BANK DEBITS

Aggregate debits to individual account, as reported for banks in 153 of the country's leading clearing house associations for the week ending January 12, were 8,636 millions, or a daily average of 1,439 millions, compared with 10,738 millions, or a daily average of 2,148 millions, shown for the preceding five-day week. A large decrease in volume of checks is shown for all the larger centers, except Los Angeles, the aggregate for New York City alone being 1,343 millions below the previous week's figure. The smaller volume of debits is due in the main to a comparative business quiet following exceptionally heavy activity at the turn of the year.

As compared with the corresponding week a year earlier, debits for the week under review were 1,523 millions smaller, the decrease in the total for New York City alone accounting for about two-thirds of the aggregate decline.
