Federal Reserve Board,
March 10, 1923.

BANK DEBITS

Bank debits for the week ending March 7 totaled $10,887,000,000, compared with $9,389,000,000 for the preceding week - an increase of 16 per cent. This large increase is due in part to the fact that the earlier week included Washington's birthday observed as a legal holiday throughout the United States and also to the customary first of the month increase in the volume of payments. Larger figures are shown for all the leading centers, except Pittsburgh, Chicago and Detroit.

As compared with the week ending March 8, 1922, aggregate debits for the report week were larger by $2,423,000,000, or about 29 per cent. The more than customarily large spread between the two years is due in part to the fact that in 1922 the week did not include the first of the month. Larger figures this year than last are shown for all the leading centers, except Minneapolis.

Debits to individual accounts are reported to the Federal Reserve Board by banks in leading clearing house centers. The total number reporting this week is 250, of which 239 are included in the summary by Federal reserve districts.
