BALANCE SHEETS FOR THE U.S. ECONOMY

1945 through 1989

The attached tables show data for tangible and financial assets, liabilities, and net worth for the private sectors of the economy (households, business, and private financial institutions). The tables were last published in April 1990. This issue incorporates data from the usual three-year revision in the National Income and Product Accounts at the Bureau of Economic Analysis (BEA) and from the annual revision in financial assets and liabilities in the Flow of Funds Accounts. Most of the revisions in financial data go back to 1980, but there are a few changes going back to 1945. New estimates have been completed that have changed the corporate-noncorporate allocation of net worth for the farm sector and for private financial institutions. Tangible assets have been revised slightly for all years for private financial institutions; these revisions are reflected in changes in the tangible assets of nonfinancial corporations, which is the residual sector for nonresidential structures of all corporations. A series for residential structures at real estate investment trusts has been introduced on the financial institutions table (residential construction expenditures appear on the saving and investment table for REITs in the Flow of Funds Accounts). Series for nonresidential structures have also been added to the monetary authority and federally sponsored credit agencies sectors. These two groups do not appear in the Balance Sheets, but the changes are included on the national net worth tables as part of the net assets of the public sector.

The figures shown on the tables for equipment, residential and nonresidential structures, and inventories are from tabulations published by BEA.<sup>1</sup> The BEA calculation is a perpetual inventory procedure that consists of accumulating purchases over a long period of years and deducting depreciation and retirements according to various schedules. It is entirely independent statistically of published business balance sheet measures of fixed assets, even for historical-cost data. Reproducible assets are shown at current cost net of straight-line depreciation. The values for land are Federal Reserve estimates based mainly on data from quinquennial Censuses of Governments on real estate assessments. The figures for net worth, calculated as total tangible and financial assets less total liabilities, reflect these current-cost values.

For nonfinancial corporations the balance sheet statement also includes data for tangible assets valued at historical cost, the amount actually paid for the items when they were bought, and the net worth amounts that result. The historical-cost estimates for reproducible assets come from the same BEA calculation as the one that produces the current-cost estimates, and they are consistent with each other in definition.

Along with the balance sheets is a set of reconciliation tables that relate changes in the net worth totals to the gross investment flows that are published in the quarterly Flow of Funds Accounts. Changes in net worth result from gross investment, less depreciation, and inflows from equity issues. Other factors that affect net worth include revaluations in tangible and financial assets due to price changes and statistical discontinuities, and changes in land values; neither of these items appears in the quarterly Flow of Funds savings and investment statements.

Subscription information. The Federal Reserve Board charges nominal amounts for subscriptions to all public releases. The annual charge for the Z.7 release, Flow of Funds Summary Statistics, is $5.00; the full Z.1 release (flows and annual outstandings) is $15.00. The C.9 release, Balance Sheets for the U.S. Economy, which appears twice a year, usually in April and October, is $5.00 per year. There is no charge for subscriptions sent to academic or governmental addresses. Subscription requests for these releases should be directed to:

The theory and structure of the accounts is explained in Introduction to Flow of Funds, published in June 1980, which costs $1.50. These may also be ordered from Publications Services. Checks for all orders should be made payable to Board of Governors of the Federal Reserve System.

Sample copies of the releases mentioned above, or quarterly or annual historical data for specific sectors of the accounts, in reasonable scope, are available in printed form from the Flow of Funds Section on request.
