the mentally retarded, development of students with special abilities, staffing the Nation's schools, and the educational implications of changes in the country's economy.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

During 1956, 126,000 cases of syphilis and 232,000 cases of gonorrhea were reported, which is an increase of about 4,000 cases of syphilis and a decrease of about 8,000 cases of gonorrhea from 1955. This is the first increase since 1947 in the number of reported cases of syphilis.

1. Grants to States for venereal disease control.—Case-finding projects are supported in selected areas where venereal disease incidence and prevalence still remain high, with particular emphasis on: (a) areas showing significant increases in venereal disease morbidity; (b) areas with high venereal disease incidence rates among young age groups; (c) areas containing large numbers of transients; and (d) areas where epidemiology is required on sizable numbers of nonclinic patients.

2. Direct operations—(a) Clinical and laboratory research.—Research and evaluation activities are directed toward maintenance of uniformly satisfactory nationwide serologic services; introduction of a new syphilis diagnostic test; development of an immunizing agent for syphilis; improvement of diagnostic techniques for gonorrhea; evaluation of more effective methods of therapy; and analysis of activity and morbidity data to alert health workers to the development of potential problem areas and the effectiveness of control procedures.

(b) Technical assistance to States.—Epidemiologic services are directed toward the maintenance of nationwide and international intelligence and control of venereal disease in areas of particular concentrations of agricultural, industrial, and military personnel and in numerous small high-prevalence areas that might become the foci for spread of infection. Consultation is furnished to States through the regional offices in determining problem areas, infection sources, and control techniques required. Scientific information and educational media are prepared and disseminated through State agencies.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This program provides facilities and services for the investigation, prevention, and suppression of communicable and preventable diseases other than tuberculosis and venereal diseases, by the development, advancement, and dissemination of knowledge and techniques.

1. General disease prevention and control.—Scientific and technical services in the fields of epidemiology, medicine, and biology including reference diagnostic laboratory services are made available to State and local health departments by investigations, consultation, and demonstrations. Public health workers are trained in laboratory and other public health techniques, and training materials are produced for use by the States and other agencies. The 1958 increase is for expanded activities in the standardization of diagnostic materials, studies on acquired resistance by insects to insecticides, and investigations to develop means for preventing public health hazards in the

The estimate provides for augmented studies on viruses causing acute respiratory diseases, and hepatitis.

3. General epidemic and disaster aid.—This fund is utilized to prevent and control outbreaks of disease in disaster areas, and to provide disease control assistance during epidemics, upon request of State health officers. During 1956 aid was provided in 33 States, the District of Columbia, Hawaii, and Puerto Rico.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

This program is concerned with the identification of public health problems related to our environment and the development of preventive and control measures in the support of sanitary engineering activities of States and localities.

1. Air pollution.—This provides for an expanded program of research and technical assistance authorized by Public Law 159, approved July 14, 1955, to study the effect of air pollution on man's health, and to develop effective methods of control. Public Health Service facilities at Cincinnati, and other Federal facilities and personnel, as well as the competencies of public and private institutions and individuals through contracts and grants are utilized in carrying out the program. Upon request, technical assistance is provided State and local agencies.

2. Water supply and water pollution control.—State and other public and private agencies are assisted in safeguarding public water supplies and protecting the quality of water resources for all legitimate uses. This is accomplished through grants to States and interstate agencies for water pollution control activities which will be increased in 1958 to the maximum, authorization of $3 million, collection of basic data, research, demonstrations and technical assistance in water pollution and water supply problems. In addition, training and consultative services are provided personnel from State, local, and interstate agencies and from industries. This activity also provides for a program of enforcement against pollution of interstate waters, the development and integration of plans for water supply and water pollution control on a regional and interagency river basin basis, and for the administration of the program of grants for the construction of waste treatment facilities.

3. Radiological health.—This includes the development of public health techniques for controlling radiation hazards, investigations of methods of disposing of radioactive wastes, training of State and local personnel to solve radiological public health problems, and the collection, analysis, and dissemination of information on radiological health.

4. Milk and food sanitation.—This provides for a strengthened program of research and technical assistance to States in milk and foodborne disease control. Research is carried on to insure that new and improved methods of milk and food processing and distribution will not be hazardous to the public health. Technical and advisory services are provided State and local agencies and industry through the certification of interstate milk and shellfish shippers, development and demonstration of methods and procedures, evaluation of laboratory techniques, and the presentation of research results. The increase in technical assistance will broaden the pilot study for the evaluation and demonstration of standards for improvement of the sanitary quality of poultry.

5. Interstate carrier and general sanitation.—This implements the direct Federal responsibility for protecting the health of passengers aboard interstate carriers. It also provides for technical assistance to States on basic sanitation problems, including rural sanitation.

6. Sanitary engineering center research services.—This provides the supporting services and specialized technical skills required in common for the various research programs, as well as the maintenance and operating costs of the center.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

Grants are made to States, municipalities, and interstate and intermunicipal agencies to stimulate and assist in the construction of necessary sewage treatment works.

Funds appropriated for such grants are allocated to States and Territories on the basis of population and economic need. Within these allocations grants for the specific projects may not exceed 30 percent of the cost of a project or $250,000, whichever is smaller, with at least 50 percent of the funds appropriated going to communities of 125,000 population or less.

Approval and priority of construction projects is established by the State agency on the basis of financial and water pollution control needs. Projects must conform to the State comprehensive water pollution control plan.

In approving projects, the Surgeon General must consider the propriety of Federal aid in accordance with the criteria approved by the President, the public benefits to be derived by the construction, the relation of the cost of the project to the public interest and necessity, and the adequacy of provision by the applicant for proper and efficient operation and maintenance of the treatment works after completion of the construction.

PROGRAM AND PERFORMANCE

The Federal Government provides financial assistance to States and Territories, local governments, and nonprofit agencies to defray part of the costs of construction of hospitals, rehabilitation facilities, diagnostic or diagnostic and treatment centers, nursing homes, public health centers, and related health facilities. In addition, these funds permit the Surgeon General to conduct research, experiments, and demonstrations relating to the effective development and utilization of hospital services, facilities, and resources, or to make grants-in-aid to States, political subdivisions, universities, hospitals, and other public and private nonprofit institutions or organizations for such projects.

This program operates under 2 annual authorizations: $150 million for construction of hospitals, public health centers, and related health facilities, and $1.2 million for research activities; and $60 million for construction of diagnostic or diagnostic and treatment centers, hospitals for the chronically ill and impaired, rehabilitation facilities, and nursing homes. Funds for construction grants are authorized to be appropriated for each fiscal year through 1959 for allocation to the States and Territories on the basis of population and economic need. Federal participation varies from one-third to two-thirds. Payments are computed under each individual contract and made as construction proceeds.
