THE WEEK'S HIGHLIGHTS:

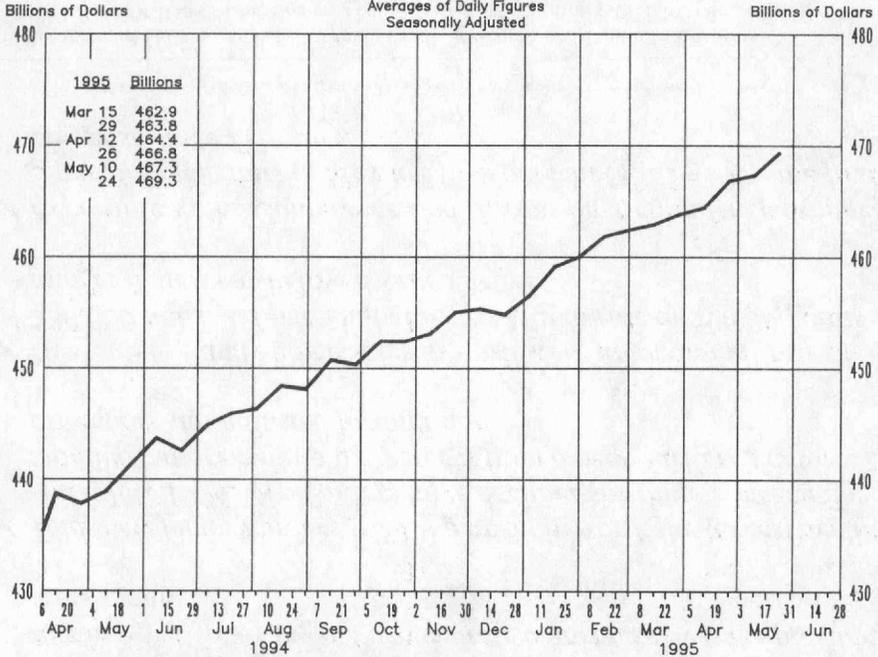

- ✓ According to the preliminary estimate, real gross domestic product (GDP) rose at a 2.7 percent annual rate in the first quarter of 1995, 0.1 percentage points below last month's advance estimate. An upward revision in real consumer spending was more than offset by a downward revision in inventory accumulation.
- ✓ Real disposable personal income fell at an 11.9 percent rate in April, after rising at a 4.4 percent rate over the first three months of 1995. Real personal consumption expenditures fell at a 1.2 percent rate in April, following a 2 percent rate of increase over the previous three months.
- ✓ Total new factory orders fell 1.9 percent in April, the largest decline since July 1994. New orders have declined for three consecutive months, but are still up 6.8 percent from a year earlier. Factory orders are not adjusted for inflation.
- ✓ New single-family home sales in April were at an annual rate of 580,000 units, 2.7 percent below the March rate of 596,000 units and 13.7 percent below a year earlier.
- ✓ According to the Conference Board, consumer confidence dropped 3 percentage points in May to 101.6 percent (1985=100), the first decrease since February.

All data are seasonally adjusted unless otherwise indicated.

Adjusted Monetary Base

Latest data plotted reserve maintenance period ending: May 24, 1995

The adjusted monetary base is the sum of reserve accounts of financial institutions at Federal Reserve banks, currency in circulation (currency held by the public and in the vaults of all depository institutions) and an adjustment for reserve requirement ratio changes. The major source of the adjusted monetary base is Federal Reserve credit. Data are computed by this bank. A detailed description of the adjusted monetary base is available from this bank.

Recent data are preliminary.
